REGISTRAR OF JOINT STOCK COMPANIES

The incorporation and registration of companies and associations under sundry statutes constitute the general work of the office, together with the filing of the various prescribed returns, such as annual reports, mortgages, etc. The chief Acts administered are: Companies Act, Trust Companies Act, Benevolent Societies Act, Cemetery Companies Act, Charitable Associations Act, Co-operative Associations Act, Investment and Loan Societies Act, Rural Telephone Act, Mutual Fire Insurance Companies Act.

Extra-provincial concerns become authorized to carry on business under the Companies Act and Trust Companies Act.

Default in filing its returns renders a company liable to dissolution under the provisions of the Companies Act.

All documents recorded are open to inspection by the public in the office, or information may be obtained by letter, there being a nominal fee of 25 cents for any search. Copies of documents will also be furnished at the charge of 10 cents per folio of 100 words.

Inquiries will receive prompt attention.

H. G. Garrett, Registrar.

SUPERINTENDENT OF INSURANCE

Insurance companies must be licensed under the British Columbia Fire Insurance Act and the Insurance Act, according to the class of business carried on. Security has to be deposited in every case, unless the company holds a Dominion licence. Licences expire on June 30th each year.

In March the companies file their annual reports. Other returns may also be required.

The tax of 2 per cent. on premiums for fire insurance is collected by the department from licensed companies, and also when the insurance has been placed outside the province with unlicensed insurers.

Reports of all fires occurring in the province are filed in the office and statistics compiled. Inquiry into suspicious fires and investigation of conditions likely to cause fire are also conducted.

Documents on file are open to inspection and copies can be obtained.

H. G. Garrett, Superintendent.

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA PROHIBITION ACT

The British Columbia Prohibition Act came into force on the 1st of October, 1917; amendments were passed on 23rd April, 1918, and 28th March, 1919.

The Act was passed, as stated in the preamble, "to suppress the liquor traffic in British Columbia by prohibiting provincial transactions in liquor." It is administered by an officer known as the Prohibition Commissioner, appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

"Liquor" is defined as including "all fermented spirituous and malt liquors and all combinations thereof, and all liquids which are intoxicating, and any liquid which contains more than two and one-half per cent. of proof spirits."

Vendors, "who shall keep for sale such liquors as are required for medicinal, manufacturing, mechanical, scientific and sacramental purposes only," are appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Vendors may sell liquor in the following cases only, under certain restrictions:

(a) To any person for mechanical or scientific purposes, alcohol within certain limits.

(b) To any druggist such liquor as a druggist is authorized to sell under the act, not exceeding five gallons at any one time.

(c) To any physician not exceeding two quarts at any one time.

(d) To any dentist not more than one pint at any one time.

(e) To any veterinary not more than one gallon at any one time.

(f) To the person in charge of any hospital, an amount fixed by the Commissioner.

(g) To any minister of the gospel, wine for sacramental purposes.

(h) To any person for strictly medicinal purposes. No sale of liquor under this clause shall be made except upon a bona fide prescription in writing signed by a physician, and no more than one sale and one delivery shall be made on any one prescription.

(i) To a person in charge of an industrial or manufacturing plant or to a master of a steamboat or passenger ship on a permit to be issued by the Commissioner, not more than one quart to be kept and used only for cases of emergency or accident.

(j) To a bonded manufacturer licensed as such by the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue, alcohol not exceeding forty gallons on a permit issued by the Commissioner.

Except as provided by the B. C. Prohibition Act:

(1) No person shall keep liquor in any place whatsoever other than in the private dwelling-house in which he resides.

(2) No person shall sell to any other person liquor.

Any druggist may keep for sale liquor for strictly medicinal purposes, but no sale shall be made except upon a bona fide prescription in writing signed by a physician, and no more than one sale and one delivery shall be made on any one prescription.

Any physicion who deems liquor necessary for the health of any patient whom he has seen or visited professionally may give to such patient a written prescription therefor signed by the physician, or may administer the liquor himself, but no such prescription shall be given or liquor administered except to bona fide patients in cases of actual need and when in the judgment of such physician the use of liquor as medicine in the quantity prescribed or administered is necessary.

It is illegal to give a prescription or administer liquor in evasion or violation of the Act or for the purpose of enabling or assisting any person to obtain liquor for use as a beverage or to be sold or disposed of contrary to the provisions of the Act.

Any dentist in case of necessity may administer liquor to a patient under treatment.

Any veterinary in case of necessity may administer liquor to animals.

While the Prohibition Act is intended to prohibit transactions in liquor which take place wholly within the Province of British Columbia except as specially provided by the Act, and to restrict consumption of liquor within the limits of the Province of British Columbia, it is not intended to affect bona fide transactions in liquor between a person in the Province of British Columbia and a person in another province or in a foreign country, and, therefore, nothing in the Act shall be construed to interfere:

(a) With the right of any person to import from without the province liquor for bona fide use in his private dwelling-house.

(b) With the right of any minister of the gospel to import wine for sacramental purposes.

The duty of seeing that the provisions of the Act are complied with, of enforcing the same and of prosecuting persons offending against such provisions devolves upon the Commissioner, the Superintendent of Provincial Police of the province, and upon all constables and officers of every provincial and of every municipal police force in the province.

The penalty for a person for unlawful sale of liquor is imprisonment with hard labor for a term of not less than six months and not more than twelve months for a first offence; for a second or subsequent offence, imprisonment with hard labor for not less than twelve months and not more than twenty-one months, without the option of a fine.

In the case of a corporation the penalty is a fine of one thousand dollars.

For other offences, not specially provided for, the penalty for a first offence is a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or in default, imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than two months; for the second offence, imprisonment for not less than two months and not more than four months, with or without hard labor, or a penalty of not less than two hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars; for any subsequent offence, imprisonment for not less than three months nor more than six months, with or without hard labor, without the option of a fine.

If the offender be a corporation the penalty is a fine of one thousand dollars.

Penalties recovered in respect of convictions obtained at the instance of the Provincial Police are paid into the consolidated revenue fund of the province. Those recovered at the instance of municipal police are paid into the treasury of the municipality.

On and after June 1st, 1919, all prescriptions for liquor must be made upon printed forms to be obtained from the Commissioner.

Canvassing for or soliciting orders for the purchase or sale of liquor, as well as advertising, is illegal.

The government liquor stores are under the charge of H. A. Urquhart, vendor, Vancouver, and T. H. Horne, vendor, Victoria.

The Commissioner is Lieut.-Col. J. Sclater, D.S.O., Parliament Buildings, Victoria.

The Prohibition Department is under the Honorable the Attorney-General.

The above particulars are necessarily given in abbreviated form for information only. Reference for precise details and information should be made to the Act and amendments, copies of which can be obtained on application to the Commissioner.

THE DEPARTMENT OF MUNICIPALITIES

This department was created in 1914, following the passing of the Municipal Act of that year. The objects of the department have been to provide a measure of supervision of municipalities and to establish a department of the government for special consideration of municipal questions and for dealing more specifically with the relations between municipalities and the government, and also for the purpose of the certification of municipal money by-laws and debentures.

Power is given in the Municipal Act to the Inspector of Municipalities, acting on order-in-council, to deal generally with any question which may arise as to municipal administration or as to the relations between municipality and ratepayer. He is empowered to administer oaths and to make such decisions as he may deem advisable, and upon the acceptance of such decision by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council it becomes binding upon the municipality. He may also, acting upon order-in-council, give such directions as may be thought advisable with regard to municipal accounting and bookkeeping.

As there is no provincial board, such as exists in some of the other provinces, in which may be reposed an authority to deal judicially with municipal questions, the powers vested in the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council are fairly broad. In many cases the powers exercisable by the municipal council have been extended farther than they would otherwise be permitted, with the reservation that the exercise of the power is subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. In such cases the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council is very largely dependent upon the statement of the case as submitted by the Department of Municipalities.

The Act of 1914 provides for the certification by the Inspector of Municipalities of municipal money by-laws and municipal debentures. No power is specifically given to cure defects in by-laws or debentures, but it is provided that when a by-law or a debenture has been so certified no question can be raised in any of the courts of the Province of British Columbia as to its validity. This arrangement has afforded a very large measure of protection to holders of debentures and has very materially reduced the difficulties attendant upon the sale of municipal securities. The holder of debentures is in a position to know that there is no possible litigation attached to his security and the only question for him to consider is the ability of the municipality to pay.

R. Baird, Inspector.

The Honorable the Provincial Secretary and Minister in charge of the Education Office is in charge of the administration of the Education Office, the Provincial Museum, the Printing Office, the Provincial Board of Health, all Mental Hospitals, the Provincial Home, the Legislative Library, and the Civil Service Commission.

The Provincial Secretary's Office is the official medium of communication between his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and the Executive Council, and has charge of all Orders-in-Council as well as being the custodian of the Great Seal. The office also deals with the administration of the Provincial Elections Act, the Hospital Act, and the Civil Service Act. It has also charge of all matters respecting destitute poor and sick in unorganized districts throughout the province, the appointment and payment of resident physicians, grants to hospitals, refuge homes and charitable institutions as well as matters relating to superannuation, the University of British Columbia, royal commissions, the appointment of notaries public and commissioners under the Evidence Act, and other matters of a similar nature.

Civil Service Commission

The Civil Service Act came into effect July 1, 1918. The functions of the commission are:

First, to determine the organization necessary for adequately and economically performing the public service.

Second, to appoint the staff necessary to complete this organization.

Under the Civil Service Act the power of dismissal is segregated from the power of appointment. The power of dismissal lies in the head of the department or in the lieutenant-governor-in-council. The power of appointment lies with the Civil Service Commission to whom all applications should be made. All appointments to the civil service are now made under competitive conditions. Applications are called for by advertisements published in the B. C. Gazette and in the public press. Where possible competitive examinations are used, sometimes written, sometimes viva voce, and frequently both.

When normal conditions return general competitive examinations will be held regularly twice a year in May and November. Owing to the large number of civil servants who have been away on leave of absence for military duty and who are now returning in a steady stream and reporting for duty, very few appointments are being made from the outside. The examination in May, 1919, will, therefore, be largely for stenographers.—W. H. MacInnes, Commissioner.

Provincial Library and Archives Department

The Provincial Library occupies a new wing of the parliament buildings, and is one of the finest libraries in the Dominion. It is fireproof throughout, and equipped with all modern library appliances. The collection contains upwards of 100,000 volumes, in every department of knowledge. As it is a reference library, the books must be consulted in the library, but in special cases a book may be loaned from the library upon application to the librarian.

The collection of Northwest Americana containing books, prints, maps and manuscripts relating to the history of the Pacific Northwest is of special interest, as also the archives collection containing many original letters and documents bearing on the early history of the province.

Where persons reside at a distance, or for any reason are unable to call personally at the library, an information service is provided, and upon written request to the librarian for information the full resources of the library on any particular subject will be made known, and, where possible, reading lists and excerpts will be furnished.

There are upwards of three hundred newspapers and periodicals received regularly in the reading room, and as all back numbers of these are preserved in a large filing room, reference may be made to them at any time; cumulative indexes being provided for most papers to facilitate reference.

The travelling library system provides rural districts with small collections of books. Full particulars may be obtained upon application to the Superintendent of Travelling Libraries, Parliament Buildings.

When the legislature is not in session the library and archives department is open to the public daily from 9 a.m. till 5 p.m., Saturdays, 9 a.m. till 1 p.m.

Provincial Museum of Natural History

The objects of this museum are to secure and preserve specimens illustrating the natural history of the province; to collect anthropological material relating to the aboriginal races of the province; to obtain information respecting the natural sciences relating particularly to the natural history of the province, and to increase and diffuse knowledge regarding the same.

The museum is an institution for the preservation of those objects which best illustrate nature, and the work of man and the use of these for the increase of knowledge, and for the culture and enlightenment of the people; its special functions being to preserve and utilize objects of nature and works of art and industry. It supplies a need, which is felt in every intelligent community and which cannot be supplied by any other agency.

If in your travels you should visit Victoria, Vancouver Island, be sure you see the provincial museum. You will see there many strange and wonderful things, and if you have time to listen, stories will be told you woven about these exhibits that will make your visit a not-to-be-forgotten pleasure.

Do you care for the glories of the chase? Go into the great hallway devoted to British Columbia's big game, and see for yourself some of the finest specimens of moose, Caribou, wapiti, sheep and bear, etc., that are to be found on the American continent.

Are you a lover of the weird and mysterious? The Indian legends told on the many totems here brought together would, if written down, fill a series of large volumes by themselves.

It was on December 2, 1886, that the museum was formally opened up in a room 20 x 12, with no work-shop attached; the curator was simply told that he must make the most of it until better quarters were provided. On May 24, 1889, the museum was removed to the old supreme court building, and the work of building up the institution commenced in real earnest. Gradually but surely the development of the museum advanced until again the accommodation was totally inadequate. Then in 1898 it was moved to its present quarters in the eastern section of the parliament buildings; but it has outgrown those premises, and there should be erected now a building, twice as large and specially designed for museum purposes, and until such a house is secured, the perfection of the collections must naturally be retarded. The provincial museum being essentially a British Columbia museum, necessarily contains only those specimens obtained within its borders, hence none of them were procured by exchange with other parts of the continent, so that the value of a collection so truly local in its formation is incalculable.

The collection is worthy of a large building, and is a credit not only to the government under whose direction it is managed, but to the people of the province, whose individual efforts have done as much to assist its growth in the way of contributions, as very many specimens now in the museum have been presented by friends to the institution from every portion of the province.

The ethnological collection is unique, being the finest one of local relics extant, and when it is considered that the Indian is fast learning the white man's ways, many of the specimens will be hard to duplicate, if at all possible.

The grouping of mammals and birds which is now the principal feature in all museums, has been initiated here, and groups shown with their natural surroundings at a glance teach a person as to their habits and life history. The museum contains good collections, embracing as it does many fine and rare specimens.

The ornithological, or bird collection, too, is admirable and complete, not only every familiar feathered friend being met with, but specimens being on view of birds entirely new to British Columbia, if not to the Pacific Coast, and the museum collection intelligently read offers incontrovertible evidence of the constantly changing distribution of the birds of the world.

The fishes of the province are fairly well represented, both in alcoholic specimens and casts, the latter method being now almost entirely employed in representing the fishes, and so far with satisfactory results.—F. Kermode, director.

Department of Education

British Columbia enjoys the advantages of a free non-sectarian system of public and high schools. This system, established in 1872, has been modified from time to time. Thus, for example, when the system was first established the full cost of erecting school houses, paying the salaries of the teachers and meeting the incidental expenses of the various districts, was met by the Provincial Government out of the consolidated revenue fund of the province. At present only newly established schools, termed Assisted Schools, and schools in the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway Belt are supported entirely, in so far as teachers' salaries are concerned, by the Provincial government. All other schools receive grants from the provincial treasury, but dedepend for their main support upon taxes levied in the municipalities or in the rural school districts as the case may be.

The total enrolment at all the public and high schools for the year ending June 30, 1918, was 67,516. The percentage of regular attendance was 81.08. The total number of teachers employed was 2,246. Of this number 184 were employed in the high schools, 920 in the city graded schools, 537 in the rural municipality schools, and 605 in the rural and assisted schools. There were 43 several high schools maintained during the year, these being established in the more settled districts throughout the province, or wherever there are available twenty children who have succeeded in passing the high school entrance examination.

The total cost of education for the year was $3,519,014, of which amount the cities, municipalities, rural and assisted school districts contributed $1,865,218, while the grant from the provincial treasury amounted to $1,653,796.

Manual Training and Domestic Science Centres

64 manual training centres.

51 Instructors of manual training.

6,255 pupils from elementary schools receiving instruction.

964 pupils from high schools.

45 domestic science centres.

38 Instructors in domestic science.

4,986 pupils from elementary schools receiving instruction.

1,263 pupils from high schools.

Night schools are held throughout the province in the following places:

Burnaby, Coal Creek, Cumberland, Deadwood, Fernie, Kelowna, Ladysmith, Nelson, Nanaimo, New Westminster, Saanich, Trail, Union Bay, Vancouver, South Vancouver, and Victoria.

In King Edward High School, Vancouver, there is a technical course for boys, and a household science course for girls. There is a prospect of great development from these two courses, and it is confidently expected that many other high schools will follow the example of Vancouver.—Alexander Robinson, LL.D., superintendent.

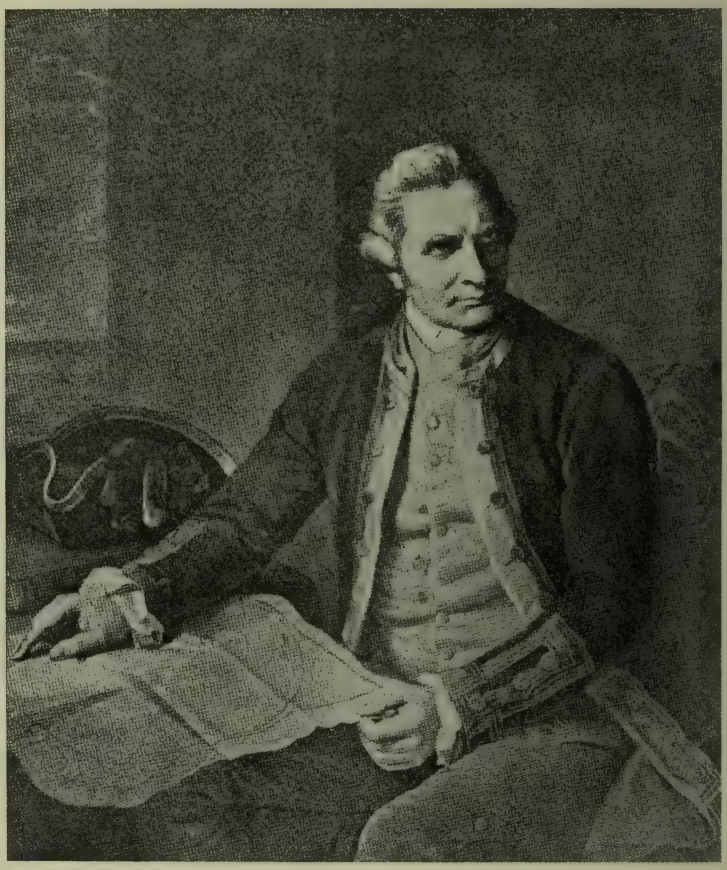
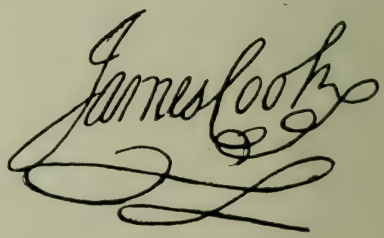
The University of British Columbia is an integral part of the Provincial system of education. It supplements and completes the instruction and training given in the elementary, high and vocational schools of the Province. The development of the highest type of Canadian citizenship is its fundamental aim. Its purpose is to establish on the British Pacific Coast constantly improving facilities for developing scholarship and culture, and maintaining high standards of thought and conduct. These are the prime essentials of university education, towards the promotion of which all academic effort must contribute.

As means to these ends, the University offers to every resident of British Columbia, at a minimum of expense, opportunity for acquiring a thorough education in the liberal arts, and practical training specifically adapted to the requirements, conditions and resources of the Province. It not only undertakes to furnish instruction in the various branches of a liberal education, but to relate that education, through its technical departments, to the life, industry and development of British Columbia. Further, it aims to vitalize its teaching by contributing its share to the general advancement of knowledge, through the prosecution and encouragement of research. In several important directions the University has already proved its value as an investigational institution.

The University was established by an Act of the Provincial Legislature in 1908. This Act provides that the institution shall give instruction in all branches of a liberal education, andd qualify for egrees in Science, Commerce, Arts, Literature, Law, Medicine and other branches of knowledge, and that all such instruction shall be of a type designed to be of greatest service to the residents of British Columbia. Control of the institution is vested in the Chancellor, education, and qualify for degrees in stitution is non-sectarian, and women students are admitted on terms of equality with men. It is the sole degree-conferring body in the Province.





CAPTAIN COOK, R.N.
Taken from the Portrait in Sir W. H. Wharton's "Voyage of the Endeavour"

Early History of British Columbia

Named by Her Majesty Queen Victoria in 1858. In the "Letters of Queen Victoria," which were published in 1907, appears one having an historical interest for this province. It is dated Osborne, 24th July, 1858, and was addressed by the Queen to Sir E. Bulwer-Lytton. At that time objections were being made in France to the name of New Caledonia being given to the proposed colony between the Pacific and the Rocky Mountains. The Queen wrote:

"The Queen has received Sir E. Bulwer-Lytton's letter. If the name of New Caledonia is objected to as being already borne by another colony or island claimed by the French, it may be better to give the new colony west of the Rocky Mountains another name. New Hanover, New Cornwall and New Georgia appear from the maps to be names of subdivisions of that country, but do not appear on all maps. The only name which is given to the whole territory in every map the Queen has consulted is 'Columbia,' but as there exists also a Columbia in South America, and the citizens of the United States call their country also Columbia, at least in poetry, 'British Columbia' might be, in the Queen's opinion, the best name."

And in this way and for the reasons stated the province was named British Columbia by Queen Victoria.

As every important event, however remote, which has transpired on this coast since the discovery of the Pacific Ocean by Balboa has had an influence directly or indirectly on the country as it is today, the reader is referred back to Balboa himself, and with his discovery as a starting point, is carried on to the present time through a long list of voyages, discoveries, conquests, explorations, overland journeys, and the other more important events of a national or political character, including also a number of matters of individual and general interest as well.

In 1592 the Strait of Juan de Fuca, at the entrance to the Strait of Georgia, between Vancouver Island and the British Columbia mainland, was said to have been discovered by a navigator whose name it bears, but no authentic records are extant of visits to the coast of British Columbia prior to those of Bodega and Heceta in 1775 and of Captain Cook's third voyage in 1778.

The third voyage of Captain James Cook, undertaken in 1776, extended to the northwest coast in 1778. The well-known circumnavigator was commissioned by the British Government to examine the coast line from about 45 degrees north to the Arctic Ocean for alleged inland openings to the eastward. Through prevailing bad weather in March, 1778, he passed, unnoticed, the Strait of Juan de Fuca, and proceeding northward, discovered and named Nootka Sound, Prince William's Sound and Cook's Inlet.

One of the events determining the political fate of the northwest coast arose out of the traffic in furs, following the voyage of Captain Cook.

To the North West Company and its successor, the Hudson's Bay Company, belongs the credit for the final establishment of British supremacy throughout the northern Pacific Coasts.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie, after whom the Mackenzie River was named, was the first white man or citizen of any country to traverse the northern continent from ocean to ocean, which he did almost wholly on foot. He reached the Pacific in the vicinity of Bella Coola on July 20, 1793. He was followed, south of the line, by Lewis and Clark, who, in 1805, keeping to the Missouri River, and after crossing the Rocky Mountains to the Columbia River, reached the mouth of the latter. The ill-fated Astor expedition came on the heels of Lewis and Clark, in 1811.

Several fearful tragedies in which the Indians were concerned are recorded to have taken place on this coast when the fur trade was at the height of prosperity. One was the destruction in 1803 of the American ship Boston by the natives of Nootka Sound, all the crew being murdered with the exception of the armourer, Jewitt, and the sail-maker, Thompson, who were kept in slavery four years by the Chief Maquinna of Vancouver and Quadra's day. In 1805 the American ship Atahualpa, of Rhode Island, was attacked by the savages of Millbank Sound, and her captain, mate and six seamen were killed, after which the other seamen succeeded in repelling the assailants and saving the vessel. In the same manner the Tonquin, of Boston, was, in June, 1811, attacked by the natives whilst at anchor in Clayoquot Sound, and with one exception the whole of the crew murdered.

The period between 1795, after the abandonment of Nootka, and 1818, is marked only by the arrival of numerous trading vessels, principally British and American, but including those of others nations as well. Subsequent to 1818, the history of the coast to 1846 is practically the history of the North West and Hudson's Bay Companies, and so far as the territory on the coast of what is British Columbia is concerned, that period may be extended to 1858. During the long interval of fifty years the principal voyages were in ships trading on behalf of the latter corporation.

The long-drawn-out period of diplomacy respecting the territorial limits of Great Britain, Russia and the United States, included the limits of Russian America (now known as Alaska), settled by the Anglo-Russian convention of 1825, with its further developments of the Behring Sea and Alaska boundary disputes, eventually settled by arbitration; and the Oregon boundary question, out of which the San Juan difficulty grew—the first of which was settled by treaty in 1846, and the second by the arbitrament of the Emperor of Germany in 1872.

In the early history of the northwest coast the three important factors were: First, the search for the northwest passage, the practical solution of which was finally evolved by the building of the Canadian Pacific; second, the fur-trading period, from the date of the royal charter to the Hudson's Bay Company, in 1670, to that of the abrogation of the same in British Columbia in 1859, and the purchase of Rupert's Land by the Imperial Government in 1869; third, the claims to territory advanced by the three great powers mentioned and the diplomatic negotiations arising therefrom.

There is, in addition, the story of the founding of the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia, after the gold-seekers had intruded upon the ancient preserves of the fur-hunters and had almost in a day swept away the sovereignty of the Hudson's Bay Company.

Under new organization, in 1821, and for purposes of trade and control, the Hudson's Bay Company divided the fur-bearing country into three great departments presided over by chief factors, namely: The Northern, Southern, and Western, and the Minor Department of Montreal, which included trading-posts in Canada on the borders of the settlements and down the coast of Labrador. The depot for the Western Department, which included all the territory between the watershed of the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Ocean and the Russian territory on the north and Mexico on the south, was established in the first place at Vancouver, on the Columbia River, and afterwards removed to Victoria. The trading-posts on the coast of British Columbia were strongly fortified, and large farms, gristmills, sawmills, tanneries, fisheries, etc., were established for cattle-raising and business in several parts of the country. In 1863 the sale of the Hudson's Bay Company's stock and assets to the International Financial Society brought the days of their power practically to a close. History will accord to the Hudson's Bay Company its due meed of approbation for its wise and beneficent dealings with the Indians, thereby preparing them for the peaceful advent of white settlers; and equally so for its methods of training to labor and utility which now constitutes the means of livelihood in the settled sections of British Columbia.

It was during this period of Hudson's Bay Company rule that two important events in the commercial and industrial development of the Pacific Coast are to be noted. One was the arrival of the Beaver, the first steamship to enter the western ocean, in 1835. The other was the discovery of coal in the vicinity of Fort Rupert, where is was first prospected for by the Hudson's Bay Company. Boyd Gilmour and his nephew, Robert Dunsmuir, later Hon. Robert Dunsmuir and the founder of the Dunsmuir millions, came there from Scotland under contract as coal-mining experts for the purpose, in 1851. The coal seams in that locality not being found to be sufficiently thick to warrant exploitation, the plant and scene of operations were shifted to Nanaimo, which became the nucleus of an industry on Vancouver Island since developed to very important proportions, for the first few years under the aegis of the Hudson's Bay Company, and, after 1862, under the control of the Vancouver Coal Company and its successors, and Robert Dunsmuir and his sons and their successors.

Prior to the conclusion of the Oregon treaty on June 15, 1846, which fixed the boundary line between the United States and Great Britain at the 49th parallel, the Hudson's Bay Company, anticipating the result under which Fort Vancouver, their chief Pacific depot and distributing centre, established since 1824, became American territory, decided to remove their headquarters to within British limits. Victoria, at the southernmost end of Vancouver Island, was selected at the instance of Senior Chief Factor James Douglas.

The site of the present city of Victoria was known as Camosun, being the Indian name of the locality, the significance of which, however, is not known. It was chosen originally not with the view of becoming a city, but as a spot favorable for the erection of a fort, which was built in 1843. It was at first known as Fort Camosun, but was shortly changed to Fort Victoria in honor of the Queen.

On January 13, 1849, a charter was granted to the Hudson's Bay Company.

In 1849 Vancouver Island was proclaimed a British colony, ostensible inducements to settlement being extended to emigrants from Europe and elswhere. In the same year Mr. Richard Blanshard was appointed and proclaimed the first Governor of the new colony, but his term of office was short and unsatisfactory, and in November, 1851, he returned to England, leaving the authority in the hands of a Provisional Council.

Before the close of the year, Mr. James Douglas, chief factor of the Hudson's Bay Company, was appointed Governor, and, at the instance of the home government, called together in 1856 a representative assembly by whom the affairs of the colony were successfully administered.

During the early days of colonial government on Vancouver Island, the mainland, known in a vague way as New Caledonia, still remained Indian territory under the control of the Hudson's Bay Company. On August 20, 1858, by Imperial edict, it was named British Columbia, with boundaries as at present established. By order of the Queen-in-Council, dated September 2, 1858, Mr. James Douglas was made Governor and empowered to make provision for its due administration. On November 3, 1858, proclamation was made revoking the Crown grant of May 3, 1838, to the Hudson's Bay Company for exclusive trading with the Indians in New Caledonia. On November 19, 1858, the legislative birthday of British Columbia was enacted with the swearing in of officials under the auspices of Governor Douglas and Chief Justice Matthew Baillie Begbie, the scene of the ceremony being Fort Langley, the presumptive capital of the new colony.

Until 1864, Governor Douglas, assisted by certain officials sent from Great Britain, including Lieutenant-Colonel Moody, commander of the forces, and chief commissioner of lands and works—with latent powers as lieutenant-governor—Matthew Baillie Begbie, as chief justice; Hon. Wymond Hamley, collector of customs, and other heads, administered the affairs of the new colony. In 1864, in response to demands from the people for some form of representative government—not favored by Douglas—a legislative council was brought into existence, which had three sessions at New Westminster before union was accomplished.

Along with the chief officials from England came the Royal Engineers, a corps of 400 strong, whose headquarters were at Sapperton and whose mission was to assist in the protection and development of the new colony. The Royal Engineers did excellent work in building roads and bridges and in surveying and making other public improvements. Among other important undertakings the Cariboo wagon road was begun by them from Yale, and in a large measure constructed by them or under their supervision.

Touching the selection of a site for the capital of the mainland, Langley was at first chosen, and town lots were sold by auction; but this was abandoned in favor of the present site of New Westminster. There was a dispute in official circles as to the name by which the latter was to be called. "But so great already was the jealousy of Victoria against the projected new city," says Sir Henry Crease, "that Queensborough was considered by the Colonial Secretary, Mr. W. A. G. Young, as too nearly a paraphrase of Victoria, the only permissible queen city, and after a great inkshed and a long, acrid correspondence, the name was proclaimed to be not the Queen borough (Victoria), but Queensborough, which was quite another thing. The dispute did not stop there, and finally it was referred to Her Majesty, and 'Queensborough' was converted into a Royal City of British Columbia, under the name of New Westminster, and on the faith of that many invested their all in it." Lots were sold at high prices by auction, on the understanding, so it is stated, that all the money from the proceeds of sale should be applied to opening up the streets and clearing the lots of timber "as large and as dense as the world could possibly produce," but the understanding was ignored and the purchasers were obliged to tax themselves to do the work for lack of the money which the government applied to other purposes.

The next logical step in the progress of the two colonies was their union. At first, it was strongly favored by Victoria and Vancouver Island and opposed by New Westminster and the lower mainland. Vancouver Island was comparatively small in area and circumscribed in opportunity. Victoria, being by far the more populous, wealthy and influential of the two cities, would naturally be the controlling factor of the united colonies, and the addition of the mainland would increase its commercial and political prestige. On the other hand, sectional feeling and local jealousy of Victoria and the Island of Vancouver developed a spirit of opposition in New Westminster and district. Besides, when the issue had reached its most feverish stage, in 1865, the mainland colony was the most prosperous. At the bottom of it all, however, was the question of which should be the capital city. New Westminster was afraid of the overpowering influence of Victoria, and Victoria was very hopeful and confident of its own chances on that score. There were two very important factors favorable to union, which finally prevailed. The expenses of civil government in both colonies were very high, and union meant a great saving in that respect. Governor Douglas from the outset strongly supported union and his views were shared by the Imperial Government, whose influence was all but paramount. The upper country had little interest in the subject, and favored, if anything, Victoria as a choice between two capitals. On the lower mainland it came to be felt at last that the uncertainty was interfering seriously with progress. In 1866 a petition in favor of union was signed by 450 persons. In the writer's "Life of Sir James Douglas" the following appears:

"In the end the British Government decided the question, and the authority of the executive government and council of British Columbia was extended over Vancouver Island, the number of members of the council being increased to twenty-three. The customs regulations of the mainland colony were likewise extended to the island. Other ordinances remained for a time as before. The original authority of the Governor to make regulations for peace, order and good government was not restricted. The act bore date of August 6, 1866. A short time after, the attorney-general of Vancouver Island introduced a bill for assimilating its laws with those of British Columbia. There then remained only the question of the seat of government—a rock which the act of union had discreetly avoided. Amid the violent altercations of partisans, the choice fell on Victoria, and though the bitterness of the defeat rankled long on the mainland, no effort subsequently availed to secure a revision of the decision."

Events moved rapidly thereafter. Union in British Columbia was brought about contemporaneously with the movement in Eastern Canada towards Confederation, the central idea of which was the consolidation of the whole of British North America under one central government of Canada. No sooner, therefore, had union been accomplished locally than an agitation started in favor of Confederation, and it was an issue which, generally speaking, excited more interest than the lesser one already decided. Although sentiment in Vancouver Island, on the whole, was unfavorable to Confederation, the entire mainland, including Cariboo, then an important factor, was practically a unit in its favor. Old-time elements, represented by Sir James Douglas and Dr. J. S. Helmcken, the latter of whom was still an important public figure and widely influential, were in opposition, to some extent as a matter of sentiment easily understood; but in the case of Dr. Helmcken opposition was founded on something more substantial. He did not think the time ripe and argued that by waiting until the system had worked out satisfactorily in Eastern Canada, British Columbia would receive more consideration and could demand better terms than by applying for admission at the outset; and it must be admitted that subsequent events proved that there was much wisdom in his contention.

To go back a bit in the narrative, in order to make it complete, James Douglas retired as Governor of Vancouver Island in September, 1863, and was succeeded by Arthur Kennedy, who took up the duties of office in March, 1864. He continued as Governor of Vancouver Island for a time, and in 1864 was succeeded by Frederick Seymour, formerly Governor of Honduras. Seymour strongly opposed the union of the colonies at first, but finally acquiesced. Upon the union of the two colonies, he became Governor of British Columbia, and was as strongly opposed to Confederation as he had been to union. James Douglas was knighted as a recognition of his eminent services, an honor that was richly merited, and upon his retirement took the opportunity he had long craved for, of visiting England and his old home in Scotland and of taking an extended trip on the continent of Europe. Upon his return to Victoria he sought the seclusion of private life and no longer took a part in public affairs.

To quote again from the pages of the "Life of Sir James Douglas," (Morang's series of the "Makers of Canada"): "On December 17, 1867, the legislature of British Columbia assembled for the first time at Victoria. The influence of Seymour, who had succeeded to the governorship of the united colonies, had hitherto retained for New Westminster this coveted distinction. Having yielded in one matter, the Governor and the opinion which he represented saw fit to bow to the majority in another and more important. No sooner had the confederation of the eastern colonies become an accomplished fact, than the admission of British Columbia to the Dominion of Canada was keenly debated. The Governor opposed it. A small party which favored annexation with the United States opposed it. The body of office-holders opposed it vigorously. At the first, the activity of these succeeded in shelving the question. Nevertheless, as early as March, 1868, a resolution passed the council in favor of the union, provided fair and equitable terms could be obtained. Public meetings at Victoria, Barkerville and other points, soon after, gave solid endorsation to the project. The sympathy of the Dominion itself was obtained, with special reference to the taking over of the intervening territory. A confederation league was formed and a convention held under its auspices at Yale. Here, perhaps for the first time, the movement found its full voice, the existing form of government being denounced as a despotism for which the only remedy was asserted to be the immediate admission of British Columbia into the Dominion and the establishment of responsible institutions."

(Just here, it may be stated parenthetically that the sentiments at the Yale convention represented rather the lucubrations of extreme politicians than the solid views of the people of the province. There were no very substantial grievances against the government, in the same sense as confederation came about in old Canada as a result of an impossible system in which Upper and Lower Canada were tied together in an unnatural and conflicting alliance and continuously locked horns. The real thing which made confederation popular in British Columbia and carried the day for it was the hope afforded of ending a hopeless isolation by railway communication with the Atlantic seaboard. There was very little of sentiment mixed up in the agitation and certainly relief from misgovernment or a bad system of government, though a contributing factor, was not of itself sufficient to have decided the people in favor of a change.—R.E.G.)

"But the most potent of all the arguments for union was the promise which it held out of promoting overland communication with Canada. This it was that finally silenced the opposition of Seymour. In any event, the death of the Governor in 1869 led to the appointment of an avowed advocate of confederation, Anthony Musgrave, previously Governor of Newfoundland, and with an experience of administration gained in the West Indies. A tour of the colony which the new officer immediately undertook confirmed the view that the overwhelming sentiment of the population was in favor of confederation. On the back of this came formal instructions from England that the Governor should take steps, as he properly and constitutionally could, either in conjunction with the Governor-General of Canada or otherwise, to promote the favorable consideration of the question. When the council, which had been reconstituted in 1869, met for the session of 1870, Musgrave had a series of resolutions prepared for its consideration. In a memorable debate which began on March 9, 1870, and lasted until the 25th, the terms on which British Columbia should become a part of the Dominion were definitely determined. On July 7 the news was received from Ottawa that the articles had been agreed upon, the construction of the transcontinental railway guaranteed, and the delegates, who had been sent to present the claims of the province already on their way home.

"The provisions upon which British Columbia entered confederation ensured in the first place that the Dominion should assume all debts and liabilities of the colony, allowance being made for the small amount of these compared with the original indebtedness of the other provinces. For the support of the provincial government an annual subsidy of $35,000, with an additional grant of 80 cents per head on an estimated population of 60,000, was promised, the latter allowance to be increased pro rata until the population reached 400,000. Canada was to defray all charges in respect to the salaries of the Lieutenant-Governor and of the judges of the superior and county or district courts—likewise of department of customs, the postal and telegraph services, the fisheries, the militia, the geological survey, the penitentiary, the marine department, the care of the Indians, and other matters pertaining to the general government. A fortnightly steam mail service between Victoria and San Francisco, and a weekly service with Olympia, were to be maintained by the Dominion. But the portion of the agreement which was of most absorbing interest to British Columbia was that which set forth in detail the terms on which the railway across the continent, now the dream of every section of the community, should be built, and which provided, in brief, that it should unite the seaboard of British Columbia with the railway system of Canada, and that its construction should be begun within two years of the date of union, the province conveying the necessary public lands along the line in trust to the Dominion Government. The Dominion also guaranteed the interest for ten years on a maximum sum of £100,000 to be expended on the construction of a graving dock at Esquimalt. The new province was given three seats in the Senate and six in the House of Commons. Finally, it was agreed that the constitution of the executive authority and of the legislature of British Columbia should continue until altered under the British North America Act, it being understood that the Dominion Government would consent to the introduction of responsible government when desired by the people of British Columbia, and that it was the intention of the British Columbia Government to amend the existing constitution of the legislature by providing that a majority of its members should be elective. The union was to take place on a date to be fixed by Her Majesty on addresses from the legislature of British Columbia and of the parliament of Canada, the former being granted leave to specify in its address the electoral districts for which the first election of members to serve in the House of Commons should take place.

"The document containing the terms of union reached Victoria on July 18, 1870. Meantime a representative had been despatched to England to secure the needed change in the constitution of the colony and the guarantee of the Imperial Government for the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. For the election of the council, which for the first time in the history of the united colonies was preponderatingly representative in character, the colony was divided into eight electoral districts, consisting of Victoria city, Victoria district, Nanaimo, New Westminster, Hope, Yale and Lytton, Lillooet and Clinton, and Cariboo and Kootenay. Of these, Victoria city returned two members. The election was held in November, and the council met in January, 1871. The chief work of the session was, of course, the ratification of the terms of union previously agreed upon. This done, an act was passed abolishing the council and establishing a legislative assembly in its stead, the latter to be elected once in every four years and to consist of 24 members chosen by 12 electoral districts. Thus it was effected that responsible government should come into operation at the first session of the legislature subsequent to the union with Canada. A qualification and franchise act was passed and the council prorogued on March 28. On the same date, the resolutions for the admission of the colony were moved in the Canadian House of Commons, and, after a four days' discussion, were adopted. On July 1, 1871, the first Dominion Day was celebrated in British Columbia."

DATES IN OUR HISTORY

AGENT-GENERAL FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA
B. C. House, 1 and 2 Regent St., London, Eng.
Agent-General ..... F. C. Wade
Secretary ..... Wm. A. Blair

The Department of Finance, as the name indicates, has control of all the province's financial transactions, the levying and collection of taxes, and the making of all disbursements. The general taxes collected through the agency of the several assessors and collectors throughout the province are paid into the treasury, and all receipts from licence and other fees and royalties collected by other departments are also dealt with by this department.

The Surveyor of Taxes and Inspector of Revenue is in charge of the assessors and collectors in the thirty assessment districts into which the province is at present divided. He has general oversight of the collection of all taxes. This branch of the department has been reorganized with a view to a more thorough and complete assessment of all taxable properties, and collection of all taxes and arrears from every source. During the summer of 1918 a number of specially qualified assessors were engaged in the making of a new assessment of all real property in the unorganized portions of the province, on which the 1919 Rolls are based.

The Controlling and Audit branch of the department has been reorganized by the present minister and is now exceptionally strong. At the head of the branch is the Comptroller-General, an officer of the Legislative Assembly, and responsible to it alone. The general duties of the Comptroller-General include the exercise of general supervision over all matters relating to this branch of the service; responsibility for the proper audit of all accounts, both at Victoria and, through the medium of travelling auditors, in all the Government agencies throughout the province; and general direction of the keeping of the accounts of the province. These accounts have to be kept by double entry and in such manner that there shall be shown at all times the standing of legislative appropriations and of all other accounts, and the precise condition of the province. By the adoption of the pre-audit system, the Comptroller-General has to be satisfied as to every proposed payment before the payment is made, thus securing a real control over the expenditure of public moneys. Under the Comptroller-General, in this connection, is an Auditor of Disbursements. For the purpose of exercising an audit over the collection of revenue, and further ensuring that collections are fully made, there is under the Comptroller-General an Auditor of Revenue.

The third division of this branch is that of the Purchasing Agent. Through this official all purchases, of whatever kind, which may be required for public service, are made, and under his control is all movable properties of the province. It is anticipated that a very large saving will be effected through the creation of this division of the Controlling and Audit branch. Duplication of plant and materials will be avoided; plant and machinery lying idle at any point can be moved to where they will be of service, and all old or surplus property will be sold instead of being allowed to deteriorate and become a source of loss.

Inspection of trust companies is within the jurisdiction of the Minister of Finance, as is also the inspection of insurance companies. The latter duties are now assigned to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, thus effecting considerable saving without any loss in the efficiency of the service rendered or the strictness of the inspection of these companies. The Inspector of Trust Companies is in charge of the collection of probate and succession duties, a large and important source of revenue.

The collection of the amusement tax is made through the Censor of Moving Pictures, who, for this purpose, is to that extent made an official of the Department of Finance.

Department of Industries

The powers, duties and functions of this department shall be as follows:

(a) To provide for industrial research; to co-ordinate as far as possible all industrial investigation and research; and to collect and disseminate data emanating therefrom:

(b) To acquire and utilize in arts and manufactures the knowledge already existent in other countries:

(c) To carry out an economic survey of the natural resources of the province, and to furnish advice in regard to the best methods of utilizing such resources:

(d) To furnish advice with regard to the best methods for attacking industrial problems, for inducing industrial improvements, and for facilitating and encouraging manufacture in suitable localities:

(e) To co-ordinate various industries so as to obtain the best combined results and the exchange between user and manufacturer of manufacturing improvements and operating experience, and to bring together producer, manufacturer and purchaser:

(f) To publish technical, scientific and statistical information, and to encourage technical and industrial study by all possible means:

(g) To enquire and report on and aid in the establishment of any industries in British Columbia where it appears that such industries can profitably be carried on:

(h) To consider and initiate scientific researches in connection with or for the promotion of primary or secondary industries in the province:

(i) To aid by loan, guarantee, or guarantee of securities on approved plans any enterprise calculated to encourage the economic and commercial manufacture of the natural resources or products of the province:

(j) To consider and deal with plans submitted by representative bodies of returned soldiers of British Columbia for promoting and providing for employment through the establishment of new industries and the development of existing industries:

(k) Generally for any other purpose calculated to promote the economic development of the province.

There shall be created an Advisory Council, to be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, consisting of not more than seven members, representative of the financial, commercial, industrial, manufacturing and labor interests of the province, who shall hold office for one year, and who shall advise and co-operate with the Minister of Industries and Industrial Commissioner under this Act. The Industrial Commissioner shall be chairman of the board. A majority in number of the members of the Advisory Council shall constitute a quorum. No salaries shall be paid to members of the Advisory Council, but reasonable and actual travelling expenses may be paid.

Notwithstanding any law or statute to the contrary, a member of the Legislature may be appointed as a member of the Advisory Council, and as such receive his expenses as in this section provided without thereby vacating his seat or contravening the provisions of the "Constitution Act."

Industrial Aid

The Minister of Industries may, upon the recommendation of the Advisory Council and with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, authorize and agree upon assistance to any person, partnership, association, company or corporation, by way of loan, guarantee, or guarantee of securities, upon such terms and subject to such conditions as he may think fit, for the purpose of aiding and developing industries and manufactories within the scope of this Act; and with like approval the Minister of Industries may establish, maintain, and operate such industries and manufactories.

For the purpose of providing funds to be used in making advances by way of loan pursuant to this Act, there is hereby created a special fund in the Treasury, to be known as the "Industrial Development Fund," which shall consist of:—

(a) Such moneys as may be appropriated by or under the authority of the Legislature for the purposes of this Act:

(b) All sums received by way of interest on or repayment of any advance made by way of loan pursuant to this Act.

Production of Various Minerals Briefly Reviewed

In order to indicate in a general way the sources of the various minerals mined in the province and to give an idea of some of the conditions that affected their production, and, incidentally, brief information concerning the larger known mineral deposits occurring in British Columbia, the next following comments are submitted.

GOLD

Placer Gold.—The recovery of placer gold for 1918 is estimated at $308,000, of which practically all is obtained in the Cariboo and Cassiar districts, only about one-tenth of the total coming from the other districts. An approximate apportionment is as follows: From Cariboo District, $82,000; Atlin Division of Cassiar District, $200,000; Stikine and Liard, $5,000; remaining parts of the Province, $21,000. It may be that a larger yield will be shown, but this cannot be definitely stated until after the final returns of the season's operations shall have been received. This estimated production for 1917 shows the large decrease from the preceding year of $188,000, or 38 per cent.

During the last four years the production of placer gold in the Province has steadily decreased. The chief reason is to be found in the economic conditions of high prices for labor and supplies, which made placer-mining less profitable than in former years. Also shortage of labor handicapped operations. So many men left for active service in the war that the number of individuals mining in a small way was materially less than in former years.

No definite information is available regarding the Atlin Division, but it is known that the production was considerably less than in 1917, and that some of the former operating companies were closed down during the year.

In the Cariboo District about as many properties were working as formerly, but the supply of water for hydraulicking was less than in former years. Owing to the unusual weather conditions that prevailed during the hydraulic-mining season, the snowfall being only light to begin with, and the season very late, actual hydraulicking did not commence until about the end of May. Then there was a spell of very hot winds and rains that produced an abnormally high freshet for a couple of weeks, with the result that most of the water was rushed off in the freshet. The following dry season practically put an end to hydraulicking, and the fall rains did not help materially. Values kept up to average, but the yardage was so reduced that the actual production in the Cariboo Division was not much more than one-half of the previous year.

There are undoubtedly many deposits of gold-bearing gravels in the Atlin, Cariboo, and other districts, which, under normal conditions, will yet be worked either by hydraulicking or dredging. The increased demand for gold and probably lowering of costs now that the war is over should cause renewed interest in placer-making.

Lode Gold.—The quantity of lode gold produced in 1918 is estimated at $3,250,895, as compared with $2,367,190 in 1917, an increase of $883,705, or 37 per cent. It must be remembered, however, that the 1917 gold production was abnormally low, the output for the years preceding the war varying from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. The increase in 1918 over the preceding year is largely due to the entry into the producers' list of a new mine—the Surf Inlet property of the Belmont-Surf Inlet Mines—which made an output of about 43,000 oz. But for this added production the gold output for 1918 would have been practically the same as in 1917.

The Rossland mines, which prior to 1917 contributed annually about one-half of the output of lode gold, made about the same production in 1918 as in the preceding year; during these two years about one-quarter the normal output was made. The mines were worked somewhat irregularly during the first six months of the year; after that, although development was continued, only small shipments were made.

The following table shows the gold production of 1917 and the estimated production for 1918:—

	1917.	1918.
	Oz.	Oz.
Boundary-Yale	60,010	56,734
Rossland	33,290	38,096
Skeena	9,805	48,621
Coast (Southern)	3,793	5,800
Lillooet	3,092	2,140
Nelson	2,521	4,300
All others	2,012	1,585
Totals	114,523	157,276

From the above table it will be seen there are increases in Skeena, Rossland, Coast (Southern), and Nelson Districts, while there are decreases in the gold production from Boundary-Yale and Lillooet districts.

The increase in the Nelson Division is due to a larger tonnage from the Yankee Girl mine, near Ymir. The production from the Nickel Plate mine, at Hedley, is expected to have been about 35,000 oz., practically the same as in the previous year. The small decrease in the Boundary-Yale District as compared with 1917 is due to a smaller tonnage of copper ore carrying low gold values being treated at the Granby smelter.

SILVER.

The quantity of silver produced is estimated to have been about 2,886,861 oz., worth $2,601,120, a decrease from the production of 1917 of 42,355 oz., but, owing to the higher market value of silver, an increase in value of $335,371.

The market price of silver gradually rose during the year, the average for January being 88.702 cents an ounce, while in December it was about 101.125 cents. The average for the pear was 96.77 cents, the highest that silver has been for many years back. The prospect of silver maintaining its present price of about $1 an ounce is good, and in this respect the silver market is in marked contrast to the other metals, the future prices of which are uncertain.

The approximate silver production of the various districts for the year is estimated to have been as follows:—

	Oz.
Slocan and Slocan City	1,353,265
Skeena	306,422
Fort Steele	288,540
Boundary-Yale	248,085
Ainsworth	225,020
Windermere-Golden	139,250
Coast	115,120
Omineca	96,758
Trail Creek	58,484
All others	55,917
Total	2,886,861

The Slocan District is again far in the lead of all other districts in silver production, 47 per cent. of the total being credited to the Slocan. The figures for this year indicate a decreased production for the Slocan, as compared with last year, of about 12 per cent. A considerably lessened output from the Standard mine, at Silverton, accounts for some of this decrease.

The largest producer in the Slocan was the Surprise, followed by the Queen Bess and the Standard. There were nearly 40 shipping mines in the district in 1918.

The estimated figures for the year would seem to show small increases in output from Ainsworth, Boundary-Yale, Fort Steele, Coast, Omineca, and the Windermere-Golden districts, but the decrease in Slocan more than offsets all these small increases.

About 50 per cent. of the silver-output from the Boundary District comes from the Granby Company's mines at Phoenix. Other mines contributing are the Mother Lode, Sally, and Union.

The silver production from Trail Creek comes from the smelting of the gold-copper ores of Rossland camp, which carry about ½ oz. of silver to the ton.

The Skeena production comes almost entirely from the Granby Company's Hidden Creek mine, at Anyox.

The Coast production of silver comes from the smelting of copper ores carrying low values in the precious metals. As a larger tonnage of copper ore was smelted, the silver-output shows an increase.

About 75 per cent. of the total Provincial output of silver comes from the treatment of silver-lead-zinc ores and the balance mainly from the smelting of gold-copper ores carrying silver.

LEAD.

The total amount of lead produced in 1918 is estimated to have been 43,949,661 lb., valued at $2,944,627. This represents, as compared with the previous year, an increase in quantity of 6,642,196 lb., but owing to the lower market price of lead a decrease in value of $6,393.

The market price of lead rose and fell during the year; the average for January was 6.782 cents a pound; in July a fixed price of 8.05 cents was established, which was held until the armistice was signed. Since then the lead market has been very dull; the producers hold large stocks and very few sales are being made. The nominal price declined to somewhere about 6 cents at the end of the year. The average price for the year was about 7.44 cents a pound.

The following table shows the estimated production of lead according to districts:—

	Lb.
Fort Steele	19,340,800
Slocan	11,665,700
Ainsworth	7,157,400
Windermere-Golden	3,031,000
Nelson	2,146,581
All others	608,180
Total	43,949,661

The above figures show, as compared with the previous year, that the lead production in 1918 was increased in Fort Steele, Ainsworth, and Windermere-Golden districts, and a very slight decrease in the Slocan and Nelson outputs.

Fort Steele Division again leads all other districts. The Sullivan mine contributes nearly all of this production as a rule, but this year over 1,000,000 lb. came from the North Star.

In the Slocan District the heaviest producer in 1918 was the Surprise, followed by the Queen Bess, the Galena Farm, and the Standard.

In the Ainsworth Division the largest producer was again the Blue Bell, with an output of about 3,000,000 lb., followed by the Florence, with approximately 2,000,000 lb.; the Highland and Cork-Province, each with over 500,000 lb.; and about fifteen smaller shippers.

The lead production of Nelson Division comes almost entirely from the Emerald mine, and this mine produced about the same as in the previous year.

The production from Windermere-Golden is nearly twice that of the previous year, due to an increased output from the Paradise mine and a production of about 1,000,000 lb. from the Couverapee mine, at Field.

COPPER.

The amount of copper estimated to have been produced in 1918 shows, as compared with the previous year, an increase in quantity, but, owing to the lower market selling-price, a decrease in value. The production is estimated at 63,387,010 lb., which is 4,379,445 lb. greater than the 1917 output; the value for this year is $15,681,946, which, compared with $16,038,256 made in 1917, shows a decrease of $356,310. It is most encouraging, however, that, notwithstanding lowered marekt prices, the Provincial production of copper shows an increase in the quantity of metal produced of about 7.4 per cent. over the previous year.

During the whole of 1918 the price of copper in the United States was controlled by the maximum price fixed by the United States War Industries Board. From January to July the fixed price was 23.5 cents a pound, and from July until the end of the year it was 26 cents, the average for the year being 24.74 cents.

The following table shows the estimated production of copper according to districts:

	Lb.
Skeena Division	30,925,928
Southern Coast District	19,470,760
Boundary-Yale District	10,324,992
Trail Creek Division	2,043,560
Omineca Division	562,000
All others	59,770
Total	63,387,010

The Hidden Creek mines and the smelter at Anyox of the Granby Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company were operated practically continuously throughout the year, although closed for a short time by a strike, which was soon settled. A larger tonnage was treated than in 1917, amounting to approximately 828,000 tons, together with quartz and limestone flux to the extent of some 80,000 tons. With the increased tonnage handled there was a corresponding increase in the output of copper, approximately 30,400,000 lb. being produced, as compared with 27,661,301 lb. in 1917.

In the Boundary District the Granby Company's mines at Phoenix were unable to supply the smelter at Grand Forks with sufficient ore to run the smelter at capacity. The ore reserves of these mines are approaching exhaustion, so that the large-scale production of former years cannot be maintained. Also the high operating costs during 1918 left but little margin of profit in working the low-grade ores at Phoenix. Or, to quote the Granby Company's annual report: "The old Phoenix mine has been run more for patriotism than hope of profits." The tonnage mined and smelted was approximately 444,000 tons, containing about 6,200,000 lb. copper (recovered content), which is a small decrease from the production figures of 1917; the 1917 output was only about one-half that of former years.

The Canada Copper Corporation, operating the Mother Lode mine and smelter at Greenwood, treated a slightly smaller tonnage than in 1917. About 165,000 tons was handled, from which approximately 2,200,000 lb. of copper was recovered, together with low gold and silver contents. Towards the end of the year the smelter was closed, the ore reserves at the Mother Lode mine being exhausted.

The Britannia mine had a very successful year, approximately 750,000 tons of ore being milled, the production of copper from which is estimated at 18,250,000 lb. This is nearly 2,500,000 lb. greater than the 1917 production.

The Marble Bay mine, on Texada island, made about the same production as in 1917; the output is estimated at 740,000 lb.

Half a dozen smaller shippers are listed from the Southern Coast District, but the total copper from this source only amounts to 500,000 lb.

The Omineca Division produced less copper than in 1917; the output is estimated at 562,000 lb.

Copper-mining is now firmly established as the most important form of mining in the Province, and from all indications it should maintain this place for years to come. In 1918 the value of the copper mined exceeded by over $4,000,000 the combined values of all other metals mined, and it formed 38 per cent. of the total value of the mineral production for the year.

It is also to be noted that 80 per cent. of the copper-output is produced on the Coast, which has become the centre of the copper-mining industry, thus replacing the Boundary District, the old centre.

On Vancouver island the amount of copper produced has been very small comparatively, but there are under development at present at Jordan River and near Quatsino Sound two properties on which active development has been carried on with such success as to indicate a large production within a couple of years.

ZINC.

The quantity of zinc estimated to have been produced in 1918 amounted to 36,149,894 lb., which, compared with 41,848,513

lb. produced in 1917, shows a decrease of 5,698,619 lb. The estimate on zinc-output, however, may be low, as it has been difficult to get information regarding shipments to the United States. This production is valued at $2,501,573, which shows a still further proportionate decrease, as compared with the 1917 value of $3,166,259, due to the decreased market price of the metal.

The price of zinc on the New York metal market did not fluctuate greatly during the year. The average price for January was 7.836 cents a pound, and in November 8.491 cents. Since the armistice the market has been inactive, with practically no sales, so that quotations have been nominal. At the end of the year the price had declined to about 7.5 cents a pound.

The following table shows the estimated production of zinc according to districts:—

	Lb.
Fort Steele	22,000,000
Slocan	13,601,954
Omineca	327,940
Ainsworth	220,000
Total	36,149,894

These figures show, as compared with 1917, an increase in the Fort Steele production of a little over 1,000,000 lb., and a decrease of about 5,000,000 lb. in the Slocan output.

The Fort Steele production comes entirely from the Sullivan mine. The ore is treated in the electrolytic zinc plant at Trail.

In the Slocan District the heaviest shipper was again the Standard, with a production of about 7,000,000 lb., which, however, is 3,500,000 lb. less than in 1917. The next largest shipper was the Surprise, followed by the Lucky Jim and the Galena Farm.

The estimate for Ainsworth is only about one-quarter of last year's production, but final figures may bring the output for this Division up considerably.

The Omineca production is mainly a silver-zinc concentrate from the Silver Standard mine at Hazelton.

OTHER MINERALS.

Iron.—The past year has seen a very great demand for iron and steel on the Pacific Coast, the normal demand having been greatly increased by the need for steel in shipbuilding and munitions work, while the usual outside sources have been monopolized by war needs in other parts of the world and the high freight rates have made the lack of local production more pronounced. Consequently, it has been strongly advocated in many quarters that the conditions are favorable for the establishment of an iron-smelting plant somewhere on the British Columbia coast. So far nothing definite has materialized, although there is apparently a prospect of such a plant being established on this Coast. As is well known, there is on the Coast, in the aggregate, an adequate supply of magnetite-iron ore, quite sufficiently free from impurities as to be within the "Bessemer limit," to supply ore for such a plant.

The magnetite-deposits of the Coast have therefore had some attention bestowed on them during the past year; this, however, was mainly confined to examination, with but little development. Bulletin No. 3, 1917, of this Department describes the more important magnetite-deposits of the Coast.

A few hundred tons of bog-iron ore was shipped from a deposit near Mons, on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, to Irondale, Wash., where it was smelted in conjunction with mill cinder and scrap. This ore ran from 40 to 50 per cent. of iron, but was above the Bessemer limit in phosphorus.

Some magnetite ore was also shipped from Texada island to the Irondale furnace.

During the summer months the Provincial Government engaged Dr. Alfred Stansfield, of Montreal, to make a report on the commercial feasibility of smelting British Columbia magnetites in an electric furnace; the abnormal price of iron due to war conditions offering a seeming field for that class of smelting. Dr. Stanfield's report will soon be made public.

Platinum.—The very insistent demand for platinum for war purposes caused a most exhaustive search to be made for it in commercial quantities by the Dominion Government officials. The well-known fact of its wide distribution throughout the Province in connection with our placer-gold deposits giving reasonable hope for such investigations. In connection with this search a number of drill-holes were sunk in the Similkameen District, the final results of which are not yet available.

A small amount of crude platinum was saved as a by-product from placer-gold workings, the exact quantities not being known.

Molybendite.—The urgent demand for molybdenite for war purposes continued throughout the first half of the year, but gradually the market fell away. Since the armistice the market is dormant, like other metal prices, but nominal quotations vary from 75 cents to $1 a pound.

During the year a car-load of molybdenite ore, carrying also gold, cobalt, and arsenic, was shipped from the Hazelton View mine, Hazelton, to the Ottawa Mines Department for treatment. Returns on it have not yet been received. A small shipment of molybdenite was made from the Golconda claim, Osoyoos Mining Division. No other molybdenite shipments have been reported.

Chromite.—About 800 tons of chromite ore, carrying from 30 to 45 per cent. chromic oxide, was shipped from the Mastodon claim, Grand Forks Division; and a deposit on Scotty creek, near Clinton, was opened up, but no shipments made.

With the end of the war, the market for chromite has temporarily collapsed, as large stocks are available, with no purchasers in sight.

Manganese.—Fifteen car-loads of ore, containing from 35 to 50 per cent. manganese, was shipped from the Curle Manganese group, near Kaslo.

A large deposit of good-grade manganese was discovered during the summer near Cowichan lake. No shipments were made.

Non-metallic Minerals. — One hundred tons of fluorspar was shipped from the Rock Candy group, in the Grand Forks Division. This property is owned by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company and is being equipped to make steady shipments in the future. The mineral is shipped to the Trail smelter and is used for making hydrofluoric acid, which is used in the lead refinery.

Shipments of magnesium sulphate (Epsom salt) were made from Spotted lake, Osoyoos Division, but figures have not been obtained. One hundred and seventy tons of magnesium sulphate was shipped from deposits of this material near Clinton.

Deposits of hydromagnesite in the Clinton Division, which are reported to be large and of great purity, have attracted considerable attention during the past year. No shipments have been recorded.

A production of arsenic valued at $20,000 was made by the Nickel Plate mine in 1917, and although no figures have been received, a similar production is expected to have been made in 1918.

STRUCTURAL MATERIALS, ETC.

The output during 1918 of all structural materials, such as cement, lime, building-stone, sand and gravel, brick, and other clay products, will probably show a slight decrease from that of previous years.

The output for 1918 is estimated at $1,000,000, as against $1,204,546 in the preceding year, and $1,299,553 in 1916.

Since 1912, when a production amounting to $3,435,722 was recorded, the output of building materials has steadily declined, due to the cessation of the building trade, brought about by the continued financial depression, and the war. It is probable that the figures have now reached a minimum, and that an output amounting from $1,000,000 to $1,250,000 represents the steady yearly demand for these materials for use in repairs, renewals, and various small demands, without any new construction work. It may be expected, therefore, that the production will remain at about this figure until a period of active construction work again commences in the Province.

Portland cement is at present the most important item in the production of building materials, amounting this year to a little less than $500,000.

The outputs of building-stone, crushed rock, sand and gravel, and red brick have fallen to very low figures. A considerable quantity of firebrick and similar materials is made, principally by the large plant of the Clayburn Company.

COAL AND COKE.

It is estimated that the gross production of coal was 2,572,811 long tons, of which 280,743 tons was made into coke, leaving the net production at 2,292,068 tons. These figures show an increase, as compared with 1917, of 174,096 tons gross and an increase of 142,093 tons net. The quantity of coke made was about 190,656 tons, which is an increase of about 30,751 tons as compared with 1917. For purposes of comparison the following table is shown:—

	Est. 1918.	1917.	1916.	1915.	1914.	1913.
Coal, gross.....tons, 2,240	2,572,811	2,398,715	2,485,580	1,972,580	2,166,428	2,570,760
Less made into coke "	280,743	248,740	401,487	361,451	355,461	433,277
Coal, net ..... "	2,292,068	2,149,975	2,084,093	1,611,129	1,810,967	2,137,483
Coke made ..... "	190,656	159,905	267,725	245,871	234,577	286,045

In these figures for 1918 the output for the month of December has had to be estimated, consequently the final figures may vary from them slightly.

Summarizing the Provincial production of coal, the following table shows the estimated output for 1918:—

	Tons of 2,240 lb.
From Vancouver Island collieries..	1,666,582
From Nicola and Similkameen collieries	174,278
From Crow's Nest District collieries	731,951
Total quantity of coal mined....	2,572,811
Less made into coke.....	280,743
Net quantity of coal produced..	2,292,068

In addition to the above net production of coal, there was made the coke production shown in the following table:—

	Tons of 2,240 lb.
From Vancouver Island collieries..	24,653
From Nicola and Similkameen collieries	Nil
From Crow's Nest District collieries	166,003
Total	190,656

As will be seen by the above figures, the net coal production this year is expected to be some 142,093 tons (2,240 lb.) greater than it was in 1917, and again about reaches the figures prevailing before the war began.

Coke.—The production of coke in 1918 was about 190,656 tons (2,240 lb.), which is 30,751 tons greater than the preceding year, an increase of about 19 per cent.

The coal-mines of the Province have had a fairly good year, interruptions to production being less frequent than in 1917. A strike at Fernie closed the mines during September, but work was started again on October 5th, with the introduction of the single-shift system.

The prospects for the coming year of 1919 are, when metal and mineral prices again become stabilized, that the mining industry in British Columbia should continue to prosper. The established producers are generally in good shape to continue production even at lowered metal prices, and when settled conditions arrive much new development should take place.

British Columbia has very large areas of undeveloped and unprospected mineral lands, and the return of peace will hasten the development of her mineral resources. There will be a considerable accession to the ranks of the prospectors and more capital will be available for legitimate mining development.

BOUNDARIES OF THE MINERAL DISTRICTS

NORTH-WESTERN DISTRICT (No. 1)

Report of George A. Clothier,
Resident Engineer.

INTRODUCTORY

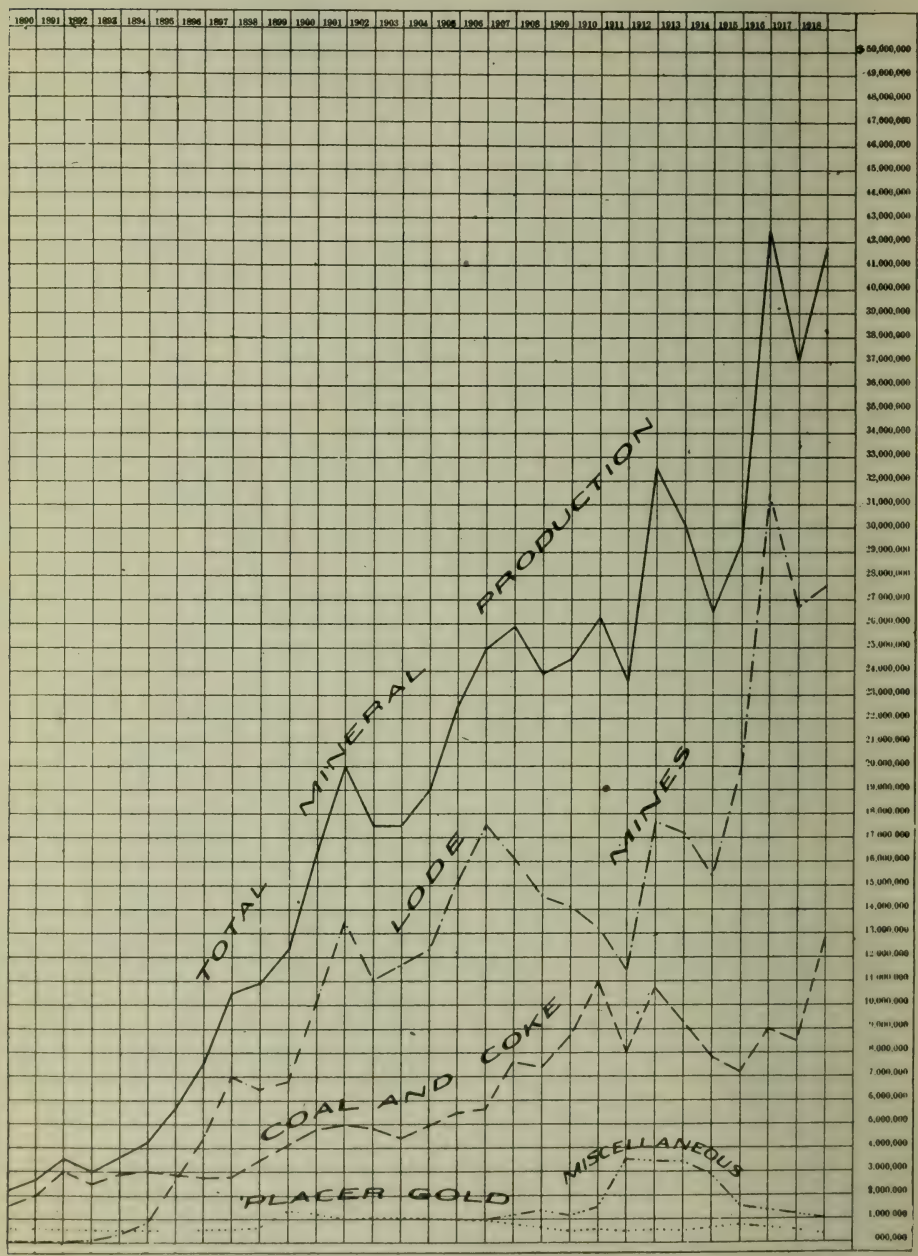
District No. 1 includes all the north-western portion of the province from Seymour Inlet on the south to the boundary line between British Columbia, Alaska, and the Yukon on the north. It is comprised of the seven Mining Divisions, viz.: Bella Coola, Queen Charlotte, Skeena, Portland Canal, Stikine, Atlin and Liard. Its total length is approximately 700 miles, of which about 400 miles, if Portland Canal be included, is open coast; the remaining 300 miles is east of the Alaska strip.

NORTH-EASTERN DISTRICT (No. 2)

Report by John D. Galloway,
Resident Engineer.

INTRODUCTORY

Under the provisions of the "Mineral Survey and Development Act," which came into force about May, 1917, the four Mining Divisions of Omineca, Peace River, Cariboo,



SCALE SHOWING MINERAL PRODUCTION OF BRITISH COLUMBIA and Quesnel were made to constitute the North-eastern Mineral Survey District, with the permanent survey station and office at Hazelton.

CENTRAL DISTRICT (No. 3)
Report by R. W. Thomson,
Resident Engineer.

This district, with headquarters at Kam loops, includes the following Mining Divisions: Clinton, Lillooet, Kamloops, Ashcroft, Yale, Nicola, and Vernon.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT (No. 4)
Report by Philip B. Freeland,
Resident Engineer.

The Southern Mineral District includes the Grand Forks, Greenwood, Osoyoos, and Similkameen Mining Divisions.

EASTERN DISTRICT (No. 5)
Report by A. G. Langley,
Resident Engineer.

This district includes the following Mining Divisions: Golden, Windermere, Fort Steele, Revelstoke, Lardeau, Ainsworth, Slocan, Slocan City, Trout Lake, Nelson, Arrow Lake, and Trail Creek.

WESTERN DISTRICT (No. 6)

Report by W. M. Brewer,
Resident Engineer.

OUTLINE OF THE REPORT

The Western Mineral Survey District includes all that portion of the province contained within the following Mining Divisions, that is to say: Nanaimo, Alberni, Clapoquot, Quatsino, Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster. This Survey District, and also five others, was created under the provisions of the "Mineral Survey and Development Act," an Act passed by the Legislative Assembly during the session of 1917.

Measured roughly, the Western Mineral Survey District has a maximum length of approximately 300 miles from north-west to south-east by 175 miles from north-east to south-west, including the area of the various islands between the mainland and the easterly side of Vancouver Island, and contains approximately 48,000 square miles, including the area covered by the Gulf of Georgia, and the straits between the mainland and eastern coast of Vancouver Island, approximately 3,000 square miles.

The Fisheries of British Columbia

The Province of British Columbia is the foremost fishing province in the Dominion. The value of her fishery products exceed that of any other province. The value of the fishery products of all Canada for the year 1917 totalled $52,312,044, as against $39,208,378 for the preceding year. At the time of writing the final figures for the year 1918 have not been issued. Of the $52,312,044, produced in 1917, British Columbia contributed $21,518,595, or 41 per cent. of the whole. British Columbia fishery products exceeded those of Nova Scotia by $7,050,276, and those of all the other provinces combined, by $11,156,941. The following statement gives in the order of rank the value of the fishery products of the province for the year 1917:

British Columbia	$21,518,595
Nova Scotia	14,468,319
New Brunswick	6,143,088
Quebec	3,414,378
Ontario	2,866,419
Prince Edward Island	1,786,310
Manitoba	1,543,288
Saskatchewan	320,238
Alberta	184,009
Yukon	67,400
Total	$52,312,044

The species and values of the fish caught in British Columbia are given in the following statement:

Salmon	$16,828,783
Black Cod	879,404
Hake and Husk	1,090
Herring	1,192,654
Shad	675
Halibut	1,721,012
Soles	78,649
Flounders	23,601
Skate	10,117
Smelts	14,270
Oulachons	10,991
Brill	51,420

Octopus	1,656
Rock Cod	8,688
Pilchards	11,810
Whiting	2,725
Grayfish	4,480
Oysters	32,202
Clams and Quahaugs	84,000
Dulse, Crabs and Cockles	48,424
Trout	10,350
Sturgeon	9,790
Perch	4,920
Mixed fish	13,184
Salmon roe	7,820
Fur seal skins	6,540
Bone meal	10,185
Fertilizer	70,164

The total value for the year 1917 shows an increase over the previous year of $6,881,249, largely due to an increase in the size of the pack and its value. The malibut catch was much less, but owing to an increase in value, shows a decrease of but $305,658. The total number of persons engaged totalled 20,883. The value of plants, vessels and equipment totalled $15,807,058.

Recorded commercial fishing began in British Columbia in 1877, with the coming of salmon on the Fraser River, when 7,247 cases were packed. Ten years later it was increased to 204,083 cases. In 1917 the output was increased to 1,027,183 cases. Up to the last ten years the output largely consisted of Sockeye salmon. Since that date all of the Pacific salmon that frequent British Columbia waters have been in great demand.

Originally salmon canning was confined to the Fraser. With the development of the market canners extended operations to the Skeena River and Rivers Inlet. Operations are now conducted upon all estuaries frequented by salmon.

The Fraser River up to 1914 was the greatest salmon river known. The salmon hatched in its watershed produced the great runs that supported the industry in both the province and the Puget Sound section of the State of Washington. In the "big year" (1913) the combined pack of Fraser breed Sockeye in the state and province totalled 2,401,498 cases. Owing to a vast rockslide at Hell's Gate, in the canyon of the Fraser above Yale, in 1913, the river's channel was so blocked that the salmon which reached there in countless millions were unable to get through to the spawning area above, and died without spawning. It was a fishery disaster of the first magnitude and destroyed the future runs of the "big year" to the Fraser. The total pack four years later (1917) was 1,841,786 casses less, a decrease of 76 per cent. The rock obstruction in the channel was removed in 1914 at a cost of $125,000, and is now open to the passage of fish. The seed of 1913 was destroyed, with the result that the vast run of the "big year" will not again return.

The halibut fisheries of the province come second in the value of the catch. The fish are taken on the banks facing the northern coast in both Canadian and American waters. Prince Rupert leads in the landing of halibut cargoes. American vessels are permitted to land their cargo there in bond for shipment east.

Fourteen million seven hundred and seventy-seven thousand and five hundred pounds of halibut were landed there in 1918; 9,000,000 pounds of which was brought in by American vessels.

The catch of halibut in 1918 was 14,000,000 pounds less than in 1917. There is abundant evidence to show that the fishery is being depleted.

Deep-sea trawling was successfully conducted from Prince Rupert and Vancouver in 1917 and 1918. Some two million pounds of flounders, sole, witch and brill, taken by means of trawling, were landed in Prince Rupert in 1918. It is believed that trawling from British Columbia ports will increase rapidly. The fish taken are most valuable food fishes, well suited to take the place of the declining salmon and halibut.

The Victoria Whaling Company is the largest concern of its kind on the Pacific Coast. It has stations at Sechart and Kyuquot, on Vancouver Island; and at Rose Harbour and Naden Harbour, on the Queen Charlotte Islands. The company operates eight whaling steamers, and the catch for 1917 was as follows:

Canadian stations	379 whales
United States stations	209 whales

The main products are oil and fertilizer, but arrangements have been made for canning whale meat, not less than 30,000 cases this year.

The Victoria Whaling Company also operates the American Pacific Whaling Company, with a station located at Grays Harbour, Washington, with four whaling steamers, and the North Pacific Sea Products Company, with three whaling steamers, and a station on the Aleutian Islands, has recently been taken over.

At Grays Harbour there is a cold storage plant, and another plant is being installed at the Aleutian Islands station, for the purpose of meeting the demand for whale meat in the United States.

The Victoria Whaling Company transports its products and supplies on its own vessels, and to facilitate the extension of its whale meat business and it has taken over the Pacific Coast Cold Storage plant at Tacoma.

The fisheries of the province are administered by the Dominion Government. The North American Act gave that government the sole right to make regulations governing the taking of the fish. The administration of the Dominion Government is conducted in the province through the office of Chief Inspector of Fisheries, F. H. Cunningham, 470 Granville Street, Vancouver.

The Provincial Government maintains a fishery department for the supervision of all the fisheries, collects data and conducts investigations of the life history of its food fishes. It is administered under a member of the government. The Hon. William Sloan is at present the Commissioner of Fisheries for the province. The annual reports of his department are of great value to those seeking knowledge of British Columbia fisheries.—John P. Babcock, assistant to the commissioner.

Land

The Province of British Columbia is assumed to have an area of 238,489,600 acres, of which 41,814,991 acres have been disposed of in the manner set out below:

		Acres
Crown granted		12,278,841
Indian reserves		753,931
Railway grants		4,138,334
Dominion Government:
Railway belt	17,050,000
Peace River block ..	3,500,000
Kootenay road reserve	288,000
		20,838,000
In process of alienation:
Application to purchase	511,932
Pre-emptions	992,001
Surveyed mineral claims	409,066
		1,912,999
Parks and game preserves		1,892,886
		41,814,991

This leaves 196,674,609 acres of land, the title of which is at the disposal of the Crown, made up as follows:

		Acres
Timber licences and leases surveyed		7,685,029
Timber licences and leases unsurveyed		2,385,097
Reserved for university		771,401
Reserved for sale by auction		189,000
Reverted under purchase applications:
Surveyed	1,887,000
Unsurveyed	342,000
		2,229,000
Surveyed for pre-emption		2,397,978
Unsurveyed and unencumbered Crown land		180,368,624
Lands at present under coal or grazing lease and licence		648,480
		196,674,609

The total area mentioned above includes lakes, mountains and other waste lands of the Crown, and for this reason the figures quoted above, while substantially correct, cannot be taken as being mathematically exact, and the rough and broken nature of British Columbia as compared with the prairie provinces is a fact that should never be overlooked by the prospective settler or land-seeker. There are, of course, large areas of land suitable for settlement in the valleys and interior plateaus, particularly in the northern interior along the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and the Peace River country; but the land suitable for settlement in the southern interior and coast districts is, except in certain isolated cases, very scarce. These parts of the province having been settled for a large number of years, it naturally follows that the best land has already been located upon.

Large areas of land along the west coast of Vancouver Island, as well as on the coast of the mainland, still remain unalienated, but to a large extent they are so heavily timbered that even after they are "logged off" the stumping and bringing of them into suitable shape for agriculture presents great difficulties. The settler on these lands must therefore be prepared to expend a good deal of time and energy in clearing before he can expect to realize any great profit.

For the reasons set out above, the intending settler is invariably advised by the Lands Department to make a close personal inspection of districts which appeal to him before definitely arranging to settle in British Columbia.

For the person wishing to engage in mixed farming or stock-raising the central and northern parts of the province offer splendid locations if he is prepared to expend the energy necessary to clear and cultivate the land, as it is seldom that areas of any great extent exist that are naturally ready for the plow. Open land is found in some districts, but generally in comparatively small patches which are interspersed with timber of varying size.

In an article of this nature it is, of course, impossible to enter into a detailed description of any district, but speaking generally it will be to the advantage of the intending settler, particularly if his means are limited, to investigate the possibilities of districts for which transportation is provided by the existing railways.

With the exception of the Dominion Railway Belt, which consists of the land lying within twenty miles on either side of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the Peace River block, the lands of British Columbia are administered by the Provincial Government.

Below is given a synopsis of laws relating to land in British Columbia, but it would be to the advantage of any person desiring information in connection with acquiring such land to communicate with the Deputy Minister of Lands, whose address is Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B. C.

Land Act

Land may be acquired under this Act by purchase, pre-emption or lease in the manner set out hereunder:

Purchase

Any of the unoccupied and unreserved lands of the Crown in the right of the province (not being part of an Indian settlement) may be purchased, but Crown grants will not issue until the land has been improved in accordance with the Land Act.

If the land sought to be purchased is surveyed, the application must be accompanied by 25 per cent. of the purchase price according to the classification, i.e., first and second class, the price being $5.00 per acre and $2.50 per acre respectively. The balance is payable in three equal annual instalments, together with interest at 6 per cent. per annum on the unpaid balance.

If the land is unsurveyed, it must be staked, advertised and applied for in accordance with the Land Act. The application to be accompanied by a deposit of 50 cents per acre. If the application is accepted the land must be surveyed, at the expense of the applicant, and payments made in full within six months from the date of acceptance.

Pre-emption

Any of the unoccupied and unreserved surveyed lands (not being part of an Indian settlement) may be pre-empted. That is a free grant of 160 acres may be obtained on the completion of certain residence and improvement duties, which are described with particularity in the Land Act, but briefly are as follows:

Who May Pre-empt.

Any British subject, being—

(a) The head of a family:

(b) A widow:

(c) A femme sole who is over eighteen years of age and self-supporting:

(d) A woman deserted by her husband:

(c) A bachelor over the age of eighteen years,— may, for agricultural purposes only, pre-empt land to the extent of 160 acres. Such right shall not extend to foreshore or tidal lands, or to the bed of the sea, or lands covered by navigable waters.

An alien, upon making a declaration of his intention to become a British subject, may also acquire the right to pre-empt.

Application in the form of a statutory declaration setting out nationality, land applied for, that the land is not timber land and that the land is taken up for agricultural purposes, is made to the Commissioner for the district, accompanied by the fee of two dollars. After the record is granted the pre-emptor must enter into occupation within 60 days of the date of the record, and upon the completion of actual improvements to the extent of $10.00 per acre including the clearing and bringing under actual cultivation of at least five acres, and five years' residence (residence is defined as continuous bona fide residence of the pre-emptor or his family on the land recorded by him), be entitled to receive a certificate of improvement therefor, the fee for which is $2.00, and a Crown grant of the land on the payment of a fee of $10.00.

Provision is made whereby a pre-emptor can obtain a record and not enter into immediate occupation; but in this case he must spend each year $300 in actual improvements, exclusive of buildings, and file proof each year of having done so; but must reside on the land for two years before the issue of the Crown grant, which would in no case be until at least five years after the date of the pre-emption record.

The intending pre-emptors are requested to communicate with the Deputy Minister of Lands, Victoria, or any of the Government Agents or Land Commissioners, whose addresses are set out below, for fuller and more detailed information.

Lease

Provision is made for the granting of leases for homesite purposes, not exceeding 20 acres in area, and upon the performance of certain residence and improvement duties, among them being the erection of a dwelling during the first year of tenancy, shall, at the expiration of the term of lease, be entitled to a free Crown grant, provided all the terms of the sale have been faithfully carried out.

Provision is made in the Land Act for the granting of leases of Crown lands in any desired area for grazing or industrial purposes, and a committee consisting of officials of the Lands Department and prominent cattle and sheep raisers of British Columbia is at the present time (June, 1919) compiling information and data on which to base terms, rules and regulations under which leases would be granted to persons who are able to produce bona fides of their intention to actually develop the area applied for.

All applications for land must be made at the office for the recording district in which the land applied for is situated. A list of offices follows:

Land for Soldiers

The Provincial Government of British Columbia, by an Act entitled the Soldiers' Land Act, passed at the 1918 session of the Legislature, has made provision for the making of free grants of land for returned soldiers, free from taxation for five years and subject only to reasonable residence and improvement duties.

This Act also provides for the conveyance to the Dominion Government, free of cost, but subject to reasonable residence and improvements, of suitable lands for the settlement thereon by the Soldier Settlement Board, appointed by the Dominion Government, of British Columbia soldiers.

The Lands Department has already thrown open one block of land for settlement by returned soldiers only, and is examining as rapidly as possible other areas in various sections of the province to determine their suitability for the same purpose. These will, if found suitable, be opened from time to time.

Further information may be obtained on application to the Deputy Minister of Lands.

Water Resources

All the water in rivers and streams of the province is in the right of the Crown and may be appropriated for various purposes under the rules and regulations of the Water Act. Of these purposes the most important are power and irrigation. In respect of the first mentioned, there is probably no area on the continent of America so favoured in water-power resources. Large power sites are strategically situated so that in time many districts may be served with electrical energy by transmission lines of economic length.

It is of interest to note that contiguous to Vancouver, our largest centre of population, within a radius of 100 miles there is available well over 750,000 horse-power, of which approximately 150,000 horse-power is developed. About 30,000 horse-power is developed on the Kootenay River, near Nelson, and is supplying smelters at Trail and Grand Forks, the former being one of the largest in America and one of the few now producing gold, silver, copper, zinc and lead. In regard to irrigation, such is largely practised south of the 51st parallel of latitude. Water has been recorded for upwards of 600,000 acres of land, of which approximately 100,000 have been brought under cultivation. Our fruit areas depend largely if not wholly upon irrigation. The largest and one of the most important of these is the Okanagan Valley, which now has a large, well established fruit and vegetable industry. Other valleys are also established in this respect.

For further and more detailed information in this connection enquiries should be addressed to the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, or the Deputy Minister of Lands.

Forest and Timber

The following summary gives the volume of business transacted in the province over a number of years, for the purpose of comparison:

The right to cut Crown timber can be obtained under a timber sale contract under the Forest Act by complying with the provisions hereunder:

Upon application being made to the Chief Forester, Victoria, or to the local District Forester, any desired area of Crown timber will be cruised, surveyed (if necessary), and advertised for sale by tender. The period required for advertisement is as follows:

(1) Over five million feet B.M., two months.

(2) One to five million feet B.M., one month.

(3) Less than one million feet B.M., one to four weeks.

(4) Should the stumpage value to the Crown be less than $100, the local District Forester may make a sale without advertisement.

During the period of advertisement all intending purchasers are furnished with full particulars of the sale, including blue-prints showing the location and area, description and estimate of timber, upset price (which is the lowest tender that will be considered), copy of the sale contract, and tender forms.

The tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque, negotiable at par by the department in Victoria, or by cash, including the following items:

(1) Cost of advertising.

(2) Cost of cruising and survey (if any).

(3) Annual rental (approximately 22 cents per acre on coast, and 16 cents per acre in interior.

(4) Forest Protection Tax (at 1½ cents per acre).

(5) Deposit of 10 per cent. of the stumpage price tendered, which will be dealt with as follows: (a) Returned forthwith if tender is not accepted; (b) held in trust to be returned upon the satisfactory completion of the contract; (c) forfeited to the Crown if the contract is not completed to the satisfaction of the minister.

Each sale contract specifies the period within which operations are required to be completed. Should any timber remain uncut at the date of expiration, application may be made in the regular way for a new sale to cover the unlogged area.

Timber-sale contracts are not transferable. The provision permitting the District Forester to make small sales under $100 without advertisement should be of special interest to small operators and hand-loggers, as sales can in this way be put through with the least possible delay and expense.

Small sales also have a distinct advantage over hand-loggers' licences inasmuch as they are not of a personal nature and have no restrictions as to the logging equipment used or the number of men employed.

Lumbering

The most readily available, if not the most important, of British Columbia's natural resources is her immense timber reserve. This province may now be said to possess one of the most compact areas of merchantable timber in North America. Recent estimates place the area of Canada's timber land at from 300 to 600 million acres, and the British Columbia Forest Branch credits British Columbia with 400 billion feet of merchantable milling timber, or over one-half of the forest wealth of Canada. As far north as Alaska the coast is heavily timbered, the forest line following the indentations of the shore and the river valleys and fringing the mountain sides. The Douglas fir, the most valuable tree found on the Pacific Coast, grows as far north as 52 degrees, where it is supplanted by the cypress, or yellow cedar, red cedar, hemlock and spruce. The fir is very widely distributed, being found from the coast to the Rocky Mountains. On the coast it attains immense proportions, sometimes towering to a height of 300 feet, with a base circumference of 30 to 50 feet. The best average trees are 150 feet clear of limbs and five to six feet in diameter. The fir is the staple of commerce, prized for its durability and strength. Great bodies of this timber are found on Vancouver Island and the coast of the mainland. Next to the Douglas fir in importance is the red cedar, which is much in demand. Red cedar shingles are the standard, and are finding an increasing market in Eastern Canada. Silver, or Coast spruce, owing to its extreme lightness and great strength, combined with elasticity, is greatly in demand for aeroplane construction. British Columbia's contribution of this material was no small factor in assisting the Allies to gain the supremacy of the air. Spruce is also an excellent building material and is unsurpassed in the manufacture of high-grade pulp. Western hemlock is abundant in the province, and possesses qualities which should make it more valued than it is. The trade is beginning to appreciate these qualities and this wood is being used to an ever increasing extent. The western species is different and much superior to the eastern hemlock, and is as serviceable in many ways as more prized timber. There are many other trees of commercial value which are manufactured into lumber, including white pine, tamarac, balsam, yew, maple and cottonwood.

The trees indigenous to the province are: Coniferous—Western white pine, white or white-barked pine, western yellow or bull pine, limber pine, scrub or lodgepole pine, western larch, alpine larch, tamarac, Engelmann spruce, Sitka or tide-land spruce, black spruce, western hemlock, mountain or black hemlock, Douglas or red fir, Alpine or balsam fir, Amabilis or white fir, grand or white fir, western red or giant cedar, yellow Alaska or Sitka cypress, juniper or dwarf juniper, Rocky Mountain cedar, western juniper, western yew. Broad Leaf—Quaking aspen, black or balsam cottonwood, western black willow, almond or peach willow, long leaf or sand bar willow, nutall or black willow, western birch, black or mountain birch, mountain alder, red alder, Sitka alder, Garry oak, Oregon crabapple, western serviceberry, black haw, bitter or wild cherry, western choke cherry, broadleaf maple, vine maple, dwarf maple, bean-berry, coffee tree or cascara sagrada, western dogwood, blue elderberry.

There are 386 saw and shingle mills in the province. There are also over 85 shingle mills with an aggregate daily capacity of 11,000,000 shingles. Many of the big mills are furnished with sash and door factories, planing mills and other woodworking machinery.

The increasing demand for lumber is illustrated by the following figures, which show the approximate cut of British Columbia mills for nine years:

1903	317,551,151	feet
1904	348,031,790	"
1905	473,713,986	"
1906	508,069,969	"
1907	846,000,000	"
1908	658,000,000	"
1909	775,000,000	"
1910	1,040,000,000	"
1911	1,201,778,494	"

1918		"

The capital invested in the lumber industry is estimated at over 200 million dollars, furnished principally by British, United States and Eastern Can dian investors, and the opportunities for further profitable use of capital are unsurpassed, as the prices of lumber are constantly increasing, while the stumpage values are lower than in any other part of North America. In the Pacific Coast states, Washington and Oregon, the stumpage values are: Douglas fir, $2.50; cedar (red), $3.00; hemlock, $1.75; spruce, $2.50, exclusive of taxes, whilst those of British Columbia vary from 50 cents to $1, to which must be added a licence fee and royalty, amounting to about 90 cents per thousand, a total not exceeding in any case $1.90. The figures quoted for United States timber are standard prices; very choice and easily accessible timber sells at higher rates. The rates in Ontario, exclusive of a royalty of $2.00 per thousand feet, vary from $11.37 for white pine to $1.00 for pack pine and $8.55 for spruce. In Ontario and the States the tenure of timber is limited to a few years, immediate and continuous operation being imperative.

The prices of lumber have increased from 60 per cent. to 75 per cent. in ten years, and with the rapid settlement of the vacant lands in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the activity in railroad building, and the increasing demands of overseas markets, further considerable advances in prices are inevitable.

The chief market for sawmill refuse is found in fuel, which production is an important side line of every sawmill in or near a centre of population. The market for this in 1913 was (because of the coal shortage) better than ever before, the sale being estimated at 300,000 cords, valued at $900,000. Large quantities of sawmill refuse are also used under burners to produce power, and in addition, the manufacture of sawdust briquettes for fuel purposes has been started. These appear very satisfactory and sell for the same price as coal.

Wood Pulp and Paper

Possessing an immense quantity of paper-making woods, British Columbia affords a promising field for the paper maker. Pulp wood forests border the ocean and many navigable waters, simplifying transportation, and there are numerous water powers to supply motive power to the mills. The rapid denudation of the pulp areas of the United States will soon compel it to look to Canada for its supply of wood pulp, which, according to the regulations now in force, must be manufactured in the province. There is, besides, a present demand for pulp in Japan, China and Australia, and when the industry is fairly developed, the ocean freights will enable profitable exportation to Great Britain and Europe.

Along the coast-line of the mainland of British Columbia and Vancouver Island practically inexhaustible areas of pulp woods can be found. South of Knight's Inlet the most abundant wood is the Douglas fir, which is successfully used for the manufacture of chemical pulp. Its suitability for mechanical pulp is not so certain. North of Knight's Inlet is the spruce and hemlock belt, affording enormous supplies of excellent pulp wood—the Sitka spruce especially being unexcelled by any other wood for pulp purposes. These woods cover large tracts immediately contiguous to the sea coast, so that logs can be landed at the mills at very low cost.

An important point in favour of the industries on the sea coast of British Columbia is the mildness of the winters, which admits of operations being carried on throughout the whole year. The forests of this province are much more densely wooded than those of Eastern Canada, 500 cords per acre being not uncommon, while from 100 to 150 cords may be taken as a fair average of good timber lands. With proper husbanding, the forests are practically inexhaustible for pulp wood purposes. This is essentially a timber country. Atmospheric conditions are especially favourable to tree growth, which is very rapid, and the extent of otherwise valueless country along the coast that can be devoted to forestry is enormous. Owing to its wealth of raw material, excellent water-powers and geographical position, British Columbia occupies a position of eminent advantage in competing for the pulp and paper trade of the Pacific. A practically unlimited market is afforded by Australia, Japan, China and the western coast of America—both North and South.

In 1901, to encourage the establishment of the paper-making industry in the province, the government granted 21-year leases of pulpwood forests to bona fide applicants on liberal terms, and several companies were formed to take advantage of the concession. These companies selected 354,399 acres in various parts of the province, and in 1903 the law granting pulp leases was repealed. The annual rental to be paid under these leases is two cents per acre, and a royalty of twenty-five cents per cord of pulpwood cut. The lessees are bound to build, equip and operate in the province a mill with a daily output of not less than one ton of pulp or half a ton of paper for each square mile included in the lease. The merchantable timber on the leaseholds may be cut and manufactured under special timber licence.

Pulp and Paper

Marked activity has been evident during the past year in this industry. The rise in prices due to the war has had the result of directing attention to Canada's pulp resources as never before. These developments are all on the coast, but there are large areas of pulp timber in the interior which have not yet been touched. The development of these areas will no doubt be undertaken in the not far distant future.

The manufacture of pulp products on a large scale in British Columbia depends upon the solution of the problems of labour, transportation and markets, the prospects for which are satisfactory. As for the prime essentials, this province possesses natural resources of pulp wood and water-power which are not equalled by any other province in Canada, the water-power on tide water alone being estimated to be 1,000,000 horse-power, and many billions of feet of pulpwood being tributary to this. When the trans-Pacific market for pulp products is developed, mills on tide water in British Columbia will thus have great advantages in seeking trade. This market will sooner or later be essential to the success of the pulp industry in British Columbia, for the section of the Canadian population which under the present basis of fixing freight rates can be supplied by the mills of British Columbia in competition with those of Central and Eastern Canada will be the limited market west of Regina, while the new mills now contemplated or under construction in Alaska and the northwestern states will reduce the available market for the British Columbia product in the Western United States. Fortunately, after the completion of the Panama Canal the trade routes of the Pacific Ocean will lead direct to the chief pulp and paper importing nations of the world. Asia presents a great undeveloped market for pulp and paper—a market demanding special grades produced by special machinery processes, and in time will require heavy shipments of low-grade papers and high-grade sulphite pulp. The Australian and South African newsprint market should also be supplied from British Columbia. The greatest pulp and paper market of the world is that extending from the Atlantic seaboard of the United States westward to Chicago. There is here at all times a keen demand for high-grade sulphite pulp, which now enters the United States free of duty. It is believed that with the opening of the Panama Canal shipments will become possible to the Eastern United States.

This survey of the present situation shows that the expansion of the pulp industry in British Columbia depends upon the same factor as the expansion of the lumber industry—namely, the development and extension of the export market. It is recognized that this work, which is so important to the public from the standpoint of commercial prosperity, and to the government from the point of revenue, should not be left entirely to private individuals.

Further information will be supplied on request to the Deputy Minister of Lands or the Chief Forester.

Surveyor-General's Office

The duties of this office are governed by the provisions of the Land Act and include the supervision of all Crown Lands surveys as well as surveys in general throughout the Province.

J. E. UMBACH,
Surveyor-General.

Land Registry Districts

These districts are described by Order-in-Council and notice in the British Columbia Gazette.

It may be noted in the first place Victoria was the only Registration District, covering the whole of the Province. New Westminster was created by Order-in-Council, see Gazette 1884, page 265. The Electoral Districts of New Westminster, New Westminster City, and Coast District are defined by Schedule 4 to Bill No. 147, Revised Laws of B. C. 1871, page 521. The Public Notice, referred to in this Schedule is in the B. C. Gazette, 1870, page 3.

Vancouver. This District was defined in B. C. Gazette, 12th August, 1892, page 839.

Kootenay was established 17th January 1901. See Gazette 1901, page 141.

Prince Rupert. This District was established 19th January, 1909. See Gazette 1909, page 1157.

STATISTICS RELATING TO AGRICULTURE

Areas

The total area of British Columbia is 226,186,370 acres, exclusive of lakes. According to the 1911 Dominion census, the estimated area of possible farm land was 22,618,000 acres, or 10 per cent. of the total area, and the total area occupied as farm land was 2,540,011 acres, or 11.2 per cent. of the area estimated as possible farm land. In the year 1918 the total area under cultivation was 414,000 acres, or 16.3 per cent. of the area occupied as farm land, and 1.8 per cent. of the possible farm land area, or 0.2 per cent. of the total area of the province.

Of the total area occupied as farm land, according to the 1911 census, 81.56 per cent. was owned, 18.45 per cent. leased or rented, 18.80 per cent. improved, 81.20 per cent. unimproved, 60.79 per cent. natural forest, and 3.10 per cent. marsh or waste land. The total number of farm holdings was 18,467.

The distribution of farm holdings was as follows:

AREA	NUMBER	PER CENT. OF TOTAL
Under 1 acre	1,509	8.17
1 to under 5 acres	2,888	15.64
5 to 10 acres	2,754	14.91
11 to 50 acres	3,849	20.84
51 to 100 acres	1,754	9.50
101 to 200 acres	3,743	20.27
200 acres and over	1,970	10.67

Value of Farm Property
(Dominion Census)

The following statement shows the value of farm property in 1911:

Land	$141,421,477.00
Buildings	29,479,522.00
Implements	3,548,656.00
Live stock	14,186,069.00
Total	$188,635,724.00

The above total value represents an increase since 1901 of 463.23 per cent.

The average value per farm in 1911 was as follows:

Land	$ 7,658.06
Buildings	1,596.34
Implements	192.16
Live stock	768.19
Total	$10,214.75

Land Prices

In 1911 the average value per acre of land occupied as farm land was $55.68. In 1913, when a census was taken by the Provincial Government, values of land in the more developed sections and on the coast, most suitable for mixed farming, were found to range from $100 to $300 for timbered land, and from $200 to $400 for cleared and developed land. In this same section rental charges were from $10 to $20 per acre, the tenant in many instances paying the taxes.

Throughout the interior sections of the province values in 1913 varied according to location and conditions. Those in the dry mixed farming sections of the Thompson River watershed were from $10 to $25 per acre for mixed farming land. In the Okanagan Valley, where the land had previously been largely devoted to fruit-growing values of such land averaged from $200 to $250 for unplanted, and from $300 to $700 for planted land, the latter depending upon location and degree of development.

In the Kootenay districts values ranged from $30 to $50 in the dry section, to $100 in the more humid sections.

The above prices were those ruling during the ebb of the real estate boom. Comparatively little land since that time has been disposed of at such prices, however, and good land can now be purchased for much less.

Cost of Clearing

The cost of clearing land ready for the plough, in the humid sections of the province, under normal conditions, averages from $100 to $250 per acre, whilst in the dry belts of the interior the cost would range from $120 to $150. There are, however, many comparatively open sections where the cost would not exceed $30 to $50 per acre to clear. This applies also to those sections in Central British Columbia, along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Further, there are many large areas requiring no clearing whatever, particularly in the Peace River district.

In addition to the foregoing, there are approximately 33,000 acres of fruits of all kinds. In 1916 there were 1,480 acres of small fruits, being chiefly made up of strawberries and raspberries in the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island sections. The balance of the total area of fruits is comprised chiefly of apples, of which over 87 per cent. was produced in the Okanagan and Boundary districts in 1918.

Of the total area of land under crop in 1917, fodders comprised over 62 per cent. and grain for threshing over 30 per cent.

Of the total area of grains, 64 per cent. was oats, for which the province is well adapted.

With the exception of that in the dry belt, the wheat produced in this province is largely grown for local consumption as chicken feed, being of a somewhat soft grade. In the dry belts of the interior, however, and especially during more recent years, increased attention has been given, through proper seed selection, to the production of harder wheat. This is particularly true of those sections south of Kamloops, Enderby and Armstrong, and the Peace River block (Northern British Columbia). The progress in the last-mentioned section in grain-growing in recent years has been very marked, being made comparatively easy by the open nature of the country.

British Columbia's imports of cereal products are annually comparatively heavy, the value consisting in 1918 of nearly 32 per cent. of the total imports. Of cereal products imported, about 50 per cent was as flour.

Fodders are now being produced in quantities nearly sufficient to take care of local consumption requirements.

The advent of the silo has done much to bring fodder corn into prominence, which, while yet comparatively small in area, has nevertheless increased over 150 per cent. since the year 1914, when the silo was practically unknown in the province.

Of the area of vegetables, potatoes comprise the largest percentage, of which large quantities have been exported in the last two years. Roots are grown in large quanitties, but these are mostly consumed by live stock, particularly dairy cattle.

Truck vegetables are largely grown in the coast sections and around Armstrong. Extensive areas of tomatoes and onions are produced in the Okanagan Valley, where both crops do well.

Live Stock

Progress in this industry during the last few years may be noted in the following statement, showing numbers existing in the province during the years 1911 and 1913 to 1918 (1911 Dominion census, subsequent years Provincial and Dominion estimates):

In 1911, 1917 and 1918 estimates are up to June, and for other years to the end of the calendar year. The variation shown may not be actual, but may be due to different methods of collecting data and determining totals.

The horsebreeding industry of the province has been somewhat curtailed during the last few years by the rapid increase in motor power. In the past a large percentage of this class of stock has been of the lighter weight, bred on ranges, but more attention is now being paid to heavier stock, bred on the farm. The present war has created a market for a large number of horses, of which many have been shipped out of the province during the past two or three years.

Dairying

The permanent agriculture of this country will be composed very largely of intelligent dairy farming. Those of our people who see the handwriting on the wall and prepare early with any one of the recognized dairy breeds will be the ones to do the most good and reap the first harvest. This is the conclusion arrived at by the National Dairy Show Association in conjunction with the National Dairy Council of the United States. It is because they believe the dairy cow capable of making the most economical use of foods in themselves unsuitable for human consumption that the dairy men believe that our future type of farming will be largely dairying. This may be said to be particularly true of British Columbia, where we have large tracts of unoccupied lands which by proper development and intelligent cultivation are especially suited to dairy farming. As the enormous lumbering of the country is gradually taking off large tracts of timber, it is quite reasonable to believe that in the future much of these logged-off lands will be seeded to grass and afford cheap dairy pasture. DAIRY CATTLE, OKANAGAN VALLEY the intermountain valleys there are many sections capable of irrigation and which can be made to produce abundant crops of clover, corn and alfalfa—the three great dairy feeds. The mainland coast districts and the developed lands of the E. & N. Railway belt on Vancouver Island constitute the main dairy sections of the province. During the past three years, however, dairying has been very successfully carried on in interior sections, consequent upon the establishing of creameries at Salmon Arm, Armstrong, Kelowna, Revelstoke, Grand Forks and Nelson. In the newer parts of the province opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific and Pacific Great Eastern Railways there are immense areas where dairying may in time be profitably followed.

In the coast districts the grazing season is especially long, the growth of nutritious grasses in early spring and late fall being an important factor in the economical production of milk. In many parts of Southern British Columbia the winters are sufficiently mild to make expensive buildings unnecessary, and cattle can be outside almost every day of the year. An abundant supply of pure water is everywhere present, and this is one of the most important conditions favorable to the industry.

The local market for dairy products is scarcely excelled by any country in the world, and as a consequence prices are satisfactory. The importation of butter and cheese has in past years run into the millions of dollars. Even with greatly increased production an ever-widening market is maintained. The cities in the province, which are sure to increase in size and number, provide a market right at hand for many years to come, and those who are nearest to these markets are always sure of a satisfactory price for a good article.

Dairy farming is intensive farming, and a comparatively small area is sufficient to carry on such a system. One of the chief advantages that appeals to the dairy farmer of small means is the certainty of the returns. There is little of the element of speculation in this line of farming. The returns are not large at any one time, but steady throughout the year, and may be depended upon.

The market price of dairy products varies on the whole less than almost any other class of farm products, making it safe for the farmer of small capital, as well as for the larger.

Beef Cattle

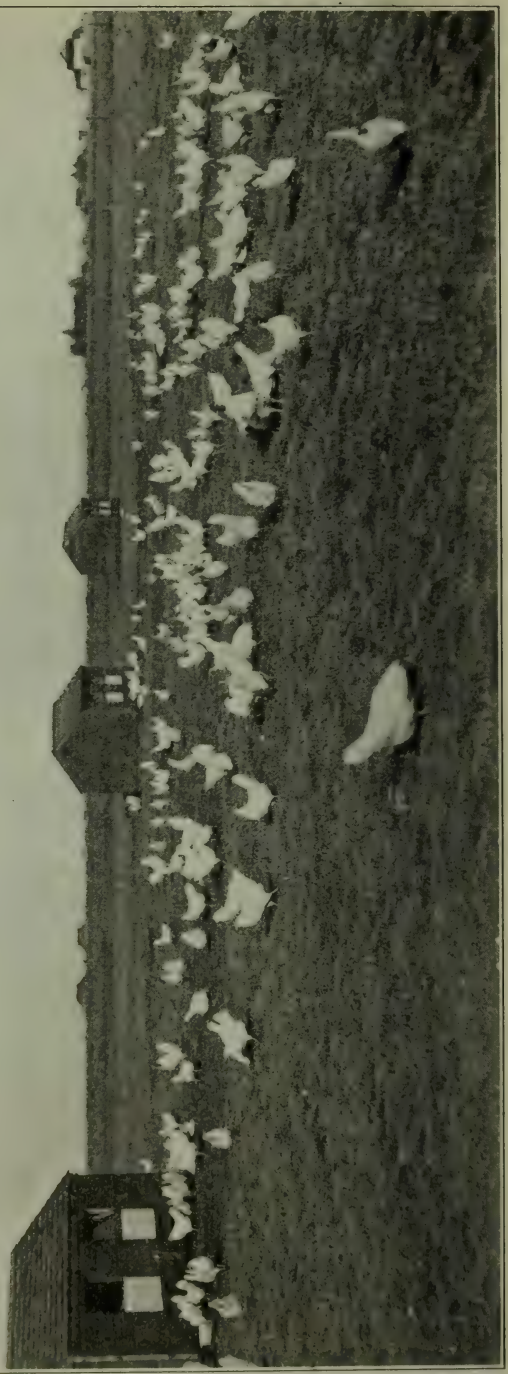
The chief beef cattle ranges are at present to be found in the Nicola, Lillooet and Cariboo sections of the southern interior, where herds of 10,000 in number may be found. A large percentage of this class of stock is raised on bunch grass grazing, of which there are extensive areas. The completion of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway will do much to bring the remote cattle-raising districts within easy reach of our local markets, the absence of which in the past somewhat discouraged local buyers, owing to the long drives to market.

During the warmer seasons of years when abnormal rainfall occurs, resulting in an abundance of rich grazing, the standard of beef marketed is unexcelled. Breeders have of late been importing large numbers of pure-bred beef bulls, which augurs well for the future improvement of beef stock. Prices paid since the outbreak of the war have been high, thus adding much wealth to this industry, and which will, no doubt, continue to do so far many years to come.

Sheep

Sheep in the province up to the present time have not shown the increase warranted by the adaptability of the country to such stock. In some sections the depredations of wild animals have been a more or less discouraging factor, but as such sections become more developed this menace will decrease. Splendid sheep ranges may be found in the interior of the province, such as the Okanagan Valley, where it is estimated there is accommodation for 30,000 head. More recent co-operative wool marketing organization will be a great boon to the sheep industry. By this organization all wool may be marketed through one Dominion house, located at Toronto.

Wool prices have greatly increased during the present war, and these have been further enhanced by more careful grading, as required by recent organization.



POULTRY ON FREE RANGE, FRASER VALLEY

Swine

Several years ago, when a large percentage of the fresh milk was utilized in the manufacture of butter, which left much skimmed milk on the farmers' hands, there were probably more swine in dairy sections than at present. As the population in the cities increased, so did the demand for fresh whole milk, with the result that swine herds decreased in proportion. Variation in the total number of swine is more likely to occur than with any other class of live stock, owing to their prolific nature and the short period required for market maturity, so that this industry more readily fluctuates, consequent upon the prices of feed and pork.

Poultry

Previous to the real estate activities in the province it may be stated that while there was a large number of poultry in the province, yet this industry was not commercialized until about the year 1913, when the real estate boom was over. In the fall of 1912 birds were very cheap, with the result that large numbers of urban residents gathered up flocks under their arms and went to the smaller rural tracts or real estate subdivisions in the city suburbs and rural sections. This move met with the least resistance in that both birds and feed at that time were cheap.

There has always been a good opportunity for expansion in this industry in British Columbia in view of the large quantities of eggs annually imported, which in 1912 and 1913 averaged 6,138,856 dozen as compared with the same average of 4,229,065 dozen produced within the province, showing that we are only producing about 40 per cent. of our consumption and trade requirements.

The coast section and Vancouver and Gulf Islands are good poultry-producing sections, the climate being moderate the year round, thus minimizing housing expenditure, which becomes correspondingly high as the more rigid winter climates of the interior are encountered.

Since 1914 this industry has suffered to a more or less extent as a result of the war, as many poultrymen have enlisted, whilst many of those still engaged in the industry and who are buying the necessary feed supplies are finding profits reduced owing to the high prices for such feed and cost of operation. Flocks, as a consequence, have in many instances had to be reduced, whilst many inefficient breeders have been compelled to close down entirely.

Whilst the total number of birds in the province has been reduced through the above causes, yet the poorer stock only has been disposed of, leaving the better grades under more experienced and successful management, so that the poultry industry, from a commercial standpoint, may be said to be placed on a sound basis at present.

Provincial Co-operation

From the year 1897, when co-operation first began in the province by the organization of Farmers' Institutes, good progress in this respect has been made.

There are at the present time 162 Farmers' Institute, with a membership of over 6,000, representing all sections of the province, resulting in much benefit to members in the way of important legislative measures. Material saving has also resulted to members through co-operative purchasing of feed supplies and stumping powder in large quantities.

Another good, live organization is the British Columbia Fruit-growers' Association, which first began in 1889 with a membership of 93, which has increased to over 600 at the present time. This organization has done much to advance the horticultural industry in the province by advertising British Columbia products in Canadian and foreign markets, formulating and extending marketing facilities, securing valuable freight and express concessions, as well as legislative protective measures.

The organization of Women's Institutes, started in 1909, shows healthy progress, there being at the end of 1918, 62 Institutes, with a total membership of 3,000. These Institutes have accomplished a great deal of good in bringing about better social conditions in our rural communities, and during the war noteworthy assistance has been rendered along Red Cross and patriotic lines.

The Dairymen's Association, made operative by Act of 1897, has more than justified its existence by doing much to encourage increased production of dairy products of improved standard in quality. Much good has been accomplished in educating dairymen in this branch of farming. Through the influence of this association the institution of the test for bovine tuberculois among dairy cattle was effected, which has done a great deal to reduce this disease in our herds. A vast improvement has also been effected in the standard of breeds in our dairy herds through the importation of pure-bred sires by this association.

The first local poultry associations were organized some twenty-seven or twenty-eight years ago on Vancouver Island. In 1910 the British Columbia Poultry Association was organized, the objects being directed towards encouraging the poultry industry of the province and formulating and directing uniform poultry shows.

In addition to the foregoing organizations are the British Columbia Stock-breeders' Association, Vancouver Island Flock-masters' Association, and the Agricultural Fairs' Association.

Especially worthy of mention as an effective co-operative body is the Okanagan United Growers, Limited, which was organized in 1913, consisting of representatives from each of seven local associations in the Okanagan district. About 60 per cent. of the total fruit output of the district was marketed through this central agency in the first year's operation. The total value of fruit and vegetables handled in 1916 was approximately $1,000,000.

Other organizaions, such as those at Gordon Head, Keating, Mission, Hammond and Hatzic, have demonstrated the value of the co-operative marketing of small fruits.

The above organizations also effect a material saving to their individual members through the purchase of supplies.

Still another splendid example of sound co-operative organization is found in the Milk Producers' Union in the Lower Fraser Valley, which controls practically all the milk produced in this valley. This organization is, no doubt, the most successful of its kind in the Dominion of Canada, whilst the standard of perfection attained and the resulting benefits should do much to stimulate further co-operation among dairymen in other sections of the province.

Good progress has also been made in the organization of creameries in dairy sections of the province. Under the Act of 1897, by virtue of which the Dairymen's Association became operative, provision was made in the objects of this association for the managing and operating of creameries co-operatively. In 1902 there were eight in operation, which number had increased to twenty-seven at the end of 1917.

Legislation.

All the above co-operative organizations have not only been responsible in a large measure for the steady increase in agricultural production and improved quality generally, but their influence has been felt in the passage of many Acts, not only by the Provincial Legislature, but by the federal house as well, which have directly and indirectly benefited the industry a great deal.

Among recent Acts worthy of mention is the British Columbia Agricultural Act, 1915, declared operative in 1916, and the Land Settlement and Development Act of 1917, which provides for loans to farmers through a board of commissioners. Money may be loaned to farmers covering long terms at a reasonable rate of interest, for the development of their holdings and to increase production. The opportunity afforded by such an Act should do a great deal to encourage and develop agriculture in British Columbia and place the industry on a firm basis of prosperity.

Agricultural Instruction Act

Perhaps no better proof can be had of the sincerity of the Federal Government in furthering educational and demonstration work along agricultural lines in all the provinces of the Dominion than the Agricultural Instruction Act recently passed by the Dominion Government through the efforts of the Hon. Martin Burrell, ex-Federal Minister of Agriculture.

The total amount apportioned under this Act to this province to date is $387,865.46.

The moneys are expended in accordance with an annual agreement between the Dominion and Provincial Ministers of Agriculture in order to supplement lines of work not covered by provincial appropriations.

Department of Agriculture

(Coast Markets Commissioner)

R. C. Abbott, Inspector in Charge of Exports, and Egg Marks Inspector.

The object of this office is to protect shippers who ship their produce in on consignment; to seek new markets for producers; to assist in the movement of produce from producer to consumer with as little delay and as little waste as possible; to instruct and educate producers to place on the market a higher standard or grade of produce; to give out information on any and all lines pertaining to marketing of farm produce and increased production of same; to assist farmers in collections and adjustments of accounts, freight rates and express rates.

This office is the representative of the producer on the coast markets, and its duty is to inspect all export produce in order that nothing but the very best stuff shall leave the province, thus working up the export trade.

The office also has charge of the enforcement of the Provincial "Egg Marks Act."

A new Act is under consideration of the government, and if this is put on the statute books it will give the office a great deal of power in regard to the marketing of produce.

The ordinary estimates for the fiscal year 1919-20 are as follows, most of which will be spent on maintenance and renewal work:

Roads, streets, bridges	$1,613,879
Steamboats, ferries and bridges	193,345

Reports from the various District Engineers attached to the Provincial Department of Public Works indicate that the greater part of the emergency vote of $1,500,000, passed at the recent session of the Legislature, should be allocated to the improvement of the trunk road system of the Province, the construction of new roads for the opening up of agricultural and mineral areas, and for industrial development. From the general recommendations carefully compiled at the request of the Department, the Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, has been enabled to formulate his programme, which is intended primarily to relieve unemployment conditions as they may arise during the gradual process of demobilization.

VANCOUVER ISLAND.

On this Island an expenditure will be made in each electoral district on what is known as the Island Highway. It is proposed to improve it by re-surfacing, bettering the location, while at or near Victoria there will be an amount of hard-surfacing or permanent roadway. On the Malahat Drive the expenditure will be on improving curvatures, widening of the road and placing guard rails at the most dangerous portions. The Government has also under advisement the expenditure of money on the building of a road from Port Hardy to Coal Harbor, Quatsino Sound, and a sum will be devoted to the location of a road from Campbell River. Steps will likewise be taken to ascertain the possibility of road construction in the Renfrew district.

MAINLAND EXPENDITURE.

On the Mainland the same policy of improving trunk highways will be followed. There are certain trunk roads leading out of Vancouver and New Westminster, which are much travelled thoroughfares. At the present time, these being macadamized roads, it is impossible to maintain them, according to expert advice, and it is therefore proposed to devote an amount to hard-surface some of the more important ones, particularly the Pacific Highway. The Government regards this traffic as through traffic and takes the stand that assistance should be given.

Representations have been made from North Vancouver that assistance should be given to connecting up the Marine Drive with the present ferry service. In view of the fact that the late administration contributed to the expenditure on the Marine Drive, which has made this an attractive road for tourists and people living in the city of Vancouver, the Government considers it advisable to construct, in co-operation with the Municipality of North Vancouver, the road connecting the ferry service with Marine Drive for a distance of one and a half miles. If this work is proceeded with the Minister states that it will be on a fifty-fifty basis with the Municipality.

INLAND POINTS

In the Dewdney and Chilliwack districts work will be confined to the trunk roads, and also to the construction of an industrial road into the oil plant at Ioco. At the present time residents are more or less dependent upon water transportation to the industry at that point.

It is proposed to complete what is known as the one-mile road between Merritt and Princeton in the Yale District. This construction has been determined by reason of the fact that it would open up a very large section of country, and would give a much shorter and better route between these two important centres.

In the Kamloops district the expenditure will be on the trunk roads known as Kamloops-Savona and the Kamloops-Falkland roads, general improvement being necessary.

North Okanagan improvements will be carried out on the Enderby and Okanagan Centre road, and also on the Falkland-Vernon road, the latter being a continuation of the road from Kamloops. In South Okanagan it is proposed to improve the present trunk road and to widen and improve the curvatures and re-surfacing. Similar construction will be carried out in the Similkameen.

BOUNDARY COUNTRY

In the Boundary Country, including Greenwood and Grand Forks, the trunk roads will be improved and a survey made to connect up the Kootenay district, giving the people access to the Boundary and Okanagan districts. A survey party will shortly be in the field between Paulson and Rossland, and if a feasible route can be obtained the Minister says that construction will take place on this link during the coming season.

As far as Trail and Nelson districts are concerned it is proposed to construct some four miles of road between Thrums and Brilliant, for the purpose of giving a more direct route between Nelson and Trail, and so relieve the necessity of maintaining what is known as the Pass Creek road, which is not judged suitable for traffic and is badly located. Consideration is being given to the Nelson-Ymir road, a survey being made by the Government last year. This would largely be a development road leading out of the city of Nelson, serving lumbering and mining operators, as well as giving service to agrciultural development.

SLOCAN DISTRICT

In the Slocan district the re-building of an old road, which has been in existence for many years, between New Denver and Slocan, will be undertaken. This would serve also as a connecting link between these points and give an outlet to numerous mines operating in that district. In the Kaslo district it is proposed to complete the Kaslo-Ainsworth road. This construction was undertaken years ago, and it is now found necessary to give connection between these two towns. Consideration is also being given to the advisability of constructing some five or six miles of road between Sirdar and Kuskanook, using the right-of-way of the Great Northern Railway Company. Once this link is completed it would give access to the people of the Prairie Provinces and East Kootenay into the country adjacent to Nelson.

KOOTENAYS AND REVELSTOKE

In the East Kootenay country it is proposed to improve the main trunk highways running through Cranbrook, Fernie and Columbia districts. In connection with the allocation to be made in the Revelstoke district the Department will carry on the construction of roads from Mara Lake through to Taft and Boulder Creek. A locating party of engineers will be placed on this job shortly and work is expected to be undertaken this year. This road, when completed, will not only give the people of Revelstoke access to the road system of the Okanagan countries, but it will also give the farmers in the Malakwa district an outlet to the markets adjoining them.

LILLOOET AND CARIBOO

Certain moneys will be spent in opening agricultural and mining areas by the construction of roads in the Lillooet district. In the Cariboo an expenditure will be made largely on the improvement of main trunk roads. In the northern sections of the Province, Fort George, Peace River and Omineca, the Government proposes not only to improve the trunk roads, but to institute the construction of roads that will serve the agricultural districts now being opened up. It is expected that expenditure in these districts will be of some magnitude as indications are that there will be a large immigration on these lands. In the Atlin district where there are indications of considerable mining activity, it is proposed to expend certain moneys in the construction of roads which will assist the development of this country.

BANFF-WINDERMERE LAND.

With the passage of the bill granting to the Dominion Government the Park Reserve in the Banff-Windermere country, the Minister states that it will be necessary to improve the roads into the Columbia district in order that they may be able to carry the automobile traffic which will develop once the Banff-Windermere road is constructed, and certain expenditures will be made in that locality.

ELECTRICITY AND GAS INSPECTION

Of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

The Electricity and Gas Inspection Acts require all electricity and gas meters to be tested once every five years and at any other time on request of consumer, for which a nominal fee is charged.

The voltage and frequency of the electric supply is required to be kept within certain limits.

The heating value of manufactured gas must conform to required standard and gas must be free from impurity.

The staff is continually testing to see that the above requirements are fulfilled.

This branch has an electrical standardizing laboratory at Vancouver, where all Departmental Instruments are periodically calibrated. This laboratory will also accept electrical instruments for calibrating from any individual or corporation outside of the Department, charging a fee for such testing or calibration.

DREDGING BRANCH

British Columbia Dredging Fleet.

As a great deal of dredging work was suspended owing to war conditions, and as the resumption of the work is a matter coming within the reconstructive policy of the Government, it would be impossible at the present time to give an outline as to the future programme contemplated.

This Branch, however, covers the entire Coast district of B. C., and the prominent works which have been undertaken are extensive harbour improvements in Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo and other harbours, the maintaining of a ship channel in the Fraser River, and considerable dredging was done to prepare shipbuilding sites.

THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATORY.

Victoria, B. C.

F. Napier Denison, Director.

This institution was erected in 1914, situated on Gonzales Heights, and commands one of the finest views in the world. It is the central office in British Columbia of the Dominion Meteorological Service, where daily weather forecasts are issued, weather observations are received from numerous parts of the Province, and information bearing on the climate of B. C. is furnished upon application.

The true time derived from astronomical observations is given daily, locally by dropping a time ball, and generally by telegraph and wireless signals.

Seismographs installed here record earthquakes occurring in numerous parts of the world, and special researches are caried on relating to the probable causes of quakes and colliery gas explosions.

Visitors' hours are from 3 to 5 p.m.

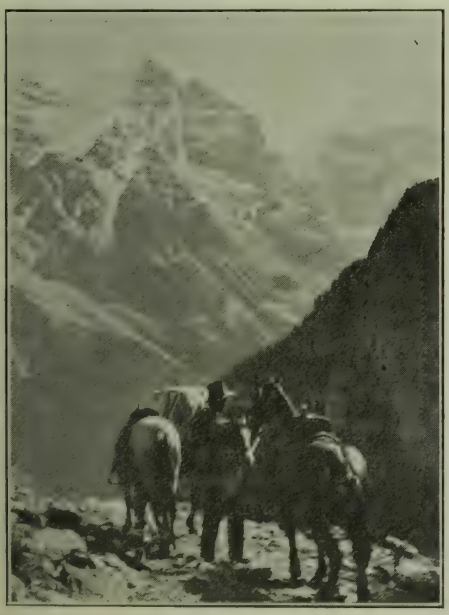
Along the Lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway

NATURE has thrown up the Canadian Rockies on so vast a scale that the human mind can with difficulty grasp their greatness, except by some comparison. The transcontinental trains take twenty-four hours to pass from Cochrane, at the entrance to the Rockies, to Mission, some forty miles east of Vancouver. The simplest parallel is that of the Swiss Alps, which throw their giant barrier between Italy and France. Two of the best known railway routes across the Swiss Alps are the St. Gothard and the Simplon, and in each case only five hours (in peace times) is taken by the express trains—five hours on the St. Gothard route from Lucerne to Como; five hours on the Simplon route from Lausanne to Arona. When, therefore, Edward Whymper, the hero of the Matterhorn, described the Canadian Pacific Rockies as fifty Switzerlands thrown into one, this certainly was no exaggeration. Snowy peaks, glaciers, rugged precipices, waterfalls, foaming torrents, canyons, lakes like vast sapphires and amethysts set in the pine-clad mountains—these have been flung together in unparalleled profusion on a scale which Europe has never known.



As the train glides westward up the long transverse valleys—old grooves down which the spent glaciers came from the higher mountains—the prospect grows more awe-inspiring with every mile, till the train leaves the foothills for the real Rockies—peaks that touch heaven for coldness.

The colouring is intense in the foregrounds; filled with soft suggestion, with unguessed witchery of semi-tonal shade, as the prospect dips and fades away from you. The skies are raw blue, the snow on the summits is whiter than sea-foam, whiter than summer clouds, white with a glistening untouched whiteness that cannot be named.

The still valleys are full of jade pine trees that fade into amethyst and pearl distances. The spray of a 300-foot cataract is like spun glass. The huge bulk of a tireless and age-old glacier is milky green. The rocks are of every shade and subtle blending that the palette of the First Artist could produce. And the perspective effects are like nothing that can be caught with the camera, or even splashed on canvas.

Here in this wonder world, this bit of the raw glacial era let down into neat and finished North America, the Canadian Government has preserved four National Parks which dwarf into insignificance any other parks in the world. There is Rocky Mountain Park, with headquarters at Banff; there is Yoho Park, reached from Field and Emerald Lake; there is Glacier Park, on the slopes of the Selkirk Mountains, farther west; and Revelstoke Park, overlooking the Columbia Valley. Altogether there are nearly 170 miles of the most wonderful carriage roads in the world; there are pony trails innumerable where you can see, between straight pine trunks, blue valleys that yawn to mid-most depths; and there are automobile roads in being or under construction, such as the Highway of the Great Divide, from Banff, over Vermilion Pass by way of the Sinclair Canyon to the Windermere District of the Columbia Valley, down which it goes through the deep forest to the Crow's Nest Pass.

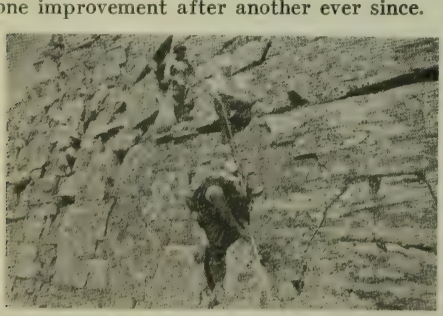
There are few achievements in history to parallel the laying of the Canadian Pacific steel across untouched wilderness and prairie to Calgary (which appeared like the magician's pillar when the road tapped the plain), and from Calgary to the Coast over the Kicking Horse and through the Connaught Tunnel.

The track was laid despite unthinkable engineering difficulties; and has undergone one improvement after another ever since.



Swiss Guides near Field

In the old days the Royal train containing the present King of England as a passenger was hauled from Field to Hector by five huge locomotives. Today that old 4.5 grade is a carriage drive, one in the fairy spider-web of sight-seeing tours that radiate from Field. The main line now traverses the valley of the Kicking Horse River between these two stations with an increased length of 4.1 miles and a maximum grade of 2.2 per cent.

Two of the tunnels were engineered in spiral form. The first goes 3,200 feet into Cathedral Mountain and out again, issuing 54 feet higher up than it entered. The second, under Mount Ogden, contains 2,910 feet of curving excavation and secures a rise of 45 feet. The sight-seer can therefore witness the strange phenomenon of a railroad traversing the valley by three lines at different elevations, crossing and recrossing the river by four bridges. Two engines on the easy grade thus attained can do the same work that used to call for four.

Until December, 1916, the railway climbed over the top of Rogers Pass through a gorge, subject in winter to heavy snowslides, against which the track was protected by four miles of snowsheds. These are now evaded by the double-track Connaught Tunnel, the longest in North America, which pierces its way through Mount Macdonald. From portal to portal this tunnel measures exactly five miles in length, but so straight is the line that the exits are never out of sight.

So much for what the traveller sees en route. The stopping places are even more unique than the main-line sights.

Banff, Lake Louise, Field, Emerald Lake, Glacier, Sicamous—these have their hotels whose windows open on fairyland, where music helps to pass the evening after a glorious day. Banff has an excellent golf course near the hotel. Fishing, hunting, climbing, riding, driving, exploring, Alpine flower hunting, wonder-photo taking—these are the "frill" doings in the Rockies. The biggest and most solid pleasure is just living—living where the air has never been contaminated with soot, where you can go from summer to snow any time you want to, where you don't need any alarm clock to get you up, any cordial to put you to sleep, any dinner bell to tell you when it's time to eat.

The dining room of the Banff Hotel seats 600 guests at a time, and the cuisine is up to Canadian Pacific standard—to say which is to say all. The hot springs provide for ideal swimming even on the coolest day, the zoo is perennially interesting, the boating and fishing will live in the memory of everyone who tries them. The Chateau Lake Louise that smiles at you from the dinner menu before you get to it, is no less enchanting when you arrive, and you arrive hungry.

Whatever the visitor hits or misses, he must arrange to stay over at Field. Never were there such carriage drives, such pony trails, such two and three day trips into the impenetrable silences. The Mount Stephen House carries a full force of guides and horses, and the chalet at Emerald Lake is always ready with a welcome.

Nothing could be a more unique experience than to drive out to Emerald Lake and then take the two day ride via Yoho Pass and thence the high line trail to Twin Falls. There is boating and fishing at the cosy little chalet on the lake which lies, as green as English grass, in its setting of sombre hills. When the trail bends north toward the Falls, you climb into another world. Across on a sky-high meadow, mountain goats browse on the close grass that is the sole form of verdure at that altitude. You pass over the torn and chiselled path of a primeval glacier, like a vast, dry torrent bed. A marmot whistles eerily, and perhaps you catch a sight of his rock-grey head against the door of his house. Now and then a porcupine scuttles quillfully ahead of you. Strange birds flare across the snow-silences, as sudden as a spoken word.

The Twin Falls themselves are two huge roaring curtains of spray, their feet hidden in perpetual mist that the sunshine turns into rainbow dust.

The trail bends homeward here. You pass solemn little emerald lakes in the nests of old cliff glaciers; you reach Laughing Falls in eight miles; and later sight the never-to-be-forgotten silver thread of Takakkaw, where there is an inviting camp, planted in the woodsy mist of cedars and wild blueberry bushes.

The Crow's Nest Route of the Canadian Pacific is a postscript, crossing the Rockies farther south than the main line. But many folks think that it lives up to postscript traditions by carrying some of the most important information. The visitor who would fully and faithfully see Rockyland should go by way of Banff, Lake Louise, Field and Glacier on the main line, then dip southward via Revelstoke and the Arrow lakes to the Kootenays, or by the Okanagan Valley or the new Kettle Valley Railway to Southern British Columbia. There are wonderfully beautiful waters and mountains all the way.

While hunting is forbidden within the National Parks in the Canadian Pacific Rockies, there is magnificent sport to be had outside the Park limits, and the Canadian Pacific Railway hotels are good outfitting points for some of the best hunting grounds. British Columbia is the last home of the grizzly, that monarch of the bear family. He is to be found in the East Kootenay and at Lillooet, and in some parts of Okanagan, the best time to hunt being May.

The Rocky Mountain goat, whose uncanny beard gives him almost a human appearance, has his home among the peaks of the Canadian Pacific Rockies. He is a brave and fearless fighter, and is more than a match for any dog that dares to attack him. His sharp and needle-like horns and strong, pointed hoofs are excellent weapons of defence against his enemies. He is the most daring of all mountain-climbers, fearless, sure-footed, and delights in scaling great heights and taking perilous leaps across chasms. His coat is white, soft and fluffy, and the color has the effect of magnifying his size, which is usually about thirty-five to forty inches at the shoulder. When full grown he weighs from 200 to 250 pounds. He has practically no enemies save men and eagles. When danger threatens he climbs up or down the steepest precipice he can find, and there is no wild creature without wings that can follow him.

A Vancouver Island Stream

The Bighorn or Rocky Mountain sheep is today considered the most valued prize obtainable by the sportsman. Its home is among the fastnesses of the Canadian Pacific Rockies. This animal is of a suspicious nature, but is sure-footed and self-reliant in its mountain home and will escape over rocks which the hunter finds impossible to traverse. Its flesh is pronounced by epicures to be the most delicious of the world's game and its massive wide-spreading horns make a beautiful ornament. Of all Canadian game the Bighorn is most wary and difficult to bag. His vigilance is admirable and once he has regained the higher ground, after feeding during the early morning, only the combination of luck and skill will secure a successful shot.

Spring Salmon

The best country for hunting the common Bighorn is that portion of the Lillooet District roughly described as being north and south of the bridge at Chilcoten River and east and west of the Fraser River, at Chilco Lake. The town of Lillooet is reached by stage from Lytton, Clinton or Ashcroft. Guides can be picked up at Lillooet and Hanceville.

The Kettle Valley Railway

THE Kettle Valley Railway, through Nature's wonderland, is the connecting link in a new route via the Crow's Nest Pass and the Kootenays, through the Okanagan Valley and the Coquihalla Pass in the Cascade Mountains to the Pacific Coast.

Penticton's Palatial Hotel Incola

The interesting and varied characteristics and resources of the country traversed by this route will claim the attention of the traveller, whether the sportsman in search of hunting grounds "De Luxe," the fisherman longing for the haunts of the speckled trout, the sturdy miner who would wrest Nature's riches from the mountain sides, the weary business man who feign would pause and rest awhile at the fountain of youth, the hardy woodsman whose interest is awakened by the abundant forests, the fruit grower whose thoughts turn back to nature or those of artistic temperament who delight in the marvellous scenic attractions that are not equalled in any of the famed mountain routes of the old world.

Leaving Midway, the valley of the Kettle River, from which the railway takes its name, is followed to its source, passing through Rock Creek, Westbridge and Carmi, rich agricultural districts where fruit and grain is extensively grown. At Carmi there is considerable development in gold and silver mining. From here there is a gradual ascent to the summit at McCulloch station. Within a mile and a half of this point are seven lakes, all of them abounding with trout. Bear hunting is also good in this vicinity, as well as for goats at certain seasons.

Descending the west slope of the mountains, the Kelowna Valley is soon seen in the distance, a panorama beautiful beyond comparison, the orchard tracts reaching from the shores of the Okanagan Lake to the foothills of the mountains, the blossoms of fruit trees mingling with the verdant green of the mountain side.

A very interesting section of this part of the line is the Canyon Creek Loops, which present some novel engineering feats, as well as magnificent scenery. Through the rugged rock walls at the entrance to the canyon is seen, as if placed there for contrast, a glimpse of the fertile valley below.

Passing on along the shores of Chute Lake, and down the mountain side, a view of the Okanagan Valley, The California of Canada," suddenly bursts into view, the placid Okanagan Lake and to the south of it Lake Skaha, and between them Penticton, the "Tourist City." Bordering the lake beautiful homes surrounded by orchards reach to the mountain background of the setting.

Penticton, the city beautiful, the tourists' playground, with its mild even climate, never excessively hot or cold, beckons you to forget care and become a child again among its fruits and flowers. Just across the street from the Union Depot is the Incola Hotel, operated by the Kettle Valley Railway, a hostelry where service is the first consideration. The rooms are all large and well appointed, the spacious rotunda and wide veranda, as well as the sun parlor, writing rooms, etc., are all arranged for the convenience of the visitor. The dining room has in store a pleasant surprise—the eggs, butter, cream, vegetables, fruit, etc., are received fresh daily from the Kettle Valley Railway's experimental farm. The best is none too good. Facing the hotel and just across the Lake Shore Drive, is the bathing beach, the most delightful fresh water beach on the continent, where bathing may be enjoyed from early spring until late autumn. The beach of pure sand slopes gradually out for several hundred feet, so that small children may bathe in perfect safety. The Aquatic Club building is adjacent, and its privileges are available to visitors. Excellent motor roads radiate in all directions, cars are always on hand at the several garages, and drives may be taken as the fancy directs, along the Lake international boundary, or to the westward over a mountain pass to the Similkameen Valley, the roads over the mountains being almost the equal of a city boulevard. Near at hand from the Incola Hotel is a nine-hole golf course, where the pleasures of the game may be indulged in practically all winter. Fishing for silverside trout is good in both the Okanagan and Skaha Lakes nearly all the year round, and mountain trout are found in abundance in any of the numerous streams flowing into the lake. In a two hours' journey by train up the east side of the lake, those who are fond of deer hunting will be in the sportsman's paradise. With the unexcelled facilities for bathing, boating, motoring, golfing, fishing, hunting and other forms of recreation and enjoyment, Nature has indeed been lavish in planning Penticton, and its surrounding environments.

Here is also the southern terminus of the line of Canadian Pacific Railway steamers on the Okanagan Lake, a delightful trip up the lake and return the same day may be taken on the palatial steamers "Okanagan" and "Sicamous," which preserve the well known high standard of service on Canadian Pacific boats.

Sport on Vancouver Island

ALONG THE LINE OF THE E. & N. RAILWAY

THE opportunities for shooting and fishing on Vancouver Island are unsurpassed. The fisherman may find sport all the year round, while the hunter has a wide range—from game birds to black bear. Good hotel accommodation is to be had close to shooting and fishing grounds, while camping sites are also plentiful.

The Game Fish of the Island

Trout fishing, including steelheads, which are classed as trout by the Provincial Government, can be had on Vancouver Island at all seasons of the year, these fish being found in practically all the streams and lakes. The most common variety is the cut-throat trout. They are caught both with a fly and by trolling.

Of the several varieties of Pacific salmon, which run in millions all along the coasts of Vancouver Island, there are only two with which the sportsman is concerned, the cohoes and the spring salmon. These fish are caught with spinning bait in the rivers or by trolling in the sea.

Steelheads have been variously classed by different authorities as salmon and trout. They attain to a large weight and give fine sport on a good-sized salmon fly expertly fished.

Freshwater black bass are not native to the Island, but have been introduced with success into several lakes.

Scientifically speaking, char is the correct term for some of the varieties of so-called trout, notably the Eastern Canadian brook trout. The Dolly Varden trout is typically a char in structure and habits. It attains to a large weight and gives very fine sport on spinning tackle or a salmon fly, being found chiefly at the outlets of the larger Island lakes.

The following sportsman's calendar gives the approximate hunting and fishing opportunities month by month throughout the year. There is a continuous close season on all game, open seasons being declared by Order-in-Council. The list below gives the usual open periods. Information regarding licenses and seasons should be always obtained beforehand from the Provincial Game Warden, a Deputy Warden or Government Agent. The fishing seasons set out below remain unchanged from year to year.

The Sportsman's Calendar

Jan. For the Shooter: Ducks, Geese, Snipe.
For the Fisherman: Grilse in salt water with a good chance for a Spring Salmon. Steelhead in non-tidal waters.

Feb. For the Shooter: Ducks, Geese, Snipe.
For the Fisherman: Grilse, Spring Salmon and Steelheads.

Mar. For the Shooter: Geese (Brant and Canada Geese).
For the Fisherman: Grilse and Spring Salmon, Trout, Steelheads. Trout fishing opens and Steelhead fishing closes Mar. 26.

Apr. For the Shooter: Geese, Black Bear.
For the Fisherman: Trout, Grilse, small run of Coho Salmon.

May. For the Shooter: Black Bear.
For the Fisherman: Trout, Grilse, small run of Coho Salmon.

June. For the Fisherman: Trout, Black Bass, Grilse, small run of Coho Salmon (best month for sea trout).

July. For the Fisherman: Trout, Black Bass.

Aug. For the Fisherman: Trout, Spring Salmon, Black Bass.

Sept. For the Shooter: Grouse, Deer, Ducks, Geese, Snipe, Bear.
For the Fisherman: Trout, Spring Salmon, Coho Salmon, Black Bass.

Oct. For the Shooter: Grouse, Deer, Ducks, Geese, Snipe, Pheasants, Quail, Bear.
For the Fisherman: Trout, Spring Salmon, Coho Salmon.

Nov. For the Shooter: Grouse, Deer, Ducks, Geese, Snipe, Pheasants, Quail, Bear.
For the Fisherman: Trout until November 15th, Cohoes. November 15th, Trout fishing closes and Steelhead fishing opens.

Dec. For the Shooter: Grouse, Ducks, Geese, Snipe, Pheasants, Quail; Deer until December 15th. December 15th deer-shooting ends. December 31st, Pheasant, Grouse and Quail shooting ends.

Feathered and Furred Game of the Island

The pheasants found on the Island are the Chinese or common ring-necked, often erroneously termed Mongolian. The law allows the killing of cock birds only.

Willow grouse is the popular name for the ruffed grouse, which is common throughout the country. The blue, sooty or pine grouse is a timber bird which is plentiful all over the Island.

Two kinds of quail have been introduced with success on Vancouver Island, the California valley quail and the mountain quail.

Brant are shot almost entirely over decoys and from shore blinds. The birds are excellent for the table. Low shore points and sandspits are best places for this sport.

Canada geese are shot in large numbers up the east and west coasts of the Island. Live decoys are best, sheet iron profile decoys taking second place.

Snipe are found in the ditches in the fields during November and December and on the flats around the lakes and low-lying meadows.

Mallards, widgeon, pin-tail, buffle-head, golden-eye, blue-bills and some teal make up the greater portion of the duck tribe found on the Island.

Blacktail Deer are numerous in season, and found in nearly all parts of the Island. Deer-hunting with dogs is illegal.

Black bear are found all over Vancouver Island. Some good sized specimens are shot every year, and while they are occasionally seen from the roadside, it requires good dogs and a guide acquainted with the country to get them, as a rule.

Wapiti (American Elk) are found in the interior of the Island, but at present are protected for a term of years.

Cougar, known variously as panther or mountain lion, are plentiful in many districts. To hunt them with success, it is necessary to employ guides who will provide suitable dogs. The Provincial Government, by putting on a bounty of $15 a head, classes them as vermin, as also wolves.

Wolves, both black and grey, are found in the northern and northwestern districts of Vancouver Island, but are seldom seen by the casual hunter. Bounty, $15 a head.

The Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway services have been maintained, and the line and equipment are up to a good standard. There has been no new construction during the past twelve months, but recent increased production in lumber and fisheries, resulting from the operation of this line, encourages the belief that extensions in due season will be mutually advantageous to both the company and the island settlers.

Canadian National Railways

A NATIONAL UTILITY FOR NATIONAL SERVICE

Fourteen Thousand Miles of Railway Under Operation in the Dominion Between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans

THE Canadian National Railways System is a National Utility devoted to the service of the Canadian people. Not only is it engaged in the great work of transportation, but also in the important task of Colonization and Industrial Development in the richly endowed territory which its lines traverse in the nine provinces of the Dominion. The system today comprises 14,000 miles, all of which is under operation. Every section of the Dominion is reached, and connections are made with United States Railways at international border points, East and West, and also with finest Steamship Services on both coasts, carrying traffic to and from all countries in the Orient and Occident. The rolling stock equipment is of the highest order, and is being constantly increased to meet traffic demands. During the past six months orders have been placed for hundreds of freight cars and passenger coaches, and for locomotives of latest types. The standard passenger trains of the Canadian National Railways are the very embodiment of travel comfort.

Along the Canadian National in British Columbia

Industrial and Resources Department

To promote Land Settlement and Industrial Development, an Industrial and Resources Department has been organized, with offices in Eastern and Western Canada, Great Britain and the United States. These offices are in charge of men familiar with the needs and possibilities of the country, who are conducting a well planned practical publicity campaign to make known among a desirable class of people the potential natural resources and the many advantages the Dominion has to offer in the fields of agriculture, stock raising, orcharding, manufacturing, mining and all branches of human effort and industry. The Canadian offices are in charge of John Wardrop, General Agent, Room 100, Union Station, Winnipeg, for Western Canada; and C. Price Green, Commissioner, King Street East, Toronto, for Eastern Canada. The United States office is in charge of DeWitt Foster, Superintendent of Resources, Marquette Building, Chicago, Ill. Enquiries from the different districts should be sent to these offices respectively. A list of business and industrial opportunities on Canadian National Railways in Western Canada will be furnished on application.

Lucerne Station

Short Fast Route to and From Prairies.

The Canadian National Railways afford a short and fast route between Central and Southern British Columbia and all sections of Alberta, Saskatchewan nd Manitoba, especially the Central and Northern Sections, making it the most desirable route for the transport of commodities that are interchanged between these provinces. As a transcontinental and international carrying route its advantages are such that appeal to discerning shippers. The service cannot be excelled. Application for particulads to nearest district traffic official will receive prompt attention.

Rich Country Made Accessible.

Passing as it does through extensive areas of fertile agricultural and pasture lands, great forests of finest merchantable timber and rich mineral belts in British Columbia, the Canadian National has made accessible for homeseekers, stockmen, lumbermen and miners a heritage abounding on every hand with opportunities that, with industry and thrift, spell prosperity and happiness.

With towns already established and having all the usual educational, religious and fraternal organizations that are today considered essential features of civilization, settlers from the older countries in the east and south and from overseas will find a friendly welcome and a wholesome social life in progressive communities of generous-hearted, good-living people. Added to this, a pleasant climate, a picturesque country of hills and valleys, lakes, rivers and mountain cascades, there is little left to be desired by the home-builder who delights to live and work among beautiful environments, the lovely gifts of nature.

Kamloops-Vernon-Kelowna Extension

This year the work of constructing an extension of the Canadian National Railways from Kamloops to the famous Vernon and Kelowna fruit-growing districts, a distance of 150 miles, has been undertaken. This line will open up a magnificent country, where thousands of broad acres of most productive land await settlement and development.

Canadian National Scenic Route

Modern appreciation of the commercial importance of easy grades, for which the Canadian National is famous, demanded that the line through the mountains should have no more "rise and fall" than was necessary. In difficult country such a result can be worked out at reasonable cost only where great rivers open up the way. So, paralleling important waterways has always been the delight of railway engineers. Far back in the prairie provinces from the time the Saskatchewan River was first touched, the Canadian National main line was built with this feature of the valleys in mind. When the Saskatchewan swung away to the south, near Edmonton, the Athabaska was met with and utilized. When it, in turn, was left at

Timber, Vancouver Island

Jasper, the Miette was followed up through the Yellowhead Pass and down to Yellowhead Lake at Lucerne. Follow, in succession, the upper reaches of the Fraser, the McLennan, the Albreda, the North Thompson, the Main Thompson and the Fraser from Lytton to its outlet into the waters of the Pacific near Vancouver. The constructing engineers secured for the Canadian National an almost unbelievably easy grade between the prairies and the Pacific—a grade that does not involve a rise of more than 40 feet in any one mile, and that affecting but a short portion of one short division. Down the two Thompsons and along the Fraser a rock bed for the rails was carved out of the gorges, holding the line level and steady, clear through to the Pacific Coast. Far below, the blue waters growl and roar as the train steams along the canyons and through some four and one-half miles of tunnel between the Yellowhead Pass and the Coast. The magnitude of the task of building railways in mountain country becomes indelibly engraved upon the memory, and on the occasions where the chasms are spanned by steel bridges, the train cutting across the view, this impression grows into an ineffaceable conviction.

The Fraser was named to perpetuate the exploit of Simon Fraser, of the North West Company, who, in 1808, led an expedition of discovery to its mouth. The river is particularly famous for the salmon which frequent its waters. It is about 750 miles in length and drains an area of 91,700 square miles.

A rush of miners to the Fraser country occurred in 1858. Some of the eager miners crossed the Isthmus of Panama, others rounded Cape Horn, and still others made long wearisome journeys overland. Many of the points in the valley date back to those stirring days of the gold rush, of which many narratives and romances have been written during the last half-century.

On the C. N. R. North of Kamloops

KAMLOOPS—Strategically located at the point of confluence of the North Thompson and Main Thompson rivers. The name is an adaptation of an Indian name variously derived. Its derivation in one case was given as from "Kamalulipa," meaning "cut through and water meeting." It is also referred to as a place called by the Indians "Cumcloups." Again it is referred to as "Camps" and "Loup," meaning in the jargon of the "coureur du bois" the "field of the wolf." It is the centre of a ranching, fruit-growing and possibly mining district, the importance of which latter has been greatly increased by the construction of the Canadian National Railway.

LYTTON—Located at the intersection of the Thompson and Fraser rivers, was named after Lord Lytton. It is a distributing point for interior towns.

ASHCROFT—The natural gateway to the Cariboo country and the Nechaco Valley. It is the outfitting point to the Highland Valley country. The name was derived from the house of the Cornwalls in England, residence of the late Lieutenant-Governor Ashcroft.

YALE—A busy point in early days of mining. It was the head of navigation on the Fraser and the starting point for the Cariboo country. It was named after Mr. Yale, a former factor of the Hudson's Bay Company, who established it as a fort.

CHILLIWACK—On the east bank of the Fraser, 55 miles east of New Westminster. It is the centre of the finest and best developed agricultural districts in the province.

NEW WESTMINSTER—Was the capital of the colony of British Columbia before its union with Vancouver Island. There was a dispute as to whether it should be named "Queensborough" or "Queenborough," and upon reference to the Imperial authorities, her late Majesty Queen Victoria was asked to select a name. New Westminster was her choice, the reason for its being locally termed the "Royal City."

VANCOUVER—Mainland terminus of the Canadian National Railway, commercial metropolis of Canada's Pacific Coast Province, is one of Canada's finest cities. Yet its site was a forest in 1885. Vancouver has a fine harbor with extensive wharves and warehouses. Its industries include railroad shops, sugar refinery, canneries, fish packing establishments and iron works. There are several fine parks, of which the most famous is Stanley Park, located at a promontory at the harbor entrance, 1,000 acres in extent. It is famous for its great trees. Pauline Johnson, a Canadian poetess, is buried there. From Vancouver steamers sail regularly to Japan, China, Australia, Hawaii, New Zealand, Alaska, and Pacific Coast points, both in Canada and in the United States.

VICTORIA—The capital of British Columbia, is now served by the Canadian National, which extends many miles through Vancouver Island. Here is a delightful outing that should not be overlooked. So delightful is the climate that it is not unusual to gather roses and strawberries from the garden for Christmas dinner.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and Steamships Serve Central British Columbia and Coast Districts

THE Grand Trunk Pacific Railway traverses the heart of Central British Columbia, serving the choicest tourist, agricultural, mining and industrial districts, including the fertile Bulkley and Nechaco Valley districts, reaching the coast at Prince Rupert. From a scenic point of view the grandest scenery of the Canadian Rocky Mountains is located on the Grand Trunk Pacific. In fact, from its entrance of the mountain country through the Yellowhead Pass, Jasper Park and Mount Robson Park, along the Bulkley and Skeena rivers, it is a continuous panorama for unsurpassed mountain scenery. It is a tour of a thousand wonders. The steamships "Prince Rupert" and "Prince George," of the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Co., ply between Prince Rupert and Anyox to the north, and Prince Rupert, Swanson Bay, Ocean Falls, Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle to the south. These steamships are the finest and fastest in the North Pacific Coast service, and are modern in every detail. The Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Company also have a line of vessels operating between Queen Charlotte Islands and Prince Rupert.

The districts of Central British Columbia afford opportunities beyond number for farming, dairying, ranching, mining, lumbering, fishing, etc.

CENTRAL BRITISH COLUMBIA FEATURES THAT ATTRACT

Markets

One of the first and perhaps the most important question to be asked by a new settler in a new country is: What market conditions exist? The agricultural territory along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in Central British Columbia from the Alberta Boundary to Prince Rupert is extremely well provided with markets within reasonable distances of the point from which the produce is to be shipped. There are in operation directly served by the Grand Trunk Pacific, fifty-one lumber mills that are practically all located in districts that are not adapted to agriculture. These mills range in capacity from 20,000 to 125,000 feet of finished lumber per mill per day, besides their by-products, such as lath and shingles. It is estimated that these mills directly support between 25,000 and 50,000 people who look to the agriculturist of Central British Columbia to supply them with vegetables, cereals, meats, dairy products, in fact everything produced in a mixed farming district.

From Burns Lake to Prince Rupert is an extensive mining territory which will, in the near future, be supporting many thousands of people who will also look to the agriculturist for supplies. Several mines are now in operation and others are in various stages of development.

Prince Rupert depends entirely on outside markets for produce of all kinds. Prince Rupert is the centre of the Pacific Coast fishing industry, which will ultimately support a population of 15,000 people. An extensive shipbuilding plant is also in operation here.

Alaska and the Yukon, which are directly north of Prince Rupert, look to the interior of British Columbia for many farm products, particularly hay, which has been shipped to northern points for a number of years. This market demands a good quality of hay and pays good prices to the producer.

The climate is ideal. The warm Japan current, which flows north until it strikes the Alaskan coast, then flows south along the coast of Oregon, exercises a moderating influence on the climate, especially over the central interior of the province, through which the Grand Trunk Pacific passes. Whether it be the hardness and quality of the grain, or the flavor and excellence of the fruit, the central interior of British Columbia is peculiarly favored as the most fortunate of countries in the ideal conditions sought by the agriculturist, dairyman, fruit-grower, or the man who desires most for the least expenditure of labor or capital.

The long summer days of eighteen hours' sunlight, the extreme fertility of the soil, and the temperate, well-balanced climate insure quick growth and maturing of crops.

No definite records have been kept of the annual precipitation in Central British Columbia along the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific, but over the enormous area of fertile lands there is no necessity for irrigation or even careful intense cultivation, as the precipitation is always sufficient to insure requisite growth and maturity. Where the rainfall is lightest in early summer, in the Nechaco district, the dews are very heavy, falling practically every night in density equal to light rain.

Summer frosts are not frequent, and owing to the warmth of the soil on the rare occasions when they have been experienced, apparently they do no crop damges. As the land comes under cultivation, naturally any danger from summer frosts should disappear.

Social Conditions Are Good

The population of this section of British Columbia, widely scattered and composed of many nationalities, is singularly peaceful and law-abiding. Life and property are well protected and individual rights respected. General prosperity is the prevailing condition throughout the country, for none need be idle or penniless who is able and willing to work. The larger towns are well supplied with libraries and reading rooms, and the Provincial Government has a system of travelling libraries, by which the rural districts are furnished free with literature of the best description.

The cities and larger towns have well-equipped hospitals, supported by government grants and private subscriptions, and few of the smaller towns are without cottage hospitals, and enjoy electric light, water works and telegraph and telephone connections. Daily newspapers are published in the larger places, and some mining camps have their semi-weeklies or weekly papers.

The Industrial Department of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is in close touch with development of all kinds, and is in a position to give valuable information and assistance to those who are looking for an industrial or business opening. A letter addressed to that department (Winnipeg) outlining the needs of the enquirer will receive prompt attention and full particulars as to the most desirable locality will be given, as well as any further assistance needed.

FISHING — HUNTING — SHOOTING

IN THE LILLOOET DISTRICT SERVED BY

The Pacific Great Eastern Railway

One hundred and sixty miles north of Vancouver, is one of the best big-game preserves in British Columbia. Grizzly bear, cougar, mountain sheep and goat abound in the hills and mountains.

The known haunts of most of these animals are within 20 miles of Lillooet town and extend for many miles in all directions.

This country offers the hunter and sportsman possibilities of the greatest interest and a variety unequalled.

Experienced guides and complete outfits are available.

"North by West in the Sunlight"

FOR COMMERCE, SPORT AND EASE ON THE UNION STEAMSHIP LINE

Scope of Activities

A GLANCE at the coast map of British Columbia will give some impression of the vast territory covered by the ten vessels of this company, but only personal experience can prove the intricate network of ports of call, whose very existence so far as stores and materials are concerned, lies in the capable hands directing operations from the Union Dock.

The direct route between Vancouver and Anyox measures about 600 miles, but the ceaseless passing up and down of the perfectly timed and handled vessels would make the total mileage for any one week nearly ten times this figure—veritably a stupendous distance, eating up coal and oil by the thousands of tons and gallons—transporting stores of every description, returning to port with full cargoes of all the varying products of sea, stream and forest, and carrying full complements of passengers on pleasure or business bent, whose every want is studied with the greatest consideration by all officials of the company.

From the great salmon canneries the huge packs are shipped each season, mainly by vessels of the Union Steamship Company, to Vancouver or Prince Rupert to be again despatched across the continent or by steamers to Europe or Australia; the sawmills yield of the freshly cut timbers, the mines their gold and copper, while dozens of other industries up the coast use their service for transportation of products.

Shipments of Stores

Across the Gulf of Georgia, traversing the Northern waters, sailing the great winding inlets which are such a feature of the coast of British Columbia, the freighters of the company pursue their steady course, carrying the necessary stores of food, tools, machinery, etc. There is never a camp opened within 500 miles of Vancouver but one of their vessels gives speedy notice of approach by her whistle—one long, two short, one long again—and is very welcome for her deliverance of the heterogeneous goods which are necessary for the providing of cannery or camp.

Some of the Runs

Assuming the reader has a map of the coast line by him, perhaps the best method of describing the scope of activities of the company is by mentioning some of the regular runs taken Winter and Summer by various vessels.

(a) Surf Inlet, Prince Rupert, Skeena and Naas River canneries. (The celebrated Tonopah-Belmont Mine, and some famous canneries).

(b) Rivers Inlet, Ocean Falls, Bella

Coola route. (A great country for the fisherman and sportsman, with many canneries of importance).

(c) Ocean Falls, Swanson Bay, Prince Rupert, Anyox route. (Pulp and paper settlements of magnitude, the terminal of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and the Granby Consolidated Mines).

These three runs, taken at random from the schedule, are eloquent of distance covered, and, calling on settlements of such importance, give a good impression of the quantity of cargo regularly carried by vessels of the company.

For the Sportsman

The increasing number of sportsmen who visit the coast yearly for the purpose of fishing and shooting proves the magnificent catches to be made and bags filled on water or land.

Every lake and stream of this province (save those which have a snow or ice source) is teeming with trout. Every isle and islet a prospective and probable shelter, on shore and inland, of duck, geese and deer, while throughout the various districts mentioned and others easy of access are to be found goat, cougar, with black, cinnamon and grizzly bear. In their seasons grouse, pheasants and plover are plentiful, and in the milder places, through infrequency of man's presence, yield excellent bags.

It may be suggested that every essential to camp outfitting can be obtained in Vancouver; and further, in view of the variety of sport in prospect, both shotgun and rifles of varying calibre, together with well assorted fishing tackle, should be carried.

From the fisherman's point of view, it is to be doubted if any districts on the continent can vie with this; the trout are of every variety, many running to 16 pounds in weight, while at Campbell River, about nine hours from Vancouver, the mighty Tyee Salmon of 70 lbs. may be taken by the sporting method of trolling.

Noted Sport Centres

Rivers Inlet—25 hours from Vancouver. For fish, geese, grouse, deer and bear.

Kitimat—40 hours from Vancouver. Trout, duck, geese and grouse (and in the near vicinity bear, deer and wolf).

Kimsquit—30 hours from Vancouver. good fishing and splendid goat hunting.

Bella Coola—30 hours from Vancouver. Trout of many species, with Dolly Vardens up to 16 pounds, on the fly. Duck, geese, goat, deer and bear, including the grizzly.

The stress and strain of modern existence makes occasional relaxation an essential, and no more effective form of this can be obtained than voyaging in a well-found and silently moving vessel along the shore line of this coast, where the waters are never rough, and glowing sunshine above, with vivid rich-toned waters beneath, bestow that perfect rest so essential to the tired city worker.

The ease which comes from care of the body is enhanced by the restfulness of mind induced through the sweeping panoramic vision unfolding

"The majesty of Nature, laid to rest
In an eternal, God-provided breast."

During the summer months, nothing can be more delightful than a tour of from two to six days along the wonders of the coast, and the Union Steamship Company have a justly deserved reputation for catering and service, which adds in no small measure to the happiness of the traveller.

Within a few hours' run from Vancouver are a number of beauty spots which are patronized every season by the rest lovers and artists. Here, on the golden shores stretching to the Gulf of Georgia, backed by the virgin woods, are summer homes of the many who love to spend their vacations amid the glorious surroundings of Nature, while enjoying the pleasant and profitable sports of bathing, fishing and boating.

Among some of the most famous and beautiful spots in this connection may be mentioned Selma Park, operated by the Union Steamship Company, where cottages and bungalows may be hired by the month. Also Sechelt and Half Moon Bay nearby, which offer surroundings and good accommodation.

Another place which deservedly holds a high place in esteem of the summer dweller is Savary Island, with a foreshore of the wonderful sands, while Buccaneer Bay is considered so ideal for camping that the British Columbia Telephone Company have obtained a site and equipped it for the benefit of employees on their vacations.

BRITISH COLUMBIA, as an entire province, offers many attractions to the automobilist, but it may be taken for granted that once inside the boundary of the province, no matter from what part the tourist may come, Vancouver will be his Mecca. Victoria, New Westminster, Nanaimo, Kelowna, Penticton, Nelson, Cranbrook, the beautiful fruit country of the Okanagan, high and breezy Kamloops, Revelstoke, and many other places are sure to prove attractive, but Vancouver has a fascination and a beauty all its own. A city vocal with the hum of industry, a city of myriad lights, its streets full of animation and color, its grand park, which for scenic beauty has won world wide fame, its many centres of intellectual and artistic culture, make an irresistible appeal.

Vancouver is a city of a hundred thousand souls. Nature has poured out in its surroundings a lavish profusion of every beauty of earth, and sea, and sky. Mountains lift their snow white heads to the glowing heavens. All about the city are valleys, robed in richest green, and gemmed with lakes and glittering streams. The glory of the sunset, such a sunset as can only be seen in Vancouver, is almost matched by the splendid tints of the autumnal forests. At night the shimmering stars are mirrored deep in the shining sea.

Vancouver is a city set amidst scenes full of beauty and radiant with color, and Vancouver is rising to an appreciation of the power of beauty, of fragrance, and form and color and light—the music of tumbling and falling waters.

All around this city there are spots easily reached in the Fraser Valley, Huntingdon, Abbotsford, Chilliwack, Harrison Hot Springs, Steveston, Whytecliff, Horseshoe Bay, Buccaneer Bay, Sechelt, Cloverdale, Ladner, Mission, and many other beautiful spots, which tempt the tourist.

Vancouver gives you access to the mighty Fraser, navigable for one hundred and fifty miles, so that if, at any time the motorist wishes to change his holiday venue he can leave the road for the river. Should he be a mountaineer he has but to cross the ferry, which conveys his car to North Vancouver, and within a little while he is among peaks and glaciers, table lands, crevasses and summits which drive such mountaineers as Whymper and Longstaffe wild with ecstasy and make them declare that British Columbia is a dozen Switzerlands rolled into one.

Howe Sound is dotted with islands. Nowhere is there a more beautiful trip than to Bowen Island, where there is excellent hotel accommodation. Where can be found a more enjoyable trip than that to the Wigwam Inn, Indian River? Into the short voyage there are crowded experiences such as a traveller could hardly hope to have in several days of travel. Mountains rise here with precipitation into the sky, while some seem ascending by gentle slopes inviting a walk more than a climb. So loved, so familiar, are these mountains that they are called by pet names suggested by their configuration. "The Lions," no misnomer, for the summits of two glorious mountains are just like lions couchant guarding the portals of the city. Millions of post-cards of the Vancouver Lions have found their way to all corners of the earth. Soldiers in the trenches viewed the pictures with the same affectionate veneration as the Japanese feel for Fujiyama, the sacred mountain.

The mountain range of Vancouver has also a "Sleeping Beauty," a glorious mountain top, which reposing in the evening sunlight seems to rest and breathe and one almost expects to see it wake up to the joy of life. Gleaming glaciers reflect brilliant sunshine in every line of purple, yellow, mauve, blue and gold. Vancouver is such a city as would have tempted Turner to fresh glories. It is a city which seems to breathe the spirit of freedom and liberty, and many men returning to this city after incarceration in a German prison have breathed the exultation of William Tell, though he may not have voiced his feelings in the identical words which Sheridan Knowles put into the mouth of the beauty loving and liberty loving patriot.

The charm of Vancouver is its happy Bohemian unconventional spirit. English Bay has not only the sylvan beauty, but the primitive freedom of an ancient Eden. Should there be an invalid in delicate health she can find along the fringe of Stanley Park sheltered and wooded nooks, and corners with the silver sand at her feet, and the blue waters within her view, where she may bathe in sunshine, and where the winds of heaven will not visit her cheek too roughly.

Vancouver is a city for the young and for the old. A city for the sturdy and athletic man and woman. It is a paradise for sportsmen, for in their proper seasons there are fishing, shooting and big game hunting within reach of all. The good shot may soon fill his bag with grouse, pheasant, duck or mallard. There is sea fishing for those who like the more robust forms of exercise for rod or line, while many a mountain stream will test the skill of the most expert fly fisherman. There are golf links within easy reach of the heart of the city. Baseball grounds so excellent that the most famous teams are always delighted to play in Vancouver. Cricket and bowling are pastimes well maintained, nor does the city lack attention to the aesthetic side of life, for there are intellectual and artistic associations, clubs, and coteries such as cities many times the size and age of Vancouver might well be proud to boast.

"The play is the thing," says Hamlet, speaking of dramatic matters, and to parody the Prince of Denmark, the motorist will say with emphasis, "The road is the thing" which counts when you are undertaking a trip for health or pleasure. You may have a good car, the weather may be all that you could desire, and the scenery enchanting. But if the road is bad, all the keen edge will be taken off your enjoyment, and the praises you would be bestowing on the landscape will give way to irreverent cuss words.

British Columbia has splendid highways which have been constructed from time to time under different administrations, the work being done, it must be admitted, spasmodically, but on the whole well done, and the sum total is an aggregate of which such a young country may well be proud.

You might tour over the whole American continent for twelve months and at the end of that time if you came to take stock of what you had seen, you would recall the International Georgian Circuit with the greatest amount of pleasure. Into a week's tour in this region, which lies between the southwest portion of the Canadian province and the northwest corner of the United States, you would have found every varying scenery, delightful prospects of sea and sky, and that British Columbia was of natural beauty "all compact."

Let us assume for a moment that the tourist reaches us from Seattle. He will have seen the delightful country of Tacoma, and Olympia and enjoyed the scenic drive in the Olympic Peninsula. Having been ferried across the strait he will reach Victoria, B C., and there will make the acquaintance of the fine highways which have with immense labor and at immense cost been hewn out of the primitive forest by men, who had a vision of what British Columbian cities would be, and who saw in the "mind's eye" the roads necessary for linking the companionable population together.

Westminster, Nanaimo, have all a number of delightfully pleasant drives and there are rival claims as to which are the most pleasant. Each city has its admirers and its champions, and there is a friendly rivalry, a healthy emulation, which leads to the achievement of good results.

Pacific Highway, Entering New Westminster

Candor compels us to state that on British Columbia the hand of war has been laid heavily. Much "man power" has been diverted from useful pursuits to the harmful, but alas! necessary, destructive work of fighting in Flanders. Millions of dollars which would have made and maintained necessary roads in British Columbia have been necessarily spent in England, France and Belgium. But though during the last four years construction work has been far less than it should have been, yet the great main arteries of the Province have been kept in fairly good condition, and roads have not been allowed to fall into such neglect that to put them into good shape will be very expensive. In matters physical, financial, and one might add moral, British Columbia has a reputation for speedy recuperation, and unless there are unforseen circumstances, of which we have at present no hint, the Province will soon become not only her former self, but have an added charm, strength and beauty. One might be tempted to go into details of the attractions which British Columbia offers to the tourist, but reasons of space, not want of matter, tempt us to summarize.

The Canadian highways, the neighborhoods of Cameron Lake, and Alberni, the lovely country round Cowichan Lake, the beauty of Esquimalt Harbor and the Malahat Mountains, all these delightful places have been often described in terms of the warmest admiration. There are tourists who visit these secenes year after year, for "time cannot wither, nor custom stale their infinite variety."

Have you a turn in your mind towards things scientific you will naturally take an interest in Observatory Hill, upon which is the second largest telescope in the world. Are you a lover of the sea, you will hie to Beacon Hill, Victoria, and admire the innumerable beautiful bays which lie within your view, especially Cadboro Bay, where the Royal Victoria Yacht Club has its home.

Let us return to Vancouver City and its surrounding beauty spots, such as "Beautiful Burnaby" with its lovely lake, on the edges of which several artists have built their homes. Mission and Harrison Hot Springs, the Carlsbad of Canada, will not be neglected by the motorist, and nearer to Vancouver City is the Capilano Canyon, famed for its romantic beauty and the excellent accommodation to be found in its vicinity.

Out of Vancouver City runs the Marine Drive and at Point Grey the traveller will certainly pause to admire the beautiful landscapes of a country so salubrious that it has been chosen as the site for the University of British Columbia, and the choice has been universally commended.

Further afield is the Okanagan, Kamloops and Lillooet, and anybody with a feeling for the historic will not forget Cariboo, for along the Cariboo trail came the pioneers of the Great West. All over the great areas we have named there are thriving little communities each having its own individuality, its special fascinating attractions. Rossland, Trail, Nelson, Revelstoke, will certainly be visited by those who have the time, and much information will be gleaned from those who have seen the district grow from small beginnings. So healthy is the climate that Time, though he may write his wrinkles on the brow of the rugged pioneer, yet attacks slowly the natural force of vigorous constitutions and the traveller will be surprised to find how many old forty-niners linger to tell of bygone days, and to prophesy great things for the British Columbia of the future.

On the Georgian Circuit

Motorists visiting Vancouver can obtain road maps and touring information from the Vancouver Automobile Club, headquarters Hotel Vancouver, the Island Touring Bureau, Victoria, and any automobile club in the Province.

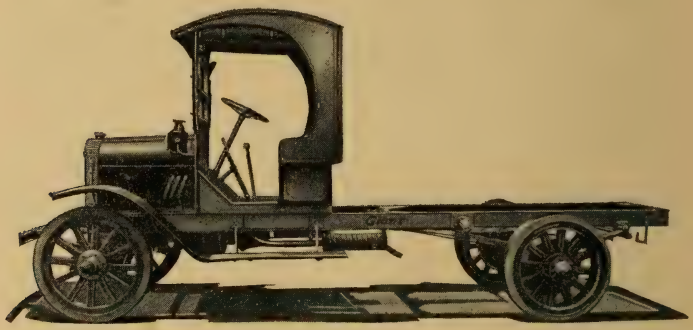
Mr. Motor Truck Buyer

Three vital points that should be thoroughly investigated before you rchase any motor truck:

1. QUALITY—The quality of parts used in construction and the man- r of assembling.

Giant Trucks are built by specialists with twenty-four years of manufac- uring experience, using Red Seal Continental Motors, Timken Axles, Timken Worm Drives, Timken Bearings and Spicer Universal Joints.



2. ECONOMY—Cost of fuel and operating expense.

Giant Trucks have an exclusive feature — the Duntley Generator. This generator superheats the fuel and thermo syphons steam into the cylinders, permitting use of either kerosene, distillate or gasoline, resulting in a saving in operating costs of fully fifty per cent.

3. SERVICE.

Giant Motor Truck Company, Vancouver, is a direct representative of the $16,000,000 factory, carrying an immense stock of repair parts. Every Giant Truck is guaranteed for one year from date of purchase, and all service and replacement of defective parts for that period are free.

Abbotsford

The town of Abbotsford is situated in the Fraser Valley, 51 miles from Vancouver, 39 miles east of New Westminster and about 3½ miles from the International Boundary line. It lies on the old Yale Road with Matsqui Prairie about 1½ miles to the north and Sumas Prairie about the same distance in a south-easterly direction. The country to the south and west is high bush and timber land. Much of it has been logged off and is being gradually cleared and settled. Rising from the town and extending in an easterly direction is Sumas Mountain, separating Matsqui and Sumas Prairies. In this height of land lie very valuable clay deposits. On the north and west of the town lies the Municipality of Matsqui. It includes a considerable area of high timbered land and Matsqui Prairie, a fertile, level area of some 15,000 acres, lying along the south shore of the Fraser River. It is a most important part of the famed Fraser Valley, admirably adapted for dairy farming, as the winters are mild and all the necessary fodder crops can be raised on the land. A surplus in hay, oats and roots has been produced and finds a ready market in New Westminster and Vancouver, as well as locally amongst the small farmers, logging camps, etc. An ideal section for the small farmer, bee-keeper, poultry rancher and dairyman. The splendid shipping facilities make Abbotsford a most inviting location for manufacturers, industrial plants, etc. On the south and east the townsite of Abbotsford is bounded by the Municipality of Sumas. It includes much of the high land to the east of the town and Sumas Prairie, a large extent of flat land, lying very low, not much above the level of the Fraser River. It is good land, easily worked and very fertile. A proposition to dyke the Prairie and drain Sumas Lake, which covers between 25,000 and 30,000 acres is now being undertaken by the Provincial Government. The town is served by the Canadian Pacific Railway, the B. C. Electric Railway (Fraser Valley division from Vancouver and New Westminster to Chilliwack) and the Great Northern Ry., connecting with the C. N. R. at Canora. Has C. P. Telegraph and B. C. Telephone. It is also a customs port of entry, with a resident collector. The population of the town actually resident within the townsite is about 300 persons, but with those residing in the immediate vicinity it is estimated there is a local population of about 800. The population of the district has been carefully estimated at about 2,500 to 3,000. Write secretary, Board of Trade, for information regarding Abbotsford District, climate, land, industrial sites, etc.

Alberni

When the visitor arrives in the Alberni Valley he realizes what the feelings of the poet, Tom Moore, were when he viewed the Vale of Avoca, in County Wicklow, where the waters of the Avon and Avoca meet, and the poet exclaimed: "There is not in the wide world a valley so sweet." Here is a valley where the heart of man can find supreme satisfaction, if he is not wedded to the grid-iron-patterned city of cement and brick, with its accompanying discordance of street sounds, its senseless rush and hurry, its poor-rich people with their half-scared, care-marked faces. Alberni, then, must be considered first as a district, and now for a summary of this truly wonderful area: The Alberni Valley is about 25 miles long and an average of about 4 miles wide. This is practically all capable of being turned to agricultural account. Today, the bulk of it is covered with one of the grandest stands of timber that North America can show. Here is where the giant firs and cedars form a reserve of wealth that ensures activity for thousands of people for many years to come. Down this wonderland valley flows the Somass River, which, before reaching the sea at the end of the valley, is strengthened in volume by the waters of the Stamp and Ash rivers, and flows on through some of the most enchanting beauty spots that form the ideal home-sites of this district. The climate is mild; all kinds of fruit, such as apples, pears, cherries, plums, strawberries, peaches, raspberries, and all that a mild temperate area can produce. There are mountains which are a perpetual charm to the eye; lakes 20 miles long and alive with fish, as are also the rivers and the sea, which touch the south end of the valley and gives a fine harbor for shipping of any dimensions that may call here. So we have mountains, valleys, lakes, woods, fruit, fish, game in abundance, mild climate, minerals (coal has been found in the valley), the sea—in short, all that is necessary to the mind and body of mankind. This valley will have a prosperous future. The wheels of prosperity are already humming. At the south end of the Alberni Valley are the twin cities of Alberni and Port Alberni, which adjoin and form practically one, being divided merely for municipal purposes. In these towns will be found up-to-date stores, sawmills, churches, schools (including high school), hospital, and all essentials to modern requirements. Has office of Prov. Govt. Agent; Prov. Assessor and Collector; Land Commissioner Alberni Land Recording District; Alberni District Registrar of the County Court; Prov. Police Constable; Gold Commissioner and Mining Recorder, Alberni Mining Division; Agent Dom. Dept. of Indian Affairs; Govt. Telegraph and Telephone. A branch of the C.P.R. serves the valley and the two towns, and gives regular service to Victoria, Nanaimo, Vancouver and all points on the C.P.R. system. Besides rail communication, a steamship service connects with Victoria and the west coast of Vancouver Island. Population, 850.

Armstrong

Armstrong is situated in the northern part of the Okanagan Valley, on the line of railway running south from Sicamous to Okanagan Lake. It is about thirty-two miles from Sicamous, and about twenty miles from Okanagan Lake. The city is within three miles of the Selkirks, on the east, which rise abruptly to a height of from three to five thousand feet above the Valley. On the west the mountains are more distant. The slopes of the mountains are covered with evergreen forests. The Valley at Armstrong is from five to eight miles wide. There is sufficient rainfall in this part of the Okanagan so that irrigation is not necessary. The snow fall in winter, which is usually quite copious , and which never drifts, ensures plenty of moisture in the soil should the rain fall be scanty any season. By careful cultivation, even the dryest benches can be made to produce abundantly. The climate is healthful.

The immediate surroundings of Armstrong consist of wondrously fertile bottom land, many thousand acres in extent. Here the finest celery in the world is raised, as well as vegetables of all kinds. Grass also grows luxuriantly on this bottom making it possible to pasture a cow for a season on one acre of land.

The bench land about Armstrong is well adapted to mixed farming. An ever-increasing acreage is being put down to alfalfa, which does well in the clay soil of the benches. Three crops can be harvested each season. Dairying is engaged in to a considerable extent and is a growing industry. A well-equipped up-to-date creamery runs throughout the year and is doing a prosperous business. Grain does well on the benches, especially winter wheat. Small fruits, apples, plums, cherries, etc., thrive well. The climate is well adapted to poultry and bees. In the outskirts of the municipality of Spallumcheen, of which Armstrong is the centre, are extensive ranges for cattle and horses. Here may still be seen the picturesque but fast disappearing cowboy, with his striking dress and equipment.

During 1918 three exchanges have taken care of the produce of the farmers. One of these is a farmers exchange.

During the summer of 1919 the C. N. R. will construct a line of railway from Kamloops, through Armstrong on to Vernon and other points further south.

Good roads for automobiling connect Armstrong with all points up and down the Valley, as well as with Kamloops on the west, and Lumby and other points on the east. The scenery along these roads is as fine as earth, air and water can make it.

Camping places for summer outings are numerous on Okanagan Lake, one arm of which is only ten miles distant, and on Mabel Lake, which lies twenty miles to the east of Armstrong. The Shuswap Lake to the north, the Okanagan Lake to the south, Mabel and Sugar Lakes to the east, and Salmon River to the west, abound in many kinds of fish; e.g., trout (brook, rainbow, Dolly Varden, salmon, etc.); deer are plentiful on the mountains; grouse and wild water-fowl of several varieties are within easy reaching distance. The sportsman finds a good field in Armstrong and its environs for the exercise of his skill.

The Armstrong public and high schools take high standing in the Province. They have splendidly equipped manual training, domestic

The water for all purposes in the city is secured from a mountain stream. The supply is always abundant, cool and pure.

The city owns its electric light plant and the service is continuous.

Churches of the leading denominations are established and have resident pastors.

The population within the incorporated area is 1,000.

BASQUE

a flag station on the C.N.R. (Hammond's Spur), and on Thompson River, 7½ miles west of Ashcroft, in Yale Provincial Electoral District, 196 miles east of Vancouver. No agent; freight and express charges must be prepaid. Local resources: Ranching, cattle and sheep, growing of alfalfa, potatoes, beans and other vegetables. It is expected 100 carlots will be shipped this season. The soil is volcanic ash, similar to that in the Yakima Valley in Washington, which, with irrigation, produces wonderful crops. The beans are the finest produced in the Dominion. This year extensive acreage has been devoted to producing vegetable seed for the Dominion Government. Mail should be addressed via Ashcroft. (See also Ashcroft and Epsom).

BIG EDDY

is a farming district, 2 miles west of Revelstoke, across Columbia River, in Revelstoke Provincial Electoral District. It derives its name from a big eddy in the Columbia River at a point where the Big Eddy mill was burned down a few years ago. The mill will be built again soon on account of the abundance of timber to the north, on the Columbia River, and being close to the C.P.R. track. The old mill had a capacity of 125,000 feet per day. It is reached by auto stage from Revelstoke, the business centre and nearest C.P.R. telegraph office, and connected by telephone. Population, 125. Local resources: Farming, timber in abundance, good hunting and fishing all the year round, and good trapping in winter, some land available suitable for mixed farming and small fruits. CAPILANO a post office and scenic resort on Capilano River, which is 19 miles long, and flows southward into Burrard Inlet at the First Narrows. Capilano Canyon is one of the many beauty spots round Vancouver, and is visited by many thousands annually. The scenery is unsurpassed, the river flowing through a rocky canyon clothed with bracken, lichens and ferns, the coloring of which seems to be reflected in the water. The upper section of the river is utilized by the City of Vancouver for its water supply.

a mining camp on north fork of Salmon River, 7 miles north of Erie, West Kootenay.

CRANBERRY LAKE

now known as Swift Creek.

Cranbrook

a city of about 3,000 population, has a gravity water system owned by the city, sewerage, and electric light, and power day and night. The electric light and power plant is owned by a private company, the Cranbrook Electric Light Co., Ltd. Here also are located the head offices of the Kootenay Telephone Lines, Ltd., which system links up the district with the telephone systems of Alberta, British Columbia, Washington and Idaho.

Has office of Prov. Govt. agent; Assessor and Collector, Fort Steele District; Land Commissioner, Cranbrook Land Recording District; District Engineer, Public Works Dept.; Deputy Collector of Inland Revenue (Canada) and Collector of Customs; District Registrar of Supreme and County Court, and Prov. Police Constable.

The city is pleasantly situated in the valley of the Kootenay River, which lies between the Rocky and Selkirk ranges. It is surrounded by an excellent farming district, which will eventually alone guarantee the continued prosperity of the city. It is a divisional point of the C. P. R., being situated on the main line of the Crow's Nest branch. From Cranbrook a branch line of the C. P. R. runs to Kimberley, 19 miles north, a mining town whose output of silver-lead ore is the greatest on the continent and possibly is, at the present time, the greatest in the world. This branch also touches Wycliffe, 9 miles from Cranbrook, where are situated the sawmills of the Otis-Staples Lumber Co., Ltd. Another branch of the C. P. R. runs from Cranbrook to Golden, making connection between the Crow branch and the main line, and tapping the rich valley of the Columbia River. This line passes through the old mining town of Fort Steele, 11 miles from Cranbrook, which in earlier days added millions in coarse gold to the wealth of the country and is still augmenting it by a considerable output of fine gold from the washings of the rich tailings of former days. Wardner and Bull River, both mill towns, are served by this branch, and are within convenient distance of Cranbrook to insure that city getting the largest share of their business. To the west of Cranbrook, on the main Crow line, is the town of Wattsburg, 7 miles distant, where the mills of the Wattsburg Lumber Co. are located. Between Wattsburg and Cranbrook, 4 miles from the latter, is one of the mills of the East Kootenay Lumber Co.

The country adjacent to Cranbrook has been exploited as a fruit-growing district, but this has proved to have been a mistake and was never concurred in by the people of the district. It has been demonstrated, however, that it is one of the best mixed farming districts in the Province, as the farms of the Beattie-Murphy Co., Peter Woods, the St. Eugene Mission, Fred Clarke, Norman McLure, Harry Edwards and various others amply testify. The range for cattle and horses is practically unlimited and furnishes an abundance of grass and water. Sheep-raising in this part is only in its infancy, but is proving a successful and profitable industry.

The soil of the district is a rich loam and is especially fitted for hay, oats and potato growing, as well as other vegetables analagous to the latter. The potato crop has been grown in a haphazard kind of way, with, as a rule, very little attention to seed. As a consequence, while the yield is large the quality, for competitive market, has not been good enough to secure the best results. This has been demonstrated in the cases of those who have had the best experience in the growing of potatoes and who have carefully selected their seed. Their returns have amply justified the extra care exercised. This matter has been actively taken up by the Farmers' Institute and an educative campaign inaugurated, which will greatly benefit the potato grower.

The scenery of this district is magnificent and of great variety, ranging from the grandeur of the Rockies and Selkirks, where God has manifested His creative power, to the well-trimmed lawns and garden nooks where man, assisted by Nature, has exercised his ingenuity. The roads are good, and radiate in all directions from the city. There are over one hundred automobiles in Cranbrook, and a live Automobile Club.

The hunting and fishing are magnificent and are carefully preserved and encouraged by the Rod and Gun Club. Premier Lake, which was stocked with salmon fry in August, 1915, is now furnishing rare sport, with fish ranging from 9 to 14 pounds in weight.

With its mild climate, good scenery, fishing and hunting, this is a rare paradise for the sportsman, while the development of the business interests and the greater development which is looked for in the future, when the water-powers, iron ore deposits, gypsum, silver-lead and other riches are exploited.

Cumberland

the home of the famous Comox steam coal. The largest centre of population on Vancouver Island, north of Nanaimo, is the chief centre of production for the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Ltd., the largest coal operators on Vancouver Island, the Cumberland mines having an output of 55,000 tons per month. The city is situated in Comox Provincial Electoral District, in the foothills of the Beauford Mountains on Comox Lake, and connects with Union Bay, which is 12 miles southeast, the shipping point for Canadian Collieries (D) Ltd., and also with the E. & N. Ry., at Royston, four miles east, by C.C. (D) Ltd. Ry. Comox Lake is one of the beauty spots of the island, and affords excellent fishing and boating and is the supply reservoir for the C.C. (D) Ltd. hydro-electric plant. The scenery on this lake is superb and all tourists should arrange to spend a half day viewing the varied scenery of this beautiful lake. The city is reached by an excellent automobile road connecting with the Island Highway from Courtenay, six miles distant, and from Royston, four miles distant; has electric light, water supply, local and long distance telephone and telegraph connections, customs and post office, public school (ten teachers), high school (two teachers), provincial government assessors and collectors office for Comox district, County Court office, four churches and two banks. The general stores compare with those of largest centres, and carry complete stocks of groceries, dry goods and general merchandise; three auto repair shops, carrying necessary supplies; two bake shops, Islander Publishing Co., and ample hotel accommodation, large commodious theatre, and dance hall. Large areas of good agricultural land are being opened up by government roads within easy reach of Cumberland, the produce from which will find a ready market in the city. The population of Cumberland and immediate vicinity is about 3,000, and the monthly payroll is approximately $200,000 per month. The general hospital is equipped with latest approved X-ray and has staff of matron and four nurses, two experienced doctors. The chief industry is mining, also farming and lumbering—Royston Lumber Co. Splendid camping and bathing beach at Royston and all kinds of game and fishing in season. Cumberland is a growing town, the company having erected about fifty houses for their employees during the past year. Splendid fire protection, the city having the best equipped and smartest volunteer fire brigade on the island.—A. McKinnon, city clerk.

Enderby

(By Graham Rosoman, City Clerk) is an incorporated city on the S. & O. branch of the C.P. Ry., 23 miles from Sicamous Junction, 28 miles from Okanagan Landing, 15 miles by good automobile road from main C.P.R. line at Salmon Arm. Altitude 1165 feet. Incorporated area 655 acres, estimated population within corporate limits 800; beyond limits, in surrounding district (estimated) 1,000 or, in all, about 1,800. Town is charmingly situated among low, green hills, at the head of navigation on the beautiful Shuswap River, at a spot where several tributary valleys converge, and which seems to be marked out by nature herself for a distributing, industrial and social centre. The principal industry at present, is lumbering. The sawmills have an annual capacity of 50 million feet, daily loading capacity of 300,000 feet. There is a good hotel, excellent stores carrying all the usual lines of merchandise, bank (Montreal), brickyard, livery stable, garage, printing and newspaper office (publishing The Okanagan Commoner, serving the Enderby, Armstrong and adjoining districts), cottage hospital of nine beds having a Government grant of $1 per day per patient, opera house, modern school house (cost $60,000,000, with graded and high school departments and agricultural instructor, four churches, masonic and other lodges, two daily trains, electric light, local and long distance telephone, municipal water supply. Has C.P. Telegraph office. Coal of superior quality has been found in the vicinity, and is believed by experts to exist in considerable quantity. Mabel Lake, a large body of water, lies about 20 miles east of the town. This lake affords extraordinarily good fishing, and its beaches form a favorite playground for the people of Enderby, many persons going there by motor car for week-end trips and camping there for longer periods during the summer months. The lake discharges its enormous volume of water through a narrow channel, having a fall of about 70 feet. The stream at this point is known as "The Skookumchuck," and is believed to be capable of developing many thousands of horse-power if harnessed up for hydro-electric purposes. District excellent for mixed farming, ample rainfall, no irrigation needed. Enderby apples won Banksian Silver Medal at Royal Horticultural Show, London, England, year 1910.

GILLIES BAY
a post office and farming district in centre of Texada Island, in Comox Provincial Electoral District, reached by Union SS. Co.'s boats to Van Anda, 80 miles northwest of Vancouver. Van Anda is the nearest telegraph office. The school and post office, as well as settlement are situated about 3½ miles from saltwater. Population about 100; about 75 per cent. of the settlers are Swedes. The principal farming is mixed, with some very promising orchards. Fodder crops, such as peas and oats, are grown with good results, but red clover is the main crop for winter feed for stock, and seems to thrive on all soil except swamps. This crop seems very easy to establish, and without cultivation if seeded in March or early April. An unfortunate drawback for present settlers is the fact that some 3,000 acres bordering on the waterfront and intersecting the settlement, is held by absentee owners. Some of this land is A-1 agricultural land, and would furnish homes for at least 50 families. In 1913 the Dominion Government built the present wharf at Gillies Bay at a cost of $6,000. This wharf is connected with a good road leading to the settlement and continuing to Van Anda. No boat service is as yet established, and can be feasible only when this unoccupied area of 3,000 acres is opened to settlement. At present all trading by the settlers is done at Van Anda, a distance of from 10 to 15 miles, and the produce raised by the farmers will, of necessity, be confined to products of a less sensitive nature; small fruits are adapted to this soil, and good results have proven up from small

Grand Forks

(By John A. Hutton, City Clerk.)

is a charmingly situated city, built at the junction of the main Kettle River with the North Fork, in a wide valley surrounded by beautiful mountains. Grand Forks has many substantial business blocks embracing all lines of business, splendid educational facilities comprising high and public schools with a staff of 13 teachers, fine public buildings, churches of five denominations, a good water supply, electric light and B.C. Telephone Co. exchange and C.P. Telegraph. Office of Prov. Govt. Agent, Prov. Police Constable, Gold Commissioner and Mining Recorder Grand Forks Mining Division, District Registrar Supreme and County Courts, also Deputy Collector Inland Revenue (Canada), Collector of Customs, and Dom. Veterinary officer. The Granby smelter, the largest copper smelter in the British Empire, is located here. The other industries include box factory, planning mill, iron works, the Canadian Pacific, Great Northern and Kettle Valley railways. This spells prosperity, not only for Grand Forks, but for the entire surrounding district. Another asset that has been bestowed on the Kettle Valley with a lavish hand is almost unlimited hydro-electric power, only part of which is now utilized. Many other power sites can be developed on the many streams as needed, and this, with the splendid transportation and abundant raw material, will undoubtedly attract manufacturers. Mother Nature has planted over the district a splendid growth of very valuable timber and immense quantities of pulp timber await the establishment of a pulp mill. All kinds of delicious fruits, potatoes and all other vegetables, alfalfa, timothy, all kinds of grain are grown successfully and profitably. The mild winters are conducive to the raising of stock, for the mild winters mean but little feeding during the winter months and no stabling is necessary for range stock. The climatic conditions in the Kettle Valley are excellent—no deep snow, no blizzards, and no extreme cold in winter. The middle part of the summer is warm and dry, with cool nights. Being at an altitude of 1,740 feet above sea level and between the Rockies and the coast ranges, it does not get the excessive rains of the coast districts nor the extreme lack of moisture of the dry belts, and for an all-year climate few places are its equal and fewer still its superior. A splendid system of macadamized roads have been laid out in the valley, being on the main coast to coast automobile highway. Grand Forks is served by the C.P.R. Nelson-Vancouver line, and the Great Northern Railway. It has Anglican, Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic churches. City council: Dr. G. H. Acres, mayor; Neil McCallum, James McArdle, A. Schnitter, George R. McCabe, Percy H. Harkness and John B. McDonald, aldermen. John A. Hutton, city clerk; Christina McCallum, assistant city clerk; F. R. S. Barlee, city auditor; James Norgrove, chief of police; Fred W. Reid, city engineer; Irving Spinks, city electrician; Ben Norris, chief of fire brigade.

Kamloops

situated at the junction of the waters of the North Thompson and the Thompson Rivers, and in the heart of the so-called "dry belt," is the commercial and administrative centre of the most fully developed portion of the interior of British Columbia. The first setlement took place when the Hudson's Bay Co. established a post near the present site of the city in 1813, and from this small beginning the city steadily grew from a trading post through the various stages of business and social existence until it is now a thriving town of about 5,000 population, with all the necessities and many of the luxuries of a city of five times the size. As the centre of a large and fertile agricultural section the prosperity of the city depends to a large extent on the farming population surrounding it, and as this population is steadily increasing as settlement extends and more land is brought under irrigation, Kamloops has an enviable future in store. Situated as it is in the centre of the bunchgrass range country, the cattle industry has for years held the lead as the local industry, while at the same time mixed farming has increased. The district is also rich in mineral wealth, the potentialities of which are only beginning to be realized and the stores of gold, silver, lead and copper which are known to exist will ultimately provide an important portion of the city's business. Kamloops owns and operates its own public utilities and at a cost of about $500,000 has installed a hydro-electric plant at the Barriere River, which furnishes power and light to the city, and to mines and ranches in the neighborhood. Power at low rates is available for manufacturing. Kamloops is located on two transcontinental railways, the C.P.R. and the C.N.R., and these offer the best of transportation facilities. The city has five chartered banks and two express companies to facilitate the transaction of business. It is the office of Prov. Govt. Agent, Assessor and Collector, Gold Commissioner, District Mining Engineer, Water Branch Engineer, District Forester, District Agriculturist, Prov. Deputy Inspector Kamloops Land Recording District, District Engineer Public Works Dept., Dom. Hydrometric Survey, Kamloops District Registrar of the Supreme and County Courts, Mining Recorder Kamloops Mining Division, Agent Dom. Dept. of Indian Affairs, Kamloops District. Deputy Collector Inland Revenue. Sub-Collector of Customs. Outport of Revelstoke and Dom. Veterinary officer. The city has over nine miles of cement walks and several miles of boulevards, while several of the principal streets have standard cluster lights. There is a fully equipped modern hospital of 100 beds, and an isolation hospital for infectious cases. The city has two modern public school buildings and a high school, besides two private schools. All the principal religious denominations are represented and the various fraternal orders have large memberships.

Main Wing, Kamloops Sanatorium.

Price of Farm Lands—Good lands under irrigation vary in price according to location and quality, from $100.00 to $300.00 per acre.

Fruit Lands—Ready to plant, about $200.00 per acre.

Range Lands—From $5.00 to $20 per acre.

Young Orchards—From 2 to 5 years old, without buildings, $200.00 to $400.00 per acre.

Bearing Orchards—$400 to $1,000 per acre.

IRRIGATION.

Method of Irrigating—Water is carried from main canals in ditches, flumes or pipes, and conducted along rows of trees or vegetables in ploughed furrows. Hay and alfalfa are irrigated by flooding.

Cost of Irrigating Water—$1.00 to $5.00 per acre.

Irrigation Season—Extends from May to September. Fruit trees, according to age, require two to four waterings per summer. Vegetables governed by the season, from three to four times. Hay and alfalfa in May, and again after each crop.

PRODUCTS.

Fruit, the chief product, and vegetables, including tomatoes and onions, have a present annual production of 1,350 cars. Hay and alfalfa find a ready local market, the demand exceeding the supply.

Dairy products—Principally butter, are exported in considerable quantities, in addition to supplying the local demand.

Gross returns from all crops at present approximate $1,500,000 per annum.

MARKET

Besides the extensive market of the prairie provinces, an increasing amount of fruit is annually being shipped through the port of Vancouver to Australia, New Zealand and foreign countries. A local evaporator takes care of the small apple culls. Vegetables find their chief market on the prairies. A considerable quantity is also purchased by the local canneries and evaporators.

TRANSPORTATION

This is furnished by the Canadian Pacific Ry., via Sicamous, on the main line, and at Penticton with the Kettle Valley Ry. Cars are loaded at the packing houses and transferred by barge to the railway at either end of the lake and thence to their destination. Fast freight boats are provided for perishable fruits, and express shipments are carried by the passenger steamer.

OPPORTUNITIES

Under recent abnormal conditions, it is impracticable to detail the opportunities which exist here for favorable investment or employment, but no hesitation is felt in recommending investment or settlement in the town or district.

KELOWNA

Has a population in town and district estimated at 5,000.

Is about 20 hours from Vancouver, and 96 hours from Montreal.

Has its own water, light, power and sewerage system.

Has many miles of interesting drives.

Has a telephone system with rural and long distance connections.

Has a number of shipping organizations, facilitating sale of fruit and produce.

Has three banks, mercantile houses of all classes, two newspapers, five churches, three schools, with 1* teachers, and all the prominent fraternal organizations.

Rates—Water for domestic purposes, $1.20 per month per 4,000 gallons; light, 12 cents per K.W. hour; power, 9 cents per K.W. hour; taxes, based on land only, 27 mills. Rents range from $8.00 to $25.00 per month. Residential lots sell at prices ranging from $50 to $500.

REASONS WHY KELOWNA IS A DESIRABLE PLACE TO LIVE IN

Spring opens early in March; good weather prevails until October, the cold weather usually beginning late in December. Winters for the most part are clear and bright and not severe.

Healthy climate, long dry summers, short, bracing winters, good motor roads; attractive scenery, splendid bathing, boating, good fishing, good hunting, excellent schools, reasonable rents and rates; good class of people.

Ladysmith

This city, incorporated in 1904, is situated on Oyster Harbor, 16 miles south of Nanaimo, and 60 north of Victoria. It is the shipping port of the Extension Mines, Granby Co., and most of the miners reside here. There are extensive wharves specially fitted for coaling steamers, and from this city the E. & N. Ry. ferry their freight cars across the Straits to Vancouver, 45 miles. The Ladysmith smelter is operating, smelting custom ores from the extensive copper and gold deposits in the vicinity. Has good deep-water harbor. All retail stores close on Thursday afternoons.

The name of Ladysmith is inextricably associated with the South African war during which the city came into existence, and to the transient the nomenclature at once bespeaks the connection: Warren street, Symons street, Roberts street, Baden-Powell Street, and others, named after the famous generals of the South African war.

Ladysmith is the home of the employees of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Limited. The town was founded by the Honorable James Dunsmuir with the object in view of providing good and healthy homes for his men, and at the same time having a port for the shipment of his coal. The city owns its own electric light and sewerage plants, and has a very small municipal debt. Office of Sub-Recorder Nanaimo Mining Division, Ladysmith District; Registrar of the County Court, Provincial Constable; also office of Deputy Collector of Inland Revenue (Canada) and Sub-Collector of Customs, outport of Nanaimo. It has good schools, as well as a high school, and churches of all denominations. It is on the Island Highway, and on the E. & N. Ry., and has probably the best harbor on the coast, next to Vancouver, large freighters being able to coal at the wharves at any stage of the tide. All the freight for Vancouver Island is landed by barges at Ladysmith. There are a large number of beautiful farms in close proximity to the city. Has C. P. telegraph and B. C. telephone. For particulars, write Secretary, Board of Trade. City population, 2000. Local resources: Coal mining.

LAKE KATHLYN

a siding on the G. T. P., on beautiful Lake Kathlyn, distant 3 miles from Smithers, in the Omineca Provincial Electoral District, reached by rail and auto road. Nearest telegraph office is the G. T. P., at Smithers. All the land in the vicinity has been pre-empted, and while heavily timbered, each year sees an increased amount under cultivation. There are some fifty pre-emptors in the district, also some prospectors, working in the Hudson Bay Mountain, with prospects fair toward developing several favorable claims. Shipping will be made from this siding as the grades and water run to the lake. The scenery at Lake Kathlyn is most beautiful, the mountains and glaciers being reflected in the shadowy depths of the lake. Address mail Smithers PO.

the coal city and distributing centre of Vancouver Island, Nanaimo, known throughout the length and breadth of the Pacific Coast as "The Coal City," is located on the eastern shores of Vancouver Island, distant some seventy-two miles from Victoria and thirty-eight miles from Vancouver, being connected with the former by the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway operating a double daily train service, and with the latter by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's S.S. Princess Patricia, the fastest passenger and freight steamer on the Pacific Coast which during the summer months operates a double daily run between the two cities.

In regard to population Nanaimo ranks fourth among the cities of British Columbia. Founded in the year 1854 by settlers direct from England, and incorporated in 1875, it is one of the oldest cities in the province, the census of 1911 giving it a population of 8,240, the estimated population of the city and immediate vicinity at the present writing being placed at upwards of 10,000, the increase keeping pace with the slow but steady and permanent development of the district. Situated as it is in the geographical centre of Vancouver Island and the nearest point on the Island to Vancouver, the metropolis of the province, Nanaimo is by nature the distributing centre for the whole of Vancouver Island, being connected with Victoria, Duncan, Chemainus and Ladysmith to the south, Alberni and Port Alberni to the west, and Union Bay, Courtenay, Comox and Cumberland to the north by the E. & N. Railway, and also having connection both to the north and south by steamers which make connections at all principal points on the Gulf Islands. In the realm of trade and commerce, Nanaimo has big advantages over any port on the east coast of the Island, and is the real key to the Island trade, being the most direct port of entry from the terminus of the C. P. R. at Vancouver, and with the unfolding of the mineral resources of the interior and the extension of the railway system to the northern end of the Island, the city of Nanaimo will undoubtedly be established as the permanent distributing centre for the whole Island and command a very large volume of trade in all merchantable commodities.

Nanaimo has within its borders industries not found in cities many times greater in population, some of minor importance, but others capable of much development and giving promise of attaining large proportions. It is in the development of these minor industries that the city is expecting to reach beyond the term so often applied to it of "The Coal City"—not that the extensive and valuable coal mines in the vicinity will not add to Nanaimo's wealth and importance—but it is realized by the citizens that Nanamo is much more than a coal mining centre, the greatest in the province. It is the outlet for the immense rich iron ore deposits of the Island and the logical site of iron ore smelters and steel manufacturing plants. The Nanaimo coal area is the largest in the province and is estimated at 350 square miles, the city being the centre of operations which during the year 1917 caused an output of 1,187,764 tons of the best quality of coal mined on the province it is only in recent years that Nanaimo awoke from its lethargy, since which time it has paved its business streets, constructed fifteen miles of cement sidewalks, expended upwards of $300,000 on a municipal owned water system which during the past year produced a revenue of $40,000, and installed a sewerage system to within 25 per cent. of completion. During the past three years the city has also installed modern fire fighting equipment in the form of motor trucks, chemicals, hook and ladder trucks, etc., with the result that the city's annual fire loss has been reduced to a minimum and compares favorably with that of any city in the province. Educational facilities of the city are also of the very best, the expenditure in the Pacific Coast, employing upwards of 3,000 hands and furnishing a monthly payroll of over $300,000. Such a large amount of cash being put in circulation each month must of necessity bring about prosperous conditions, and this is why Nanaimo subscribed half a million dollars to Canada's Victory Loan, that 65 per cent. of the working class of the city own their own homes, and the banks of the city show savings deposits aggregating an amount that excites the wonder of the visitor to the city.

While the output of the district mines for the past year totalled upwards of a million tons, this amount will be exceeded during the current twelve months, for not only are all the old mines working to capacity but new seams are being rapidly opened up, the Granby Consolidated Company being engaged at the present time in developing a virgin field at Cassidy's at an initial expenditure of a million dollars, with an expected output within six months of a thousand tons daily, the Western Fuel Company opening a new mine within a mile of the city limits and the Canadian Collieries having commenced to ship coal from its new property at South Wellington, but three miles from the city.

While one of the oldest cities in this connection last year being $39,000 which provided for the maintenance of six schools, including a High School and Business College, with an enrollment of 1,200 scholars and a large staff of efficient teachers, while the city's financial institutions include the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Royal Bank and Merchants Bank of Canada, the pioneer banking institution of the city being the Canadian Bank of Commerce, located in a substantial brick structure with well furnished and commodious offices.

In the brief space allotted Nanaimo in this publication full justice cannot be given the many advantages possessed by the city and district and its possibilities regarding its fisheries, lumbering, farming, fruit-growing and poultry raising. Its fisheries and lumber wealth are second only in importance to its mining, and while the district has not the number of acres under cultivation that some sections of the Island can boast of, the fertility of its soil has produced some record crops, notably the 550-acre farm at Wakesiah Park, owned and operated by the Western Fuel Company, the exhibit of which farm alone comprises a large section of the annual exhibition of the Nanaimo Agricultural Society. At a recent exhibition oats shown were part of a phenomenal crop, in which five acres yielded 142 and a half bushels to the acre, and 32 acres gave 102 bushels 10 pounds to the acre. The yield of barley was 55 pounds per measured bushel, peas 68½, oats 48, and wheat 68. A dairy is also operated in connection with this farm, the prize cow being one that during twelve months gave 9,614 pounds, or nearly five tons of milk, which was 390 pounds of butter fat, producing 331 pounds of butter. Other cows in the herd are also of a high standard so that taking every phase of farming into consideration the showing of the Wakesiah farm is an important factor in bringing to the attention of the outside world possibilities of the district as an agricultural centre.

Nanaimo has exceptional advantages to offer as a suitable site for the establishment of industries, notably those requiring water frontage. As a shipbuilding centre it is unexcelled, possessing as it does in the long open reaches of the harbor, together with those of Departure Bay, some seven miles of the finest inclosed water on the Coast, capable of carrying ships of the greatest draught and capacity, Nanaimo's export tonnage at the present time being the second largest in Canada, being exceeded by that of Montreal alone.

at the convergence of three lake systems, it is the travel clearing house of the Crow's Nest Pass scenic route. Eight rail and steamer routes give command of every section of the Kootenay, and with fishing, hunting, boating, motoring and excellent hotel accommodations make the city the interior tourist capital of British Columbia. Travellers to the Pacific Coast should not fail to utilize the Crow's Nest Pass route one way and see that their tickets provide for this.

Nelson, as a residential city, challenges the world. A climate that is an elixir, lakes open the year round, all varieties of wild sport, all temperate fruits, electric cars, electric light, artificial gas, mountain water, sewerage, advanced schools, daily press, a progressive population make of Nelson an Arcadia. Nelson is the premier city of a sisterhood of progressive towns. It has a population of 6,500.

The wholesale trade of the East and West Kootenay and adjacent territory is done from Nelson and forms, perhaps, the most important item of its steadily increasing business, covering as it does, a very large district, the importance of which is second to none in the Province. There are many excellent retail stores, several of which would do credit to a large city. Many industries are represented in Nelson, among them a jam factory, iron works, motor boat factories, sash and door factory, brewery, sawmills and lumber yards, engineering works, shingle mills, planing mills, marble works, granite quarries, complex ore reduction plant, municipal waterworks, a mattress and upholstering factory, a C. P.R. shipyard, etc. In the district contiguous to Nelson are approximately 100 sawmills.

Its strategic location makes it the local point of the West Kootenay, Slocan and Boundary lode mining, and of the very extensive lumbering carried on. It is the banking, judicial, wholesale and manufacturing centre and is situated in the heart of the fruit region. It offers unlimited hydro-electric power development, it is the third city in population in British Columbia, and must always remain the business capital of this rich and fast settling territory. Nelson has all the attractions of a modern up-to-date city. It has a municipal-owned electric street car system, gas works and electric light and power plant. It has hospitals, public buildings and educational institutions, and is one of the most prosperous communities in British Columbia. The offices of Provincial Government Agent, Assessor and Collector, Assistant Horticulturist, Provincial Agricultural Agent, Land Commissioner Nelson Land Recording District, Land Registrar, District Engineer Public Works Department, Acting Chief Constable, Provincial Police, Gold Commissioner Nelson Mining Division, District Registrar of the Supreme and County courts. Inspector Dominion Department of Indian Affairs, Southeast B. C. District Deputy Collector of Inland Revenue, and Dominion Veterinary officer. The city's bonded indebtedness is $803,- 364.00. Against this it has in cash, its own repurchased debentures and war bonds, $316,951.00. These public utilities, which are revenue producing, are valued at $576,230.00. After being charged with interest and proportion of sinking fund for the debentures, they earned, last year, $28,667.00. As the debentures mature in from four to fifteen years by that time these public utilities will be paid and the income from them, upon the existing basis, will equal the present taxation of the city.

GLORIOUS KOOTENAY.

The name of Kootenay has been long familiar to the mining and lumbering world of America. No other district on earth has more extensive, more varied or richer mineral deposits. Every valley and mountain side is a storehouse of valuable timber. But Kootenay now appeals to the world with another title. Fortunes are still to be made by extracting her precious metals from the earth and hewing the trees from her hillsides. It has another treasure to offer. In the fertile valleys that girdle every lake and border every stream is the richest fruit land of the continent. Kootenay apples, pears, cherries and strawberries are the marvel of the London and other markets to which all countries have long been sending their best.

The shores of Kootenay lakes and rivers are now lined with smiling orchards. Bee-keeping is also attracting much attention and those engaged in it report most gratifying results. There is a great future here for that industry.

The district abounds in facilities for all kinds of sport. Fishing—the whole lake district, mountain streams and smaller lakes abound in fish (rainbow trout, brook trout). The salmon in Kootenay Lake can give fishermen the best day's sport obtainable anywhere. Small game is plentiful in the immediate vicinity. Deer, goat, mountain sheep, caribou, grouse and wild duck can be had within easy distance from the city. In more extended trips, black, brown, grizzly bear.

Has C.P.R. telegraph and B.C. Telephone. Nelson has an up-to-date Board of Trade, which is fully alive to its opportunities. Inquiries addressed to its secretary regarding the city or district are invited and will have prompt attention.

New Westminster

The industrial port and fresh water harbor of the Pacific, and the market and distributing centre of the fertile Fraser Valley.

A flourishing industrial city, the centre of the lumber manufacturing industry of the Coast section of British Columbia, and possessing exceptional manufacturing advantages and superior transportation facilities.

Its situation on the Fraser River, 15 miles from the Gulf of Georgia, with a fresh water harbor of over half a mile in width, and with safe anchorage of a depth of 30 to 40 feet at its wharves, served by five steam railways and one electric railway system, which traverses the whole of the south side of the Fraser Valley for 65 miles, one of the most fertile agricultural areas in the world, gives it a commanding position as a trading community, industrially flourishing and destined to expand as the resources of the province, natural and acquired, are developed.

The population numbers 16,000. Nearly 20 per cent. are employed in productive industry, a larger percentage than in any other city of Western Canada. The yearly output of the factories (including Fraser Mills, an adjoining industrial suburb, where is situated the immense lumber manufacturing plant of the Canadian Western Lumber Co.) aggregates $10,000,000, and the annual payroll is over $3,000,000.

The city owns and operates the public utilities of electric light, power and water. Its municipally owned docks, extending along the harbor front, which have been lately improved by the expenditure of $500,000, and which are leased at moderate rentals, give opportunities for waterfront industrial operations and shipping development, and amply provide facilities to meet the needs of increasing coast-wise and sea-borne traffic.

New Westminster's fishing industry has an importance almost equal to its lumber manufacturing. The salmon fishing, both above as well as below the city, largely centres in the city. The office of the superintendent of fisheries, which has been located in this city since its inception over thirty years ago, has been recently removed to Vancouver, but the office of inspector of fisheries for this district still remains here. The outfitting of the salmon fishing fleet adds to the business activity of the city, and it is estimated, according to Board of Trade reports, that the sum of over two million dollars was paid out to fishermen on the Fraser River in 1917. The salmon run was not so good in 1918 as in the previous years, but on account of the much higher prices paid the earnings of the fishermen were not much less.

New Westminster has been active in war-time shipbuilding. Four wooden vessels have been built and launched from the Poplar Island shipyards for the Imperial Munitions Board, by the New Westminster Construction & Engineering Co. Over 600 men were employed at the yards, and one month the payroll ran up to $80,000. River craft and immense scows for aeroplane spruce shipping have been constructed in other local yards, while the outfitting of several of the I.M.B. ships has been undertaken at the city-owned wharves, the site for an assembly plant being granted by the City Council without rental.

The Westminster Construction & Engineering Co also in 1918 secured the contract for building five wooden vessels for the French Government. Each of these is of the 1,500 tons deadweight capacity. The construction of these five ships during 1918 and 1919 has stimulated and supported mercantile activity in the city, substantially improved realty conditions and laid more solidly the foundations for a local shipbuilding industry which will, it is confidently hoped, continue and expand after the war, since New Westminster possesses unequalled facilities in situation, extensive lumber mills and machine and foundry plants to make successful and profitable the building of either wooden or steel ships.

The five wooden vessels constructed in 1918-1919 are being equipped by the New Westminster Construction & Engineering Co. at an assembly plant operated on the site prepared for a new market, at the foot of Tenth Street. Free use of this valuable waterfrontage has been granted the shipbuilding company for a year. The company expects to secure the contract for equipping other vessels under construction in the district. A large number of skilled mechanics at high wages will be employed for a year, thus adding to the prosperity of the city.

New Westminster is governed under the Municipal Act of British Columbia, having for its administrative body a mayor and seven aldermen, elected at large under the proportional representation voting system. The last two elections were held under the proportional representation system, but it is intended to revert to the former system for municipal elections. The mayor and aldermen receive monthly indemnities. The land only is taxed, improvements being exempt. The city owns its own water system, electric light plant, harbor waterfrontage, large park areas, and the Fair buildings of the Royal Agricultural and Industrial Society. The citizens have also the convenience of a gas supply for domestic and industrial uses, the product of a gas plant owned and operated by Mr. James Cunningham. It conducts a weekly market, handling the produce of the Fraser Valley, and facilitating the exchange of farm products from the producer direct to the consumer. Its Carnegie Public Library is conducted free for the citizens, being supported entirely from the city treasury.

FRESH WATER HARBOR AND SHIP CHANNEL

Not only has New Westminster met its immediate harbor needs by the construction of new docks at a cost of half a million dollars, but it has evolved plans for a larger harbor project, which, when completed, will involve an expenditure of five million dollars. The larger port scheme provides for a waterway about three and a half miles in length, lying between the extreme easterly end of Lulu Island and Annacis Island, which is situated to the west of the city on the Fraser River.

This waterway will have on its south side a straight quay extending its whole length, while on the north side there are planned a series of slips, 600 feet wide and 800 feet long. Back of these slips will run a 252-foot thoroughfare, while on the south side a similar street will be provided. The responsibility for this port development will devolve on a Harbor Commission, which consists of two commissioners appointed by the Dominion Government and one appointed by the city. The commission has complete control and regulation of the harbor and its traffic from the Pitt River above the city to Steveston at the mouth.

The ship channel to the sea is being improved by the Dominion Government. Two-thirds of the jetty on the north side of the main channel at the Sandheads, at the mouth of the Fraser, has been completed, and the Le Baron improvement scheme calls for the construction of a jetty on the south side also, which, when completed, with the straightening of the ship channel by dredging, is expected to facilitate vessels drawing 30 feet of water reaching the port of New Westminster and ensure the permanency of the waterway from the gulf. Already $1,300,000 has been expended in permanent improvements.

The North Arm of the Fraser, which debouches from the main channel just below the city, is also being improved by the construction of a jetty over the Sandheads at the mouth below Eburne, and this will particularly facilitate river transportation for industrial purposes such as log-towing. The North Arm of the Fraser is also under a harbor board, known as the North Fraser Harbor Commission.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION

Established in 1860.

Conducted under the auspices of the Royal Agricultural and Industrial Society of British Columbia.

"The Best in the West" is the slogan of this annual event, and the sole aim and object is to encourage and assist in every possible way the Agriculturist, the Horticulturist, the Floriculturist, the Stock-breeder and the Dairyman.

There are no profits and no distribution of dividends in its arrangements, being entirely a community development enterprise. The unparalleled success of this huge agricultural exhibition is largely due to the self-sacrificing activity and untiring energy of the executive and directorate and the loyal and ardent support and material assistance of its many faithful and esteemed patrons.

Throughout the whole arrangement of this wonderful demonstration the essential desire is to bring the producer and consumer closer together and become better acquainted with each other.

The New Westminster Provincial Exhibition grounds comprise 80 acres of land. About 25 of this is taken up by the Exhibition buildings, including large Industrial, Agricultural, Manufacturing, Machinery, Transportation, Horticultural, Stock and Poultry buildings, as well as modern-sized Dairy, Art and Administration buildings, together with a modern judging pavilion and horse show arena, which was erected at a cost of $50,000.

Several acres are arranged for stock yards, judging and exercising grounds, and the balance has been converted into a most beautiful park and athletic grounds overlooking the broad and expansive waters of the mighty Fraser and the greatest fresh water harbor on the Pacific Coast.

New Westminster is naturally very proud of the Provincial Exhibition, and as well, too, of the many thousands of visitors who demonstrate their appreciation of her achievements in this direction by attending. As these increase from year to year the management and directorate are greatly encouraged to keep ahead of the times in their endeavors through this medium to promote and foster the husbandry of agriculture and land settlement throughout British Columbia, which they consider is the best means of creating permanent prosperity in any community.

NORTH STAR

a flag station on the C.P.R. Cranbrook-Kimberley branch, 1 mile east of of Cranbrook. See directory listings under Cranbrook, the post office.

North Vancouver

The North Shore of Burrard Inlet is divided into three Municipalities: The District of North Vancouver, which at one time embraced the whole area between the North Arm of the Inlet on the east and Howe Sound on the west, but is now restricted to the area outside of the City, bounded by the Capilano River on the west and the North Arm on the east; the City of North Vancouver embracing a central area of about 3,500 acres; and the District of West Vancouver, extending from the Capilano River on the east to Howe Sound on the west.

North Vancouver Waterfront.

The North Shore industries include the following: Wallace Shipyards, Ltd., Wm. Lyall Shipbuilding Co., Ltd., North Shore Iron Works, Ltd., and the A. Linton & Co., Ltd., boatyards, all within the City; Vancouver Creosoting Works, Capilano Timber Co., Ltd., Robert Dollar Timber Co., Ltd., Vancouver Lumber Co., Ltd., Cedars Ltd., Lynn Valley Lumber Co., Ltd., and the D. Bailey Mill Co., all in the District of North Vancouver; and the Vedder River Shingle Co. and the Askew Shingle Mill in the District of West Vancouver. There are excellent summer resorts at Woodlands, Deep Cove and other points on the North Arm, and at many different points between Ambleside Ferry Landing on the east and Whitecliff at the terminus of a local branch of the P. G. E. Railway on the west.

At present all transportation to outside points from these Municipalities is by ferry boats. A ferry service is operated between the cities of Vancouver and North Vancouver owned by the latter City. In 1917 this service carried 2,500,000 passengers altogether, and a very large number of vehicles and motor cars of all kinds, loaded and unloaded. In 1918 there were over 3,000,000 passengers and a corresponding increase in the number of vehicles and quantity of freight. Efforts are now being put forth to have this service made a joint charge on all the Municipalities interested and to reduce the ferry charges to a lower rate.

West Vancouver is connected with the North Vancouvery ferry by means of the P. G. E. Railway, but the Municipal Council also operates a ferry service from Ambleside to Vancouver for passengers and freight, but not for vehicles. The eastern end of the North Vancouver District is served by ferryboats from Vancouver to different points on the North Arm. Strenuous efforts are now being put forth to have a large joint traffic and railway bridge erected at the Second Narrows. The carrying out of this work would at once open up thousands of acres of land admirably adapted for industrial sites, and about 20 miles of deep water frontage suitable for docks and works of all kinds.

The North Shore possesses a number of beautiful streams of the finest kind of water for domestic and industrial purposes. The principal of these are the Capilano and the Seymour rivers, both of which have been tapped to supply the City of Vancouver and its suburbs with water for all requirements, and the Lynn Creek, which is the source whence the City of North Vancouver takes its water service.

These streams are all great resorts for fishermen and in summer they are visited by many thousands of tourists from all parts of the world. Notable canyons are on all the streams, but certainly the most notable are those on the Capilano River.

The population on the North Shore is approximately from 12,000 to 15,000. Its shipyards have been giving employment to thousands of men, some of whom reside on the south shore. The Wallace shipyards give attention to repairing coasting vessels and building steel ships, and the Lyall shipyards have devoted attention entirely to building wooden ships.

The Capilano Timber Company has spent about $1,000,000 in building a railway up the side of the Capilano River to give access to extensive timber limits there, and they propose to erect a large sawmill on the waterfront to manufacture their timber.

There are several well developed copper and zinc claims near the source of the Lynn Creek, and it is claimed that very valuable iron deposits exist near the headwaters of the Seymour River.

The North Shore is famous for the number of beautiful mountains adjoining, including the Lions (6,500 ft.), Mount Crown (5,450 ft), and Grouse Mountain (4,500 ft).

WINCHES WINDLASSES STEERING GEARS

—Our Three Specialties

Combining the most practical improvements of modern engineering science with the solid, proven principles of the standard Old Country Clarke-Chapman type winch, our "Improved Silent Running Horizontal Steam Winch, Type C," is winning international fame.

Our orders extend from yards of the Atlantic to yards of the Pacific, both in Canada and in the United States.

And we are particularly proud of our Anchor Windlasses, which we consider as near "fool proof" as it is possible to make them. The whole machine can be operated from the cylinder end, both lowering and raising and working the brakes.

OAK BAY

Incorporated as a municipality July 2, 1906. Area, 2,552 acres. Population, 5,550. The municipality of Oak Bay is a district of beautiful homes comprising the highest class residential district of the city of Victoria, immediately adjoining and forming the eastern suburb of that city. Occupying the most picturesque location of the territory embraced in Greater Victoria, and extending on the east and south to the shores of Oak Bay and McNeill Bay, the development of a delightful residential section has been a matter of a very short time.

The reputation of southern Vancouver Island as to climate and scenic beauty is world-wide, and these charms are enjoyed to the highest degree in this district. A splendid hotel overlooking Oak Bay is continually thronged with tourists enjoying the various pleasures offered during all seasons of the year.

The municipality is served by various lines of the B. C Electric street railway system, giving fast and frequent service to all portions of the city of Victoria and surrounding district. The same company supplies electric light, heat and power throughout the municipality. The telephone system is a part of the city exchange of the B. C. Telephone Co.

A splendid system of public and high schools is maintained by the municipality in addition to which numerous private schools are conducted here. The district also has several fine churches.

Public works of a very high grade have been installed over the entire municipality, consisting of asphalt and macadam pavements, cement sidewalks, sewers, water works, boulevards and street lighting. Fire protection is afforded through an arrangement with the city of Victoria, and the district has a very efficient police department. The financial condition of the municipality is first class, and the rate of taxation extremely low.

The northern portion of Oak Bay includes the famous Uplands subdivision. Designed by expert landscape architects in such a way as to take full advantage of the wonderful natural beauty of the site, this is one of the show places on the coast.

Its park-like oak-studded slopes extend to the sparkling waters of Cadboro Bay where the club house of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club is located. At the opposite end of the municipality the Dominion Govt observatory and meteorological station is established on Gonzales Hill, overlooking the city and the Straits of Juan de Fuca. The links of the Victoria Golf Club are here and the charm and novelty of this famous all-year course have been made known over the entire continent. The Willows Park and Exhibition Grounds of the city of Victoria, the B. C. Electric Athletic Park and Oak Bay Park are also places of beauty.

a mining settlement founded in 1900 and for several years a copper camp of considerable activity. While the ore is high grade the cost of transportation and smelting is so excessive that little or no profit is left to the mine owner after all expenses are paid. While the mining industry has slackened to very small dimensions the growing of fruit and vegetables has been increasing, while hay growing has become quite extensive in the valley. Olalla is situated in the picturesque Keremeos Valley at the junction of Olalla and Keremeos creeks, the latter flowing into the Similkameen River at Keremeos, a station on the G.N. Ry., 5 miles south. The fine auto road from Keremeos to Penticton passes through Olalla. Government telephone at Keremeos; office Sub-Recorder Osoyoos Mining Division. Has public school. Population, about 75. Local resources: Mining, hay, fruit and vegetable growing. Olalla is named from the Olalla bushes, which plentifully cover the flat at this point. It is an Indian name and is pronounced O-Lalla, the accent on the O. The Olalla is the first to bloom of all trees or bushes in the Similkameen country, being usually a mass of white blossom early in April, the berries ripening in June and July. The syringea (mock orange) is also very plentiful and blossoms in June and July, thus giving the townsite the appearance of a vast orchard in bloom twice a year. The climate is unsurpassed anywhere in the Northwest. To correct an error above, it should be stated that a decade ago Keremeos Creek did flow into the Similkameen River, but now its waters are all used up in irrigating the large orchards and tomato fields at Keremeos Centre, and none of it goes into the river. The following comprise the inhabitants of the valley for 1 mile south and 3½ miles north of the village. Address mail Olalla, via Keremeos post office. R. W. Northey, deputy mining recorder.

PARKSVILLE
a post office and station on the E. & N. Ry. at junction of lines to Alberni and Courtenay, 24 miles northwest of Nanaimo. Parksville is one of the older settlements on Vancouver Island, the first settlers coming by trail from Nanaimo about 45 years ago. It possesses a beautifully sheltered, sandy bay on the Straits of Georgia. Englishman's River and French Creek provide sport for the angler in due season, and there is also salmon fishing (fly) in the bay in the fall. Situated at the junction of the celebrated Canadian and Island auto highways, it makes an excellent centre for tourists. There is pleasing lack of disfiguring, blackened stumps, and green meadows and creeper-covered houses give the impression of an English village. The rainfall is unusually low, owing, presumably, to the absence of high hills on the shore line. There is a daily train service, Govt. and C. P. R. telegraph, and full telephonic communication. Anglican and Presbyterian churches. Population, 250, and district, 1,000. Between 1908 and 1913 the population was more than doubled by incoming settlers. Parksville boasts an up-to-date public school, and the children's garden is one of the best in British Columbia. Local resources: Mixed farming and lumbering. An ideal residential district.

Penticton

amid beautiful and rugged mountain scenery, nestling snugly at the foot of Okanagan Lake, there lies the attractive little tourist city of Penticton. Like a gem in a desert cave, it lay hidden until the Coast Kootenay (Kettle Valley) Railway spanned the summits between Midway and Hope and placed it definitely on the map for all time to come. In the past two years visitor after visitor has given expression to feelings of amazement that a locality with so many varied attractions should have hitherto escaped the attention of the weary business man, the sportsman in search of a new field, or the family in need of a change.

This unique little city enjoys the distinction of having the finest bathing beach in the interior of British Columbia. The water is shallow over a wide area—there are no treacherous holes—and children can bathe in perfect safety, while the bottom is pure sand and free from gravel or pebbles.

Trout is found in Okanagan Lake and in a number of smaller lakes along the Kettle Valley line, both east and west of Penticton.

The balmy, equable climate of the Southern Okanagan, the excellent motoring, the opportunity afforded for motor boating on the lake, coupled with the social and residential advantages which Penticton possesses, make it an ideal place for a holiday. The best evidence of this is found in the fact that those who come once return again and bring their friends.

Some of the finest orchards in British Columbia are found in the Penticton district. The annual production is more than three hundred carloads of all fruits, while this amount is annually increasing. At several of the leading fairs Penticton fruit has won many first prizes and gold medals. Stock-raising and lumbering are also important industries of the district.

The average rainfall is about twelve inches per year, the snowfall in winter is very light, and zero weather is almost unknown.

In recognition of its tourist possibilities, the Canadian Pacific Railway (Kettle Valley Branch) has erected a magnificent tourist hotel on the beach at Penticton at a cost, including furnishings, of more than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. It provides accommodation for a large number of guests. There are other hotels and a number of private boarding houses which are prepared to minister to the wants of the tourist and visitor.

A golf club has recently been organized and a nine-hole course laid out. It is within easy walking distance of the heart of the town and has proved very popular.

Two public and one high school indicate that education is not neglected. Six churches minister to the spiritual needs of the community. The business section boasts of a number of fine stores and business blocks—one of them, a large department store, having a floor space of more than twenty-four thousand square feet.

Penticton is a divisional point on the Kettle Valley Railway and the general offices of that road are located in the handsome station on the lake front. It is now only two hundred and fifty-three miles from Vancouver, and the journey to the coast only requires about twelve hours, or less than half the time required by the old Sicamous-Main Line route. To the east a connection is made with the Crow's Nest Branch at Nelson.

The citizens are active, leading members in the community, and many are engaged in fruit-growing, each holding from five to ten acres of very productive land.

There are located here at least twenty prosperous merchants, and two large department stores, two hardware stores, four grocery stores, two livery stables, two garages, two butcher shops, two bakers, general hospital, etc. Within the municipal district there are owned at least fifty automobiles, and the town is served by the best roads in the province.

Population about 3,000. Munici-

Port Alberni

is a city municipality, incorporated in 1912, on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, at the head of the Alberni Canal. It has a population of 940. It is the western terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Island division, and is situated on an excellent deep-water harbor, some 36 miles from the open ocean. The Alberni Canal is a natural fiord from 2 to 5 miles wide and extremely deep. The city has one large sawmill, cutting 120,000 feet of lumber per day, operated by the Alberni Pacific Lumber Co., Ltd. This company is now extending its logging railways back of the city, and proposes to erect a second mill with a daily capacity of 200,000 feet in the near future. There are also in the city a smaller sawmill, two shingle mills, three herring packing establishments and a small shipyard. There are two first-class tourist hotels, adequate retail stores, two banks, moving picture theatre and garage. There are both a high school and a public school, and four churches: Anglican, Methodist, Presbyterian and Roman Catholic, also a hospital. First-class water is available, the supply being taken from China Creek, 7 miles distant. Electric light, furnished by the city, and telephone service are also obtainable. Has C. P. and Govt. telegraph offices. Has office of Sub-Collector of Customs, outport of Nanaimo. The city is a resort for motorists, being at the western end of the Canadian road system. Beautiful lakes and streams abound in the vicinity, and excellent fresh water fishing is obtainable. The city is attractively situated on a slope rising gradually from the water's edge, with magnificent views of Mount Arrowsmith, the Beaufort Mountains, and snow-capped peaks at the head of the Alberni Valley. While the winters are wet, there is always a long, dry summer and fall, and the mean annual temperature is over 47 degrees—zero temperature is practically unknown.
